TOKYO FLIERS AT FAIRBANKS FOR REFUELING

Texans Quit Seattle at 6:57 A. M., With 5,100 Miles to Go.

TRIMOTOR AIRPLANE TO DELIVER GASOLINE

Three Gasoline Contacts, Last One in Siberia, Are Planned.

WEATHER IDEAL; TRIP WILL TAKE 55 HOURS

$25,000 Pot of Gold Is Prize Offered by Japanese Paper for Feat.

Fairbanks, Alaska, July 8 (A.P.).—The monoplane Fort Worth, bound on a 5,100-mile nonstop midair refueling flight from Seattle to Tokyo, Japan, arrived over Fairbanks at 7:33 p. m. (12:33 a. m. Thursday, E. S. T.) tonight.

Fighting headwinds for the last 300 miles of their flight, Reg Robbins and Harold Jones arrived here from Seattle in elapsed time of 17 hours and 36 minutes. The air line distance between the two cities is about 1,400 miles, but the fliers' course took them inland north over British Columbia and Yukon territory, probably adding another 200 miles to that distance.

The Texas aviators nearly maintained their schedule, having set 7 p. m. as the time of their arrival here on leaving Seattle at daybreak this morning. The first hop to Fairbanks covered approximately one-third of the distance to Tokyo.

Took Off at 6:57 a. m.

Seattle, Wash., July 8 (A.P.).—Reg L. Robbins and H. S. Jones presumably were well on their way to Fairbanks, Alaska, early tonight, after taking off here at 6:57 a. m. (E.S.T.) on an attempted 5,100-mile nonstop refueling flight to Tokyo.

The trim white monoplane Fort Worth, carrying the Lone Star State fliers, was sighted during the day at various points in British Columbia and was expected to reach Fairbanks around midnight, Eastern standard time, to make the first refueling contact with a trimotored supply plane waiting there.

Ideal weather was in sight as the Texans started the adventure which, if successful, will give them a pot of gold—$25,000—offered by a Japanese newspaper for the first flight of this kind.

Tailwind Boosts Speed.

Riding a tailwind at an estimated height of 6,500 feet, the fliers made rapid strides in the flight that will take them over much rugged country, across stormy Bering Sea, probably down the mainland of Siberia and over the Kurile Islands to Japan. They hope to reach the Land of Cherry Blossoms by 7 a. m. (P.S.T.) Friday.

The Fort Worth was loaded with 800 gallons of gasoline when it took to the air this morning, after its second sprint down the runway of Boeing Field. Robbins, the pilot, barely got the plane off the field at the end of the runway.

Robbins and Jones, the navigator, wasted no time after they decided to leave Seattle this morning and lifted their ship into a dusky sky one hour and twelve minutes after they got out of bed. The flight was delayed five days because of difficulty their refueling plane had in reaching Fairbanks.

Three Refuelings Planned.

After the Fairbanks contact, a second refueling contact may be decided upon over Solomon, 30 miles northeast of Nome. The last refueling will be made over the coast of Siberia. The trimotored refueling machine will accompany the fliers from Fairbanks to Siberia. It will stop at Solomon for a fresh load of gasoline.

Soon after Robbins and Jones nonchalantly stepped into their plane in street attire and sailed out of sight, reports began coming in of their appearance over the Fraser River in British Columbia.

The machine carried no radio but the fliers were making certain that points along their route recognized them.

Although the 5,100-mile flight is figured to take approximately 55 hours, Robbins and Jones expect to have daylight all the way. They will travel through Alaska and down the northern coast of Siberia at night, but at this time of the year that region has 24 hours of light.

Evelyn Wilson Denied To Visitors by Doctor

New York, July 8 (A.P.).—Although Everyn Wilson, missing actress, for whom the police have searched since last Sunday morning, is home again and her mother says she is all right, police are still in the dark about her disappearance.

A police party was in the Wilson apartment for two hours this morning and talked with the girl's mother but did not see Miss Wilson. Her physician has refused to allow her to see anyone until a hysterical condition has improved. The physician said he did not know where she had been.

Vallee Weds Actress In Secret Ceremony

A "Vagabond Lover" no longer, Rudy Vallee, left, crooned "I do," when a minister in a secret ceremony asked him if he took Fay Webb, right, as his wife.

Crooner's Second Bride Is Fay Webb, Police Chief's Daughter.

New York, July 8 (A.P.).—The secret wedding Monday of Rudy Vallee, 29-year-old radio crooner, and Miss Fay Webb, 23, musical comedy actress and former movie star, took even wide-awake Broadway by surprise tonight.

The fair-haired young Yale graduate who sang his way to fame and fortune through a megaphone and the girl he met while filming his "Vagabond Lover" in Hollywood were married at West Orange, N. J., by Judge Herbert Lighthipe. Announcement came from the offices of the National Broadcasting Co.

The bride, a pretty brunette, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Webb, of Santa Monica, Calif. Her father is chief of police. Only five intimate friends witnessed the ceremony.

Rudy is the former Miss Webb's first husband, while the crooning tenor has been married before. His

WIVES' PLANE CRASH DELAYS POST, GATTY

Ship Following Winnie Mae Cracks Up in Landing at Columbus.

Columbus, Ohio, July 8 (A.P.).—Flying westward in the Winnie Mae, the plane in which they completed a record-breaking round-the-world flight last Wednesday, Harold Gatty and Wiley Post were delayed here tonight when another ship bearing their wives cracked up as it landed at Port Columbus shortly before 6 o'clock.

Mrs. Post, Mrs. Gatty and Pilot Marshall Headle, of Los Angeles, narrowly escaped injury when their plane, a sister ship of the Winnie Mae, ground looped, breaking the landing gear and the tip of the left wing.

Headle, chief test pilot of the Lockheed Vega Corporation, expressed the belief he damaged a wheel in taking off from Municipal Airport, New York, this afternoon, and that it gave way on the runway here. Airport officials said the plane was flying cross wind before it landed.

Post and Gatty, accompanied by F. C. Hall, financial backer of the world flight, brought the Winnie Mae to earth three minutes before the arrival of their wives and were standing near the runway at the time of the accident.

The party had planned only a brief stop here for refueling before flying to St. Louis to spend the night. After inspecting the damaged plane, however, Post and Gatty announced they would remain until morning. Headle said the damaged plane would be sent to the factory for repairs and Hall arranged to have another ship brought here so the fliers' wives may continue the trip by air.

A crowd, on hand to greet the famous fliers, circled the damaged plane and first reports were that the passengers were injured. Post and Gatty, together with Hall, ran to the ship and aided their wives and Headle from the cockpits. They were shaken up considerably but were unhurt.

It was learned after the crash that two officials of the Lockheed Vega Corporation, who had planned to accompany the women, had changed their minds just before the take-off from New York. They were Capt. Carl B. Squier, general manager, and Jack Miller, sales manager.

The accident climaxed a day that saw the fliers delayed five hours by unfavorable flying weather. They had arranged to leave New York early this morning, but dense fog over the

BUS FIRM VALUATION TO AID IN FARE CASE

Survey of Property of Rapid Transit Company to Be First in Ten Years.

Valuation of the Washington Rapid Transit Co., the first in its ten years of operation, was ordered yesterday by the Public Utilities Commission. While the data is desired primarily for use in contesting the 3-cent children's fare case, it will be invaluable to the utilities body in other respects.

The bill of complaint in the school fare case stated that the Washington Rapid Transit Co. in the last calendar year made a profit of only 2.926 per cent on a fair value of its District property of $895,959.63. Most courts hold that a public utility is entitled to 7 per cent profit.

Should the commission's valuation reduce the fair value claimed by the bus company materially, the rate of return would naturally be increased and the utility's claim of confiscation of property would be weakened, depending on the gain.

The commission feels that the valuation will be worth while also if the street car merger issue arises in the next Congress as is expected. The Washington Rapid Transit Co. will doubtless be considered in the merger whether or not it is included at once.

Valuations of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. and the Capital Traction Co. were started last summer and are expected to be completed by the end of the calendar year if not before. The valuation of the Capital Traction Co. is about 75 per cent done, while that of the Washington Railway & Electric Co. is about 60 per cent completed.

The Washington Rapid Transit Co. valuation is expected to require about three months and will necessitate employment of three additional valuation engineers. The present accounting staff of the commission is sufficient to handle the extra work. The cost of the valuation, as provided by the public utility act, will be borne by the bus company, which was instructed to deposit $5,000 with the United States Treasury.

The only valuation heretofore of the Washington Rapid Transit Co., was made by the company itself in 1927 and later filed with the commission. This gave the total valuation as $837,870.92, of which $558,499.58 was for physical property within the District. It contained no deductions for accrued depreciations.

This valuation did include a retirement reserve, however, and placed the

Barber, Courtship Resented, Held for Alleged Gunplay

Man's Arrest Follows Claim He Fired at Parent in Effort to Gain Admittance to See Young Woman.

The overly ardent courtship paid by a 35-year-old barber to the daughter of a man who frowned on his suit resulted in his being arrested last night on a charge of having attempted to shoot the father.

Leonard Checchia, of Bladensburg road near M street northeast, is charged with assault with a dangerous weapon and carrying a concealed weapon. His intended victim, according to police, was Frank Frazzano, 56, an interpreter and bondsman, living with his family on Massachusetts avenue near Fifth street northwest.

Police responding to an emergency call overtook the barber about two blocks from Frazzano's home, where the attempted attack occurred. Detective W. R. Laflin said that when he hopped from the police car to seize the panting, perspiring Checchia, nattily clad in a dinner suit, the man reached for his gun.

Although he is small of build, it took the combined efforts of Laflin, Detective J. A. Mostyn and Patrolmen F. C. Tierney and W. C. Groomes to subdue the enraged barber.

Frazzano has two daughters, Mary and Vincen, but would not say which of them was the object of Checchia's affections. He stated that both he

CRACKED PARTS IN 5 WARSHIPS START INQUIRY

DISCOVERY PUZZLES CONSTRUCTION CHIEF

Repair of Crippled Vessels Is to Cost $20,000 in Each Instance.

(United Press.)

Discovery of unexplained defects impairing the combat value of five of the Navy's new 10,000-ton cruisers has resulted in the issuance of orders for an investigation, it was learned yesterday.

The five vessels, crippled in varying degrees by the development of cracks in their stern castings which support the rudders, are the Northampton, the Chester, the Louisville, the Chicago and the Augusta. The Pensacola and the Salt Lake City, both 10,000-ton cruisers, but equipped with stern castings of a slightly different design, have developed no defects so far, nor has the Houston, which has the same type stern casting as the five which have shown faults. All faulty castings are being, or will be, replaced at a cost of about $20,000 each.

Rear Admiral George H. Rock, chief of the Bureau of Construction and Repair, said yesterday the investigation has not progressed far enough to indicate the reason for the weaknesses. He said, however, he was convinced the fault lies either in the design used or in the foundry work on the castings. There is no reason for suspecting any other cause, he said.

Chief Is Mystified.

Admiral Rock was somewhat mystified by the situation. He said the Navy has had no difficulties with stern castings for many years, although such defects develop occasionally in merchant vessels.

Describing the effect of the defects upon the cruisers' combat effectiveness, Admiral Rock said it is possible to operate them with restrictions in speed and rudder angle.

This would mean decreased mobility in action, it was explained. Moreover, the defects are of such nature that even with careful handling they would grow worse progressively, and there is always the possibility that a sudden severe strain would tear the casting and rudder clear from the ship.

The casting of the Chester has been replaced recently at the Norfolk Navy Yard, and similar repairs are now in progress on the Northampton in the same yard. The other three will be repaired in the New York Navy Yard this fall when they go there for a routine overhaul.

Castings Cost $20,000.

It cost about $18,000 to replace the Chester's casting, Admiral Rock said, and he estimated the average cost per vessel would be about $20,000. The Government, however, may not have to stand this expense, except in the case of the Northampton, since the defects developed on the other cruisers within the six months guarantee period during which the builder is responsible.

Two of the others, however, were built in Government navy yards, so

GALLINGER PATIENT TO MAKE CHARGES

War Veteran to Tell Grand Jury He Was Mistreated in Hospital.

Charges of a sensational character, involving alleged mistreatment of a Gallinger Municipal Hospital patient, who further claims he was attacked by a prisoner under treatment there, will be laid before the grand jury today by Joseph Jaffee, 30-year-old World War veteran.

Jaffee, whose home is in Cincinnati, Ohio, and who was sent from Mount Alto Hospital to Gallinger last Friday for observation, advised the district attorney's office he will make the charges, after he visited the hospital yesterday. He claims on this visit he was struck by the prisoner-patient, who had occupied the same ward.

Hospital authorities last night denied mistreatment of Jaffee, who was at the hospital from Friday noon to Sunday midday. They admitted, however, that Jaffee was struck by a man who shared his ward during his stay at the hospital.

The man, who they said was Patrick Mullaley, 21 years old, of Richmond, Va., sent there from the District Jail for observation following a six months sentence; they said Mullaley struck Jaffee when Jaffee pointed him out to hospital physicians as a man he had seen abusing another patient during his two-day stay there.

Jaffee also charges, according to hospital authorities, that he was not properly treated while he was a patient at the hospital; that he was forced to sleep in a "strong room" when he made known he was "afraid" to sleep in the ward; that he was forced to bathe in tubs used by colored patients; that he saw other patients abused while he was under treatment there, and that he was not allowed to leave the hospital until Sunday, despite his request for dismissal earlier.

Jaffee was said to have gone to the hospital yesterday and exhibited to officials what he said was an affidavit he intended to turn over to the district attorney, setting forth the

Commons 'Left-Wingers' Lose on Work Insurance

London, July 8 (A.P.).—The government had an easy triumph tonight in the House of Commons over recalcitrant left-wingers who moved the rejection of the unemployment insurance anomalies bill, which aims to remove some of the unsatisfactory features existing in unemployment insurance. The vote was 231 to 19.

The minority included the followers of Sir Oswald Mosley, who moved today from the Labor side of the house to the opposition side. The Conservatives didn't vote and several Laborites and Liberals also abstained.

DOHERTY COMPLAINT ABOUT PAPER FAILS

Brown Asserts Violation of Postal Law Has Not Been Shown.

Postmaster General Brown yesterday advised Henry L. Doherty of the Cities Service Co., of New York, that he did not have before him articles published in the Kansas City Star of which Doherty had complained.

Doherty had requested that the publication be barred from the mails, alleging the Star was responsible for an order forbidding the sale of certain classifications of Cities Service stocks in Kansas.

In his letter the Postmaster General wrote:

"The Postoffice Department has not before it the published matter to which you make objection or any evidence with respect to the manner in which such matter has been carried in the mails.

"Section 335 of title 18 of the United States code, directs the Postmaster General to exclude from the mails matter of a libelous, scurrilous, defamatory or threatening character 'but only when such matter appears upon the envelope or outside cover or wrapper of mail matter or upon any postal card.'"

Brown explained that when "any specific case of violation of postal laws is directed" to the attention of the department an investigation is made.

Doherty's telegram, in the opinion of the Postmaster General, contained no specific complaint of violation of the postal laws.

Officials of the department said that unless Mr. Doherty made a specific complaint against the publication the question would be dropped.

Kansas City, Mo., July 8 (U.P.).—Suits charging the Kansas City Star with libeling Henry L. Doherty, public utilities magnate, and his interests to the extent of $25,000,000 will be ready for filing tomorrow, Fred L. Robertson, Doherty counsel in Kansas, announced tonight.

Robertson said that the series of articles appearing recently in the Star attacking allegedly exorbitant gas rates in Kansas and other Middle Western States, would form the basis of the suits.

Former Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, it was announced tonight,

PARIS' NAVY OFFER AWAITED BY ROME

Stimson's Visit Is Seen as Prompting Proposal by France.

Rome, July 8 (A.P.).—A new French naval limitation proposal to Italy was made to the government tonight almost simultaneously with the arrival of Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson of the United States.

While Mr. Stimson was on his way word came to the government from Paris that French experts expect shortly to forward a new suggestion for a naval accord with Italy. He drove immediately to the American Embassy, where Ambassador and Mrs. Garrett were waiting to receive him at dinner.

It was surmised here that Secretary Stimson's coming had prompted the French government to hasten the long-expected resumption of the Franco-Italian naval limitation negotiations. It has been taken for granted that disarmament topics would be discussed by Secretary Stimson with Premier Mussolini and Foreign Minister Grandi, and that Stimson probably would discuss the subject also with statesmen in other European capitals.

Foreign Minister Grandi said recently that Italy still hopes for a naval accord with France and indicated that the government was extremely interested in plans for further disarmament conferences.

Italy's position on the basis of naval reduction, however, is said to remain the same as it was during former negotiations, but it seemed possible that there might be an adjustment of certain points which would satisfy France.

Stimson will be taken by Ambassador Garrett at noon tomorrow to see Foreign Minister Grandi. They will confer for an hour and then the foreign minister will return the Secretary's visit.

Secretary Stimson will talk with Premier Mussolini later in the afternoon in the Duce's office in the Palazzo Venezia. The premier and the Secretary will see each other tomorrow night at the ambassador's dinner.

Slight Chill Keeps MacDonald in House

London, July 8 (U.P.).—Prime Minister J. Ramsay MacDonald was suffering from a slight chill tonight and forced to remain indoors at the government residence on Downing street.

The prime minister was understood to be feeling the strain of recent governmental labors and has been suffering from insomnia.

Hoirriis and Hillig Hop Canceled by Weather

Copenhagen, July 8 (A.P.).—Capt. Holger Hoirriis and Otto Hillig, transatlantic fliers, were unable to fly their plane, Liberty, to Bremen today because of unfavorable weather.

Instead they intended leaving tonight by train for Hamburg.

German Funds Flight Stemmed by Debt Aid

1,000 Industrial and Banking Leaders Join in Underwriting $125,000,000 Loan to Help in Halting Gold Withdrawal.

Editor's note—What will Germany do with the moratorium? A series of articles outlining the hopes of German leaders and presenting the industrial effects which the moratorium is expected to have is herewith presented.

By WADE WERNER

(Copyright, 1931, the Associated Press.)

Berlin, July 8 (A.P.).—Now that Germany has been granted a moratorium, what is she going to do with it? Or, as many a grateful German would put it, "How are we going to make the most of the Hoover miracle?" For miracle it certainly seemed to millions in the Fatherland who had given up all hope of a debt-holiday proposal from the United States.

Quickly Chancellor Bruening warned his fellow citizens that the best way to make the most of the moratorium was, first of all, to keep it out of the pork barrel.

The outstanding financial and industrial leaders of the nation emphatically agreed with him, pointing out that if Bruening relaxed his "iron chancellor" attitude and allowed tax reductions and venture-some appropriations on the basis of the billion and a half marks reparations savings, the billion and a half would melt away like a snowball in a blast furnace.

Bankers warned that the run on foreign currencies which brought affairs to such a critical stage in June meant a shrinkage of more than that billion and a half in Germany's available capital during a period of little more than a month, and that Germany's success in coaxing that capital back to the Fatherland depends to a great extent on maintaining confidence abroad in Germany's business-like, thrifty management of the Hoover reparations relief.

As one means of establishing that confidence, one thousand of the Nation's biggest industrial, shipping and banking houses agreed to underwrite a $125,000,000 long-term credit to be negotiated abroad by the Gold Discount Bank.

The Krupps, the big breweries, the dye trust and some of the country's strongest banks are among the guarantors, and less than twelve hours after their combined collateral running into billions of dollars had been offered, the government today issued an emergency decree legalizing the arrangement.

It imposes upon the guarantors liability in proportion to their assets for a sum not exceeding $125,000,000, but this does not mean that $125,-

Diver, Veteran of 4 Wars, Kills Self to Escape Pain

William J. Anderson, Tortured by Bends as Result of Underwater Work in Navy, Found Dead, Gun in Hand.

William J. Anderson is dead. Life, for one whose physical and mental being is wracked and tortured by the bends, dreaded affliction peculiar to undersea divers, is not worth seeing through to the end. So he must have thought.

Anderson's body was found early last night in a clump of bushes about 50 feet from the corner of Benning road and Twenty-eighth street. There was a bullet hole in the left temple. A small automatic was clutched in his left hand. Edward Talley, 57-year-old colored man who was looking for fishing bait, stumbled over the corpse.

Horrified by his discovery, Talley ran to where George Leonard, Government engineer, was working at a viaduct being constructed nearby and reported his find. Leonard notified police.

Anderson served in the Navy during the Spanish-American War, Boxer Rebellion in China, Philippine Insurrection and World War. It was while he was chief gunner's mate aboard the U. S. S. New Hampshire that he made the perilous dive which was destined to affect his future existence. When Anderson was carried from the decompression chamber he had the bends.

After the World War he received

POWERS TURN TO PROBLEMS OF ARMS CUT

League of Nations Bids U. S. to Conference in Geneva.

HUGH GIBSON LIKELY TO GO AS DELEGATE

DEBT REVISION PLAN IS DENIED BY CASTLE

President's Whole Purpose Is to Give Breathing Space, Nation Is Told.

By EDWARD T. FOLLIARD.

America and Europe, absorbed for a little over a fortnight in war debts, yesterday concentrated their attention on the problem of reducing the armaments for making war.

The League of Nations invited the United States to participate in the general disarmament conference that is to be held in Geneva February 2, and inasmuch as President Hoover has linked disarmament with his plan for a one-year holiday on war debts and reparations this country no doubt will readily accept the invitation.

The American representative probably will be Hugh Gibson, who has been taking part in the conferences preparatory to the general disarmament conference.

France Approaches Italy.

France, according to Associated Press dispatches, has asked Italy to renew negotiations looking to a Franco-Italian naval limitation agreement. If such an agreement is reached the prospect for an agreement on reduction of armies at the Geneva conference will be considerably brightened.

Secretary of State Stimson, who is to talk disarmament to the foreign ministers of four European countries, arrived in Rome just about the time that France was suggesting to Italy that negotiations on a naval agreement be resumed.

France meanwhile is looking forward to a visit from Secretary Stimson next week.

To add to the confidence and good will that seems to be spreading across Europe in the wake of President Hoover's plan for a one-year holiday on intergovernmental debts, Germany yesterday informed France that it would not use any of its returned reparations money to strengthen its army or its navy.

Denies Debt Revision Plan.

The committee of experts that is to work out the technical details of the Hoover moratorium will meet in London tomorrow, and the United States will have a representative present.

The administration yesterday sought to head off speculation about revision of German reparations and allied debts to the United States.

Twice—first in a formal statement in the afternoon and again in a radio speech last night—Acting Secretary of State Castle insisted that President Hoover, in evolving his plan for a one-year holiday on debts had at no time considered a "permanent" revision of foreign debt settlements.

The revision talk grew out of a statement made Tuesday by Acting Secretary Castle to the effect that President Hoover, in casting about for a plan to help Germany, had considered the possibility of reexamining the capacity of nations to pay, to see whether reparations and debts should be scaled down in accordance with the depression.

Republicans Alarmed.

The State Department later informed newspaper offices that when Mr. Castle referred to the scaling down of debts in accordance with the depression, he meant that the President had never had in mind a permanent scaling down. Nevertheless, even with this explanation the story aroused considerable alarm among those Republicans who are strongly opposed to a revision of Europe's debt settlements with this country.

In a speech over the National Broadcasting Co. networks last night, Acting Secretary Castle said:

"I want here to point out that the whole purpose of the President's proposal was to give a year's breathing space in which the recuperative forces of the world could make headway. At no time did he propose or consider any permanent revision of the foreign debt settlements nor of any contract of which we are not a party. He considered the whole subject solely in the aspect of relief to the temporary conditions created by world-wide depression. In fact, all through the discussion the integrity of the agreements already entered into has been constantly upheld."

Earlier in the day, Mr. Castle had said pretty much the same thing, adding that President Hoover had made this clear in making his proposal for a one-year suspension on debt payments.

Senator Capper's Suggestion.

Senator Arthur Capper (Republican), of Kansas, has proposed that President Hoover, in his message to Congress asking for approval of the debt moratorium plan, specifically state that the moratorium should not be regarded as a step toward cancellation of the $11,000,000,000 war debt to the United States.

In his radio speech last night, Acting Secretary Castle praised the "courageous leadership" of President Hoover, and expressed the hope that his debt holiday plan would inspire the nations to go into the Geneva arms conference next year with a genuine desire to bring about reductions.

His was the first of two speeches prepared by the members of the "little cabinet," who served the President so well in the recent negotiations.

Acting Secretary of the Treasury Mills is scheduled to go on the air tonight.

Democratic politicians and writers have been awaiting the speeches to see whether Mr. Castle and Mr. Mills would attempt to make political capital out of something which the President has described as a nonpartisan undertaking.

Democrats Also Praised.

However, if Mr. Castle praised President Hoover last night, he also praised those Democratic members of Congress who saw the "value to the world" of the President's proposal and promised to stand firmly with him.

Mr. Castle outlined the history of the President's proposal from the time in early May, when he concluded that something had to be done to save Germany.

"In the complicated inter-relationships between nations today," he said, "the economic collapse of any one nation must have far-reaching consequences on all other nations. The President, therefore, believed, and rightly, that in giving assistance now where it was most desperately needed, the whole world would participate in the benefits. We are beginning to understand that prosperity depends on the prosperity of our neighbors, not on their misery.

"Intergovernmental debts are, of course, only one of many causes which discourage the striving for renewed prosperity. Even more important, probably, is the stupendous load placed on various nations by unproductive expenditures on armament. We hope that by this temporary relief from intergovernemntal debts such good feeling, such a sense of loyal responsibility to each other, may be engendered among the nations that all may enter the disarmament conference next year determined to succeed.

"It is impossible to put in action at once all the forces of recuperation, but the President felt that this one method of relief might well open the door of hope and thus lead to general economic recovery. That, I firmly believe, it will do if the people of this country will stand strongly back of the Government in optimism and in that determination to carry through which is one of the characteristics of the American people. There are, of course, and will be rumors of all kinds which must be courageously discounted.

"The President can not alone carry out this economic upbuilding. That is the duty of all the people of all nations who must attack their problems with courage and optimism. There are many such problems still to be worked out in Europe, and they can only be worked out if attacked constructively and courageously. We must all seek for economy in all departments of the Government today as next year we must fearlessly attack the problem of waste through armament.

Good Will Engendered.

What the President's proposal has so far accomplished is the mobilization of the forces of good will and good understanding and determination to bring back prosperity. It has opened the gates to a return of prosperity which will affect every citizen of the country. It is up to us to hold the gates open in order that relief may come to the farmers of the Nation, in order that the growth of trade which must follow an improvement in conditions abroad may bring employment to all those who are willing to work. I am not making any predictions. All I know is that the world has suddenly been given hope when things looked most hopeless. The courageous leadership of the President has done all this. Now the work of rehabilitation must be taken over by the people in a spirit of courageous optimism. In such a program the American people has never yet failed and it will not fail today."

Earlier in the day it was stated by Acting Secretary Castle that the United States had decided to send an American representative to the meeting of experts, soon to be held in London.

The prospect is that he will be J. Theodore Marriner, counselor of the American Embassy in Paris, who recently assisted Secretary Mellon and Ambassador Edge in their conferences with the French ministers.

YOUNG SIGNATORIES WILL MEET JULY 17

Britain to Be Expected to Resist Talk of Debt Cancellation.

London, July 8 (A.P.).—Representatives of the chief countries signatory to the Young plan will, failing some unexpected hitch, meet in London July 17 to discuss those points connected with the plan and with the Hoover moratorium which were left unsettled by the Franco-American agreement in Paris.

Although the United States is not a signer of the Young plan, she will be represented by an "observer."

Preliminary negotiations will be conducted by financial experts only, but it was regarded as highly probable tonight that these technical discussions would be followed by a meeting of statesmen of major caliber.

The nature and scope of such a meeting, assuming that it occurs at all, will naturally depend on the course taken at the experts' conference.

Need For Speed Is Seen.

Best informed commentators agree today that the British government has become more and more impressed with the vital necessity for speed if full advantage is to be taken of the Hoover proposal and if the markets of London, Paris and Berlin are to maintain their buoyancy.

In this connection it was pointed out that originally Great Britain proposed an experts' conference to meet as early as next Monday. The following Friday—July 17—was preferred by France and the British government was unwilling to raise obstacles before the conference had started. Hence the later date was accepted.

The meeting of the experts will coincide with the visit of Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Henderson to Berlin, but this point is nonessential, as they naturally would play no part in the experts' discussion.

Intense Speculation Futile.

Sir Frederick Leith-Ross, a high treasury official, who was the principal British financial adviser at The Hague conferences in 1929 and 1930, was widely mentioned tonight as the most probable choice as head of the British delegation at the experts' conference.

While there was intense speculation in political and financial circles as to the course the experts' talks would take, there also was a general realization that such speculation was largely futile.

It was thought the agenda would be drawn as widely as possible to give France and Germany or any other country the right to bring up almost any topic related to the business in hand.

At the same time nothing has occurred to shake the general belief that the two main topics of discussion—and perhaps virtually the only topics—must be the guarantee fund and the question of deliveries in kind.

No Cancellation Talk.

Commentators were agreed there was one issue the British government did not expect and did not wish to bring into the conference. That was the question of any cancellation or general reduction in war debts.

It was held that the Government looks upon cancellation or reduction as having been finally disposed of unless and until it is reopened again from Washington.

The Government was credited tonight with feeling that it would be both unwise and improper to drag that issue into the negotiations and it was believed that any attempts by any other nation to do so would be resisted.

Deliveries in Kind Problem.

It was expected the problem of deliveries in kind would prove a more difficult nut to crack than the issue of the guarantee fund. The matter of the guarantee, it was believed, might resolve itself into scarcely more than some form of international bookkeeping with no very vital concrete effect on Great Britain or any one else.

Deliveries in kind is a problem that has its roots in the trade and commerce of a dozen nations and the task of reconciling their conflicting interests was expected to prove arduous.

Despite the lack of animation in London markets today and reports of more grave financial developments in Paris and Berlin there was a strong feeling here tonight that a way out of the international financial difficulties would be found.

Statement on Beer Explained by Dyer

Holds W. C. T. U. Misunderstood Estimate of Revenue.

(Associated Press.)

Representative Dyer, of Missouri, said yesterday the Women's Christian Temperance Union had misunderstood him when it questioned a statement attributed to him that the legalization of nonintoxicating beer would add a billion dollars annually to the revenue of the Federal Government.

"What I said was that the revenue derived by the Federal Government and State governments and municipal governments would approximate a billion dollars a year," the Republican explained. "The amount that I claim would come into the Federal Treasury is approximately $250,000,000."

He quoted from the Wickersham commission's prohibition report to show that from 1862 until the World War one-fourth of the Federal Government's revenue had come from brewing and distilling.

Hoover Street Urged By Berlin Newspaper

Berlin, July 8 (A.P.).—The democratic Boersen Courier today started a movement to name some important Berlin street "Hooverstrasse" in recognition of the American President's initiative in securing reparations moratorium.

There was a possibility that the street might be named before Secretary of State Stimson's visit to Berlin, if the paper's crusade is successful.

WASHINGTON NEWS REASSURES GERMANS

Notice Is Taken That U. S. Will Be Happy Over Better Terms From France.

Berlin, July 8 (A.P.).—German Doubting Thomases, who asked anxiously whether the Hoover plan remained intact after the French got through with it, were greatly reassured today by news from Washington that the American Government would be most happy if better terms were arranged for Germany at the suggested Franco-German conversations in Paris.

The entire German press published Washington dispatches to the effect that the United States would be pleased if France could be induced to lengthen from 10 to 25 years the term within which this year's German annuity must be repaid.

This news was accepted as an indication that President Hoover was tenaciously trying to get maximum alleviation for Germany.

While awaiting receipt of an official invitation to the conference of financial experts at London over the details of the Hoover plan, Chancellor Bruening, Foreign Minister Curtius, Finance Minister Dietrich and their staffs were busy today assembling data for the meeting.

The fact that the gathering is to be held in London was greatly welcomed here. The businesslike atmosphere of the British capital was considered ideal for a meeting of this kind.

The German government has not yet decided whom to send to the London conference.

Another matter engrossing the foreign office is the visit of Herr Bruening and Dr. Curtius to Paris and later to Rome. Tentative plans call for visits to both cities late in July.

Rome dispatches today indicated that Premier Mussolini might make a reciprocal call on the German statesmen in Berlin.

Mussolini's quick acceptance of the Hoover plan won him considerable sympathy in Germany, so much so that the chancellor sent him a special message of thanks.

Position on Tariff Asked of Robinson

Smoot Calls on Arkansan to Explain Attitude on Revision.

(Associated Press.)

Senator Smoot yesterday called upon Senator Robinson, of Arkansas, the Democratic leader, to explain his party's position on the tariff question.

The Utah Republican, for whom the Smoot-Hawley tariff act is named, called attention in a statement issued through the Republican national committee, to a request by Robinson that President Hoover take steps to revise the tariff.

"Does the gentleman from Arkansas wish a general downward revision of the tariff by Congress?" Mr. Smoot asked. "If so, what specific schedules in the present Hawley-Smoot bill does the party he represents wish to reduce?" Mr. Smoot said Jouett Shouse, chairman of the Democratic national executive committee, was the only representative party leader to name publicly the rates he considered too high, these being on sugar and wool.

GERMAN ARMS WORD PLEDGED TO FRANCE

Stimson Visit Forecast as Opening Step Toward Disarmament.

Paris, July 8 (A.P.).—The German government, through Ambassador von Hoesch, tonight gave Premier Laval its solemn word that it would not use the funds realized by the reparations moratorium for building armaments.

Ambassador von Hoesch gave to the premier the text of Chancellor Bruening's statement of July 2, in which the chancellor assured the American Government that its moratorium benefits would be used for economic purposes.

France took cognizance of this note last week when it was made public, but at the same time she included in the Franco-American agreement the right to ask Germany for assurances that the money would be used for what she considered "proper purposes."

After the interview tonight Premier Laval issued a statement in which he said the German government made the move on its own initiative. Ambassador von Hoesch spent an hour with the premier, during which, it was understood, all problems between the two countries were discussed.

Stimson Visit Held Important.

Premier Laval said the visit of Chancellor Bruening and Foreign Minister Curtius of Germany to Paris could not occur before the end of July or the first of August because of the proposed visit of Prime Minister MacDonald and Foreign Minister Arthur Henderson of Great Britain to Berlin.

In an official communique issued after the conference it was said that Ambassador von Hoesch informed the premier of "the German government's happiness over the conclusion of the Franco-American agreement."

Paris began today to prepare for the disarmament talks which it expects after the arrival here of Secretary of State Stimson on July 15. The government has arranged for a luncheon for the American Secretary of State at which members of the cabinet will be present, and dinner has been arranged at the American Embassy to which a select list of diplomats and officials have been invited.

The indication here is that the Secretary will be a busy man while he is in France. The French are not taking seriously his announcement that he is on a holiday. They are recalling that Secretary Mellon also came to Europe on holiday, but soon became the personal representative of President Hoover at the moratorium conference.

Comment in the press has been captioned "from Mellon to Stimson."

Disarmament Discussed.

The willingness of France to link disarmament with reparations and debts, and the steadfast French policy of "security before disarmament" make Secretary Stimson's visit here an important one. The press today looked askance at Berlin's approval of President Hoover's statement that disarmament must occupy the front rank in international politics.

"By a singular parallelism," says the Paris Midi, "Berlin choruses with Washington on disarmament as it did three weeks ago on reparations. It is now said that the year's moratorium will not be enough and that great reforms in world economy will be necessary. Behind these reforms is general disarmament."

The paper concludes that this makes France reflect on the real meaning of Secretary Stimson's visit.

The foreign office repeated tonight that the government maintains that the conference of experts at London can settle the problems of the moratorium, including the problem of payment in kind and of the French guarantee fund, and that there is no need for a meeting of diplomats, who might put the whole reparations question on the carpet.

The next move, as far as France is concerned, will be taken at the council of ministers' meeting Friday, when the experts to go to London will be selected.

and the much sought daughter opposed the barber's attentions, and that last night, when he appeared and asked to see the young woman, he was told his presence was not desired.

Checchia started to brush past him, the father told police, and he pushed him back. It was then, Frazzano said, that the man fired with a .32-caliber revolver, the bullet grazing his shoulder and lodging in the wall.

U.S. Good-Will Children Given Paris Reception

Paris, July 8 (A.P.).—America's good will group of eleven boys and girls were received at the Paris City Hall this afternoon by Rene Pailliot, vice president of the Municipal Council, who welcomed them warmly as envoys of America's youth.

Afterward they were guests of Ambassador and Mrs. Edge at a reception at the Embassy.

charges. He asked permission to return to the ward he occupied and identify a man he claimed struck another patient in his presence.

Dr. R. W. McCullough, in charge of the receiving building, where Jaffee was admitted to the hospital, was first called in and conducted the World War veteran through that structure.

He was next turned over to Dr. Isaac Silverman, ward physician in the East Building, who, accompanied by a nurse and an orderly, returned with him to the ward he had occupied. Hospital spokesmen said on entering the ward Jaffee pointed to Mullaley, who, before they could intervene, lunged at his accuser. Dr. Silverman's hat was smashed in the melee before he succeeded, with the aid of other patients, in holding Mullaley in check, they said.

Mullaley, a former Marine, was originally sentenced to the District Jail on traffic charges. Hospital attaches denied he was acting as an orderly at the hospital, but said that patients frequently helped with the chores about the ward.

GERMAN FUND WITHDRAWALS THOUGHT HALTED BY DEBT AID

000,000 is all the money that Germany needs. That is the sum regarded as necessary to halt withdrawal of foreign exchange in gold.

The liability is so arranged that no one firm is called upon to guarantee more than a small percentage of the total. The Deutsche Bank, for instance, underwriters only 2 per cent. Because of this arrangement it was possible to arrange the guarantee by 1,000 firms within a few hours.

If the country listens to Bruening—and it has had to listen to him closely of late—one of the first effects of the moratorium will be the large-scale influx of capital which either was withdrawn by nervous foreign lenders and investors or shipped abroad by scared German investors during the darkest days just before the United States stepped in.

This psychological effect of the Hoover plan would have been more noticeable than it was—for it began immediately after the news from Washington became public—but for the fact that the normal heavy demand for foreign currencies expectable at the end of every half year counterbalanced the turn in the tide which set in when Germans stopped shipping their money out and foreign banks stopped calling their German loans.

But the turn was definite enough to make bankers hopeful of seeing most of the flown capital back in German vaults by early autumn.

District Is Abolished When Lone Voter Moves

New York, July 8 (A.P.).—The city will be saved $400 on next primary and election day, four men will be out of work, and Manhattan will be minus one election district. George Schraeder has moved.

Mr. Schraeder for two years enjoyed the distinction of being the only voter in the Thirty-eighth election district of the Tenth assembly. At each primary and election time he kept a registration board of four on duty all for himself and for registration they toiled all week waiting for him to drop around.

Schraeder wrote to John R. Voorhis, president of the board of elections, July 1, telling him he was going to move to another district.

"So we just wiped out that district at today's meeting," Chief Clerk S. Howard Cohen said. He explained it cost the city $400 each time to record Schraeder's vote.

1930 MONEY EXPORT FAR ABOVE AVERAGE

(Associated Press.)

The net export of capital from the United States in 1930 was estimated yesterday by the Commerce Department at $733,000,000.

This figure, made public in a study of the balance of international payments for the year, compared with $306,000,000 in 1929 and $944,000,000 for 1928. The average for the eight years preceding 1930 was $450,000,000.

In a summary of the report, Dr. Julius Klein, the Assistant Secretary of Commerce, said American tourists last year were estimated to have left abroad a total of $811,000,000, which he described as a relatively small decline from the record tourist expenditure of $868,000,000 in 1929.

Two Accounts Balance.

"These outlays," Klein said, "amounted to approximately the same as the total receipts by the United States from the sum of the country's foreign long-term investments, the yield of which was placed at $826,000,000.

"The number of Americans who traveled actually increased as compared with the previous year, but careful investigation disclosed that average expenditures were less than in previous years.

Klein said receipts from interest, bond redemptions and amortization on American long-term investments abroad, including payments on the United States Government's war loan account, reached a new record total of $1,300,000,000.

Long-Term Export Small.

"Although Americans bought foreign stocks and bonds in the international security markets to the amount of $360,000,000," he added, "the purchase and repatriation by foreigners of foreign securities previously accumulated here involved total payments of $806,000,000. With the result that these operations necessitated the remittance to this country by foreign banks or other transfer agencies of a net sum of nearly $450,000,000.

"These payments, together with the fact that the year's purchases by foreigners of American stocks and bonds were more than $100,000,000 in excess of the amount paid here for American securities repurchased from foreign holders, accounted largey for the year's relatively small net export of $290,000,000 in long-term capital."

In addition, Klein said, about $443,000,000 went abroad which citizens of other nations had carried on deposit here or had invested in the financial markets on a short-term basis.

The 1930 report, Klein explained, was the ninth issued by the department and there were no comparable figures for the 1920-22 depression. He added the latest study should "prove to be the first definite enrichment of our knowledge of business cycles" during a depression.

Hart's Office Employe Held on Weapon Charge

Robert E. McLaughlin, 24, employed in the office of David A. Hart, Assistant United States Attorney, was arrested and charged with carrying a weapon following an auto collision last night at Sixteenth and Kennedy streets northwest. Police reported that McLaughlin was with Miss Joan Rose when their roadster collided with a machine operated by William I. Turton, of 1170 Eighteenth street northwest, inflicting slight injuries to Turton.

Police arrested McLaughlin after they found a revolver in his machine, they reported. He was released under $500 bond. He lives on Sixteenth street near Euclid northwest. Miss Rose gave an address on Newark street near Thirtieth northwest.

FINAL PLANS MADE FOR MOTOR SURVEY

Maryland and Virginia Will Aid in Traffic Count Over Wide Area.

Final preparations were made yesterday for the extensive traffic survey to be conducted by the United States Bureau of Public Roads with the cooperation of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and agencies in Maryland and Virginia. The survey, which is to continue for a year and to cover an area with a radius of 25 miles from the heart of the Capital, will actually get under way in about two weeks.

Fairfax County's board of supervisors, which was the last to agree to the scheme, yesterday offered to provide labor but no money for the investigation. The Bureau of Public Roads is to pay half of the estimated cost of $20,000 for the work, while the remaining money has been pledged by the following cooperating agencies: The National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the Maryland National Capital Park and Planning Commission, the Counties of Arlington, Montgomery, Fairfax, Prince Georges and the City of Alexandria.

A total of 260 stations will be established on the principal highways leading into Washington, and fourteen full-day counts will be made of the motor vehicles passing each of these points in a 24-hour period. The daily counts will be scattered over the year.

Besides recording the number of automobiles, trucks, buses and the like which pass each of these stations, the recorders will give motorists cards to be filled out and mailed back to the Bureau of Public Roads so that the starting points and destinations of the vehicles can be tabulated.

All of this data, when classified, will enable the regional highway committee of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission and the adjacent county boards to revise the regional highway plan of the District.

These figures will enable the highway committee to determine what thoroughfares bring the heaviest traffic into the city, from what directions and cities the greatest number of vehicles come, and what is the nature of the traffic, i. e., whether it is largely commercial trucks or pleasure automobiles.

Thus not only will the location of future highways be based on this data but the width and maintenance of present roadways will depend on the findings.

Woodcock Will Study Porto Rican Enforcing

(Associated Press.)

Prohibition Director Woodcock said yesterday he would sail from New York today for Porto Rico to determine what should be done about dry-law enforcement there.

Less is known about prohibition conditions in Porto Rico than in any other United States territory, Mr. Woodcock said, and the number of cases turned in by the administrator and three deputies has been unusually small. The prohibition administrator said another problem to be studied there was the effect of the recent withdrawal of the patrol formerly maintained by the Customs Bureau.

Leon Trotzky Declares For Soviet 5-Year Plan

Istanbul, July 8 (A.P.).—Leon Trotzky today declared himself a whole-hearted believer in the success of the Soviet five-year plan.

"Reactionary journals in several countries, especially Poland, Roumania and Greece, have recently published alleged interviews in which I supposedly declared myself an enemy of the five-year plan and the Soviet Union," Trotzky said. "These forged interviews are a total contradiction of my real views, which are sympathetic to the five-year plan and to every means for Soviet Russia's defense."

VIRGINIA INCREASES U. S. TAX PAYMENTS

Colorado Is Only Other State to Boost Returns in Last Year.

Virginia was one of the two States which increased its internal revenue payments in the 1931 fiscal year as the depression dropped the Federal Government's income from that source down more than $500,000 under the preceding twelve months, Maryland's collections, which includes the District of Columbia, dropped off $9,350,151 in a year, Treasury statistics showed yesterday.

Total collections fell from $3,040,145,733 to $2,428,180,220. During the year the Internal Revenue Bureau collected $1,026,443,530 in corporation income taxes, $833,758,110 in individual income taxes and $567,978,579 in miscellaneous taxes.

Virginia and Colorado were apparently the only two States which weathered the storm of depression as far as taxes are concerned. Virginia returned $113,761,372 as compared with $96,[illegible],138 the year before. The State paid $16,157,273 in corporation income taxes, $3,049,480 in individual income taxes, and $94,554,618 in miscellaneous taxes, comprising chiefly stamp taxes on tobacco products.

The State's gain amounted to a $1,792,376 increase from corporation payments, a $1,177,435 decrease in the individual income tax and a $16,452,283 increase in miscellaneous taxes.

Colorado was able to show a gain because of the increase of $4,511,841 in corporation taxes. Individuals paid $1,287,916 less income taxes than last year. Miscellaneous taxes dropped $25,081. The State paid $11,934,765 in corporation income taxes, $3,337,521 in individual taxes and $394,946 in miscellaneous taxes.

All other collection districts showed decreases. The greatest decrease was shown in the Second New York District, comprising that part of Manhattan Island south of Twenty-third street, comprising the financial district.

This district returned $382,945,636 in 1931 as compared with $538,872,184 in the preceding year.

North Carolina returned the greatest amount of miscellaneous taxes due to the huge tobacco tax.

LACK OF RAIN HITS THREE AREAS HARD

U. S. Reopens Drought Relief Loans as Crops Are Reported Hurt.

(Associated Press.)

Three widely separated sections of the Nation are feeling the pinch of acute water shortage.

Drought conditions in the Southwest, centering in Oklahoma, and in the Southeast, centering in Georgia, were said by the Weather Bureau yesterday to have reached a critical stage.

While rains have brought relief to the stricken Northwest, it added, Montana and Wyoming are still parched.

Government drought relief loans have been reopened in North Dakota and Montana to enable farmers to buy feed for live stock. Heavy wheat losses have been suffered in the Northwest States.

Cotton is being damaged in Georgia, and the drought there has overlapped into Alabama and eastern Tennessee.

The South as a whole, J. B. Kincer, Weather Bureau meteorologist, said, is dry and needs a drenching rainfall. It has been deficient in normal precipitation since March.

Serious injury to corn was reported from Oklahoma. Northern Texas and Arkansas also have been affected. Arkansas farmers, who suffered perhaps the greatest hardships in the 1930 drought disaster, received millions in Government loans.

From the Appalachian to the Rocky Mountains there has been a deficiency in rainfall since March. About a third of Kentucky and localities in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois were reported needing rain badly.

Lawsuit for $250,000 Lost by Washingtonian

Providence, R. I., July 8 (A.P.).—A directed verdict for the Lorraine Manufacturing Co., in a $250,000 suit brought by Howe P. Cochran, of Washington, D. C., was upheld today by the State Supreme Court.

In an opinion by Justice John W. Sweeney, the court sustained the action of Judge Leonidas Pouliot, jr., of the Superior Court, directing the jury to return a verdict favoring the company in Cochran's suit to recover for services in adjusting certain of the company's tax matters with the Government. The company maintained it had paid Cochran under two contracts and had given him a $2,500 bonus.

Whether this schedule will be interrupted will depend on the time of departure tomorrow.

ADMIRAL HEMPHILL DIES AT HOME HERE

At 14 Took Part in Chase of Alabama; Cruised on "Old Ironsides."

Rear Admiral Joseph Newton Hemphill, retired veteran of the Civil and Spanish Wars, and one of the last surviving old line Navy officers, died yesterday at his home, 2189 Wyoming avenue northwest.

Admiral Hemphill was 84 years old. He died following a nine-month illness.

Entering the Naval Academy a lad of 14 years, he left Annapolis to take active part in the war between the States, participating in the chase of the Confederate ship Alabama.

The young midshipman returned to the Naval Academy after the war and was graduated in 1868. His first cruise at the academy was aboard the historic Old Ironsides.

Other highlights in the veteran naval officer's early career include action in the Philippine insurrection, where he served aboard the Buffalo, at Manila, and participation in the Andrade-Castro revolution in Venezuela.

Before his retirement, June 18, 1909, Admiral Hemphill was president of the Naval Examining and Retiring Boards. Since he left the service he had made his home in Washington, with occasional trips to his summer home in Canada.

He is survived by one daughter, Miss Oro Joseph Hemphill, of 2139 Wyoming avenue northwest; two stepchildren, Dr. John C. Hancock, of Dubuque, Iowa, and Mrs. Walter H. Allen, wife of Capt. Allen, U. S. N.; and a sister, Mrs. Eugene Wambaugh.

Born in Ripley, Ohio, June 18, 1847, Admiral Hemphill received his appointment to the Naval Academy in 1862. The year following his graduation he was aboard the Monongahela, wrecked in the West Indian earthquake, November, 1867.

He was promoted to the rank of rear admiral in August, 1906. Four years earlier he served as chief of staff of the North Atlantic Fleet, commanding the Kearsarge. He afterward served successively as captain of the New York Navy Yard, president of the board of inspection and survey, commander of the Asiatic Station and Fleet, and president of the Naval Examining and Retiring Boards.

Three Are Injured In Car Accident

Hit-Run Auto Turns Over, but Is Righted and Speeds Away.

Three persons were slightly injured late Tuesday night when the automobile in which they were returning from Chesapeake Beach was struck by a machine coming from the opposite direction. The accident occurred about 6 miles from the resort.

Mrs. Anna Mandes, of 5718 Sixteenth street northwest, was treated at Garfield Hospital for a fracture of the kneecap and minor cuts. Peter Charuhas, 21, of Colorado avenue, and Alvin T. Sheehy, 23, 618 Kenyon street northwest, left Sibley Hospital after treatment for minor injuries. Mr. Charuhas was driving the car, in which the other two were passengers.

It was reported that the car was following another driven by Charles Charuhas, father of Peter, when the third machine, occupied by three or four colored men, sideswiped both cars and overturned. Although injured, the colored men are said to have righted the vehicle and driven away without identifying themselves.

Mercury Hits 91; One Man Stricken

Lower Humidity Accounts for Drop in Number of Prostrations.

While the mercury climbed two degrees to a high of 91 yesterday, the day saw only one heat prostration as compared to Tuesday when three were stricken when the thermometer registered 89. The Weather Bureau reported, however, that the humidity yesterday was much lower than the preceding day.

Jackson Jones, colored, 63 years old, of 1425 Eighth street northwest, was yesterday's heat victim. He was stricken while walking at Tenth and C streets northwest. The Fire Rescue Squad removed him to Emergency Hospital where his condition was not believed to be serious.

The official thermometer registered 77 degrees at 8 p. m., touched Tuesday's high, 89, at 2 p. m., and an hour later stood at 91. Slightly cooler weather is promised for today, the Weather Bureau said.

Alibi Saves Pair In Pay Roll Theft

Detective Aids Two Men Accused in Drug Store Holdup.

Through investigation by Detective Sergt. R. J. Cox, Nicholas Vasilion and Jack Ross, two of the three "hatless bandits" rounded up by police last month, were saved from being charged with a crime of which they were innocent—the $6,500 pay-roll robbery at the Peoples Drug Store, on April 1.

Although five witnesses from the drug company positively stated that Ross and Vasilion were the holdup men, both denied any connection with the robbery and offered alibis.

Because the three youths had readily confessed to the several holdups, but had denied the one in question, Detective Cox refused to accept their identification at its face value. He asked New Jersey police to check the youths' alibi, and yesterday received word that both were at work in Bloomington on April 1. The positive identification by drug-store employes was described by police as a case of mistaken identity.

Two boys and two girls, inmates of the Home Industrial School, escaped last night during a picnic which the institution was holding at Glen Echo Park.

Those who broke for liberty are Ruth Jeffreys, 16; Selma Walker, 14; John Chenoweth, 17, and another youth whose name was not obtained.

'Siamese Twins' Separated By Surgeons and May Live

Baltimore, July 8 (A.P.).—Twin baby girls, who were linked together at birth were separated today by a surgical operation declared to be without parallel in local records.

Indications were the operation was a success, but another will be needed, it was said by Dr. Kyle Colley, who with Drs. E. P. Smith and D. E. Pessano, performed the operation at Mercy Hospital.

"They were just as bright as ever this afternoon," Dr. Colley said, but he would not predict that they would live. The case of the so-called Siamese twins was similar, but they were joined at the back and these at the abdomen.

The mother of the twins is 36 years old. She insisted that the operation be performed, it was said at the hospital. The babies weighed about 4½ pounds each.

VALLEE AND ACTRESS MARRIED SECRETLY

first marriage, to Mrs. Leon Cauchois McCoy, daughter of a wealthy coffee man, ended in annulment in 1928.

Miss Webb came east to visit Rudy in November, 1929, but both vigorously denied rumors at the time that they were anything more than "just friends." When she arrived again last Friday they were all set for the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Vallee, parents of the radio singer, at their West Brook, Me., home, said their son's wedding was no surprise to them as Rudy had "kept company" with Miss Webb "since 1928." Friends said she fell in love with his voice long before she ever met him.

Honeymoon Is Not Planned.

Vallee's parents also said they had met Miss Webb, whom they described as a "charming and very pretty girl," several times in Hollywood and New York.

There will be no honeymoon for the couple at present, it being understood theatrical and singing engagements will make a trip impossible.

Not long ago Vallee expressed the opinion that he was not "fitted for marriage."

Mrs. Herbert Schmidt, of Hoboken, acted as bridesmaid in the ceremony at West Orange. Mrs. Schmidt is a sister of Kenneth Dolan, Vallee's personal representative. Edwin Scheuine stood up with Rudy. The only other guests were William Vallee, the singer's younger brother; Dolan and Judge Hyman Bushel, of New York.

Vallee recently began an engagement in the roof garden of a midtown hotel and has been on the air at all scheduled performances since the wedding.

Spent Fortune on Apartment.

Few of his friends tonight had been informed of the event. Those who knew of it were mostly callers at his elaborate new apartment in Central Park West, where the couple will make their home. Vallee is reported to have spent a considerable fortune in fitting up the place, which looks eastward over the southern end of Central Park.

Since attaining fame as a crooner of songs into a megaphone, Rudy Vallee has been the target of numerous suits ranging from breach of promise proceedings to actions for recovery of wages by discharged employes.

Recently a Miss Pauline Klemp, 71-year-old worker in a religious order, sued the tenor for $25,000, accusing him of using her name in a song over the radio. The suit was dismissed, Vallee's counsel declaring the woman had shallucinations.

The most recent suit brought against Vallee was that of Julius de Vorzon, a violinist, who unsuccessfully sought to recover $640 in back wages allegedly due him.

Osborne Suit Dismissed.

A suit for $200,000 for breach of promise was brought against the crooner by Agnes O'Loughlin, Broadway show girl, last year. This one still is pending. Available records show Vallee has vigorously denied the girl's charges.

Will Osborne, a band leader, sued Vallee for $500,000 for libel in a joint suit brought against the singer, E. P. Dutton & Co., publishers, and the New York Sun, and failed, the suit being dismissed by Judge McGoldrick in March, 1930.

Vallee, who often has expressed an ambition to play two-fisted he-man parts in the moving pictures, has had one other marital venture.

His wife, formerly Mrs. Frank McCoy, nee Miss Leonia Cauchors, obtained an annulment in 1928 and married a naval officer.

Vallee, who was born in Vermont 30 years ago, worked in a moving-picture theater to earn enough to buy his first saxophone.

He came to Broadway in 1928, after his graduation from Yale University, where he matriculated after a year in the University of Maine.

Couple Engaged Two Years.

Santa Monica, Calif., July 8 (U.P.).—Chief of Police Clarence E. Webb, father-in-law of Rudy Vallee, the crooner, said tonight that the marriage of his daughter, Fay Webb, Santa Monica beauty and screen actress, was no surprise to him.

"They've been engaged for two years," Webb said. "We took Fay to the train last Wednesday and she arrived in New York Sunday. She and Rudy called us up Monday night and told us they were married. They promised to write their plans for the future."

"How do you like being Rudy Vallee's father-in-law?" Chief Webb was asked.

"He's a wonderful boy," Webb said. "Mrs. Webb and I are very, very fond of him."

Chief Webb said he did not know where his daughter and the celebrated saxophonist would make their home, but surmised their time would be divided between southern California and New York.

Couple Off to New York By Plane for Wedding

Miss Cora Virginia Motzer and Ralph E. Magruder, both of Clarendon, Va., flew to New York yesterday via the Ludington Air Line and were married at "The Little Church Around the Corner."

The couple returned to Washington late last night and, today will journey to Annapolis and from there to Maple Hall, near Claiborne, Md., where they will spend the remainder of the month with Mrs. J. Bart Campbell, sister of the bride. Mr. and Mrs. Magruder will make their home in Washington.

CRIME BOARD HITS TRAINING SCHOOLS

Report of Wickersham Commission Lists Faults of Local Institutions.

Frequent outbreaks at the National Training School for Girls, often quelled by handcuffing offenders and locking them in their dismal rooms at the Muirkirk, Md., institution, were hit yesterday in the last report of the Wickersham Commission.

All three of the penal institutions for juveniles near Washington came in for criticism by the investigators. The National Training School for Girls, the National Training School for Boys, and the branch of the girls' institution for colored offenders, however, apparently are no worse than the majority of other places for housing Federal prisoners, but the commission considered conditions so bad that in conclusion it recommended that handling of juvenile delinquency be turned back to the States.

The population at the white girls' training school varies between 12 and 25, including infants born to girls serving sentences there, the report states.

The commission found that no adequate program of school, vocational training, recreation or outdoor life was provided and that the maintenance tasks occupied the inmates for only a short time. The remainder of their day could only be occupied in idleness, sewing or reading.

Details of Conditions Found.

"One of the girls' rooms seen had the panels of the doors kicked out; another had the electric wiring torn out; most of the doors have extra wooden reinforcements," the report declared.

"The front door is barred, three locks have to be turned before the building may be entered; windows are covered with heavy wire grating.

"Punishment rooms are in the basement. Girls are sometimes put in handcuffs, possibly a necessary precaution when suicide is threatened, and the exposed hot water pipes overhead offer opportunity. There is no psychiatrist; the monotony of life and the restricted activities cause frequent outbreaks and disturbance which the white men employes are called upon to quell."

As for the branch of the school located in the District—set aside for colored girls—the commission found that "the dismal restrictive appearance of the place reflects its spirit."

The department is housed in four cottages with single rooms, 6 by 12 feet. In these, the report asserts, the girls are locked at night and have to lay their clothing on the floor outside their rooms. In addition they are locked in their rooms during portions of each day.

Medical Service Lacking.

The commission found that there were nineteen acres of ground for the institution, but said that during the winter there was little outdoor work or play. The report declared that the girls were supposed to have three hours of school during the winter, but when the place was visited in October, 1930, there were no classes in session.

"There is no recreational director," it continued, "no gymnasium, no intercottage sports. Discipline appears for the most part punishment in cells, of which there are six in a separate wing.

"Medical service is given by a visiting woman physician twice a week. The school has no hospital, and no trained nurse, although a large proportion of the girls are venereally diseased. Babies are cared for by their mothers in their own rooms."

The National Training School for Boys is apparently the best of the three institutions, but the report found that this place had wandered afield from its stated purpose in an early report "that the discipline shall be that of the family, the school, the workshop and the farm, and not of a prison. The inmates are to be watched over as pupils and not guarded as prisoners or criminals, and there shall be no more restraint than shall be necessary to develop good qualities."

Shackling of Boys Alleged.

"In May, 1930, it was evident disciplinary restraints had developed beyond the parental limits fixed in 1866," the Wickersham report declared. "News papers charged shackling of boys in leg irons and misuse of the flogging system in vogue; a new superintendent was appointed. The board voted to do away with corporal punishment; six detention cells were substituted to guard against escapes.

"The plan of the board at present is to give the boys a more active program of academic education and work, to have sports and motion pictures, to give them better food and to transfer the more serious cases of discipline to other institutions.

"It is a matter of interpretive comment," the report states, "that the harshest punishments are found usually in the institutions for the reform of young children."

The commission found that the housing at the school was of the cottage type and that the dormitories were so crowded that the cubic air space is probably in violation of proper health regulations.

"The night supervisor is placed on a gallery porch above the dormitory, an arrangement unsatisfactory for the requirements of mental hygiene.

"While the family homes are spotlessly clean, light and airy, the indoor time of the boys is spent for the most part in basement rooms, dingy and unattractive. The central dining room is poorly lighted, crowded and dismal; the kitchen antiquated, damp and insanitary."

Other institutions were hit just as hard as those at Washington. The reformatory at Chillicothe was described as in poor repair, crowded and insanitary and not fireproof. The hospital space was said to be crowded and inadequate and the clothing so poor that boys from warm climates suffered greatly from exposure.

PROBE INTO JAILING OF CONSUL PRESSED

Governor of Illinois Orders Investigation of Term Given Mexican.

Chicago, July 8 (A.P.).—United States and Mexican diplomatic circles marked time today in the jailing of Adolfo Dominguez, acting Mexican consul in Chicago, until an investigation launched by Gov. Louis L. Emmerson on request of the Department of State is completed.

Dominguez sentenced to six months in the county jail yesterday by Municipal Judge Thomas A. Green for contempt of court because he allegedly created a disturbance in court, was at liberty on his own recognizance and preparing a report of the affair to the Mexican Embassy at Washington, which plans a formal protest to the State Department. He was released on a writ issued by Criminal Court Judge Joseph Burke.

Judge Green challenged the jurisdiction of Judge Burke in releasing the acting consul, asserting that "not even the President of the United States has the right to interfere with my jurisdiction in a direct contempt case."

(Associated Press.)

Officials of the State Department and the Mexican Embassy yesterday awaited a report from Illinois authorities before deciding what action could be taken in the sentencing of Adolfo Dominguez, acting Mexican consul in Chicago for contempt of court.

Ambassador Tellez said he had notified his foreign office of the six months' sentence given Dominguez by Municipal Judge Thomas Green and had appealed to the State Department for his release.

The State Department requested Gov. Emmerson to telegraph a report of the incident. Officials here expected to send the governor's report to the Mexican Embassy for transmission to the Mexican foreign office. Any additional action would probably await a formal protest from that country after it receives the report.

Precedents Are Sought.

Dominguez was given the sentence because he insisted upon speaking after the judge had ordered him to be silent. He served two hours before being released on a writ of habeas corpus.

Meantime Green H. Hackworth, solicitor of the State Department, searched through the codes today to see whether the Federal or State tribunals had jurisdiction in the case, but could find no clear-cut decision.

The only positive ruling found was that Federal courts had "original jurisdiction" over all suits against consuls or vice consuls and that the consular representatives could appeal an adverse decision in another court to a Federal court.

BUS FIRM VALUATION TO AID IN FARE CASE

tire of its buses as 3½ years. In accordance with this estimate, all of the equipment then in use would now be obsolete.

The $895,959.63 District valuation placed in the bill of complaint in the fare case classified the major items as follows: Physical property, $648,310.84; working capital, approximately $83,000; intangibles, $163,000.

Harley P. Wilson owns almost 100 per cent of the stock of the bus company, though it has been charged that he is holding it for the North American Co., which controls the Washington Railway & Electric Co., which in turn owns the Potomac Electric Power Co. The North American Co., of which Mr. Wilson is a director, first acquired control of the bus company, but had to turn it over to Mr. Wilson because of a provision of the LaFollette antimerger act.

The Washington Rapid Transit Co. owns 57 buses which operate in various parts of the Capital and nearby Maryland and Virginia.

TEACHING BY FILMS IS GIVEN TEST HERE

Experimental Talkies Deal With Life of Frog and Glacier Behavior.

The second sound movie examination for 96 grammar school graduates from all parts of the United States and the District of Columbia will be held at Corocoran Hall of George Washington University at 9 o'clock this morning.

The first examination was conducted yesterday morning. The final one will be given tomorrow morning. Then the United States Bureau of Education will decide on the value of the new medium of education, basing its deductions on the results of the examination.

If the conclusion is reached that the students can learn certain subjects more quickly through the pictures than from a textbook, the Fox Film Corporation, producers of the films now being used, will start making a talkie library for school use, it was announced.

The movie lessons yesterday were confined to the life of a frog and the development and behavior of glaciers. The lessons were taught by a teacher at a blackboard, in the film, with flashes to the actual phenomena the instructor was describing. After the pictures were shown the students were given an examination on what they had seen. After "school," the pupils went to the White House, where they met President Hoover, who is sponsoring the demonstration.

The science film was prepared by Dr. Clyde Fisher, of the American Museum of Natural History. The glacier picture was accompanied by a lecture from Dr. Wallace W. Atwood, president of Clark University. Joseph M. Dixon, Acting Secretary of the Interior, told the contestants that Government officials feel that visual education can quicken the processes of education and materially improve educational methods. The tests are being conducted by the Department of the Interior through the United States Commissioner of Education in cooperation with George Washington University.

Police Lieut. Thomas McGrath, who was elevated to his present rank July 1, was ordered retired yesterday by District Commissioners upon reaching the age of 64 years. He was granted a pension of $127.08 a month from the Policemen's and Firemen's Relief Fund.

Sergt. Horace W. Lineburg, former president of the Policeman's Association, was promoted to the rank of lieutenant to replace McGrath. He had been above his predecessor on the list of eligibles for promotion prior to July 1, but he had consented to step aside for McGrath because of the latter's pending retirement.

20 Cylinders of Oxygen Fail to Save Small Boy

New York, July 8 (A.P.).—The last of three emergency squads which labored for hours after 3½-year old Walter Cerkrenik had been pronounced dead of an electric shock, gave up its effort to resuscitate him late today.

Twenty empty cylinders of oxygen told of the persistent fight made by the rescue workers after a physician at noon had advised the boy's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cerkrenik, and their five other small children, that the boy was beyond recovery. The child was shocked this morning when he sought to pull the plug of a floor lamp out of a wall outlet.

*Consider your Adam's Apple!!

Don't Rasp Your Throat With Harsh Irritants

"Reach for a LUCKY instead"

Place your finger on your Adam's Apple. You are actually touching your larynx—this is your voice box—it contains your vocal chords. When you consider your Adam's Apple, you are considering your throat—your vocal chords. Don't rasp your throat with harsh irritants. Reach for a LUCKY instead.

Here is what one of America's great scientists, whom we retained to study LUCKY STRIKE'S manufacturing process, says about the mellowing effect of Ultra Violet Rays which are included in our exclusive "TOASTING" process:

"The effects of this ultra violet treatment on the tobacco have been tested and are found to involve an increase in what is called the 'mildness' of the tobacco."

One of America's greatest writers and editors says this:

"When I visited Reidsville and went through the LUCKY STRIKE plant, I found one explanation for the growth of LUCKY STRIKE. Your use of the Ultra Violet Ray in the 'Toasting' of tobaccos is a splendid example of achievement. It is the new order of the day."

Remember, LUCKY STRIKE is the only cigarette in America which offers you the throat protection of the exclusive "TOASTING" Process—that secret heating process which expels certain harsh irritants present in all raw tobaccos, and which includes the extra mellowing benefits of modern Ultra Violet Rays. And so we say "Consider your Adam's Apple." Be careful in your choice of cigarettes.

INSUBANCE COMPANY SUES FORMER HEADS

National Benefit Alleges Reckless Investment of Firm's Funds.

Directors of the National Benefit Life Insurance Co., a colored corporation with assets listed at $6,000,000 yesterday at a special meeting at the home office, 609 F street northwest, directed officers to file suit against certain former directors who served, at various periods, from 1923 until June 17 of this year, when John T. Risher succeeded R. H. Rutherford as president. The suit was filed by Houston & Houston, Howard & Hayes, and Benjamin L. Gaskins, counsel for the insurance company.

C. B. Lee, Louis Washington and William Newman, directors, were named as defendants, as was Dr. William A. Warfield, surgeon-in-chief of Freedmen's Hospital, who resigned as director June 17.

Other Defendants Named.

Others named as defendants included R. H. Rutherford, former president; S. W. Rutherford, founder, and former chairman of the board of directors; Mortimer F. Smith, former assistant secretary and comptroller; Ida Johnson Burke, Martha Lowery, John W. Roxborough, John H. Braxton, former directors; Miles M. Dawson, actuary; Miles M. Dawson & Son, Inc., and Clara Christopher, who recently attached approximately $100,000 in notes and moneys of the Rutherfords and Smith, principally in the Franklin National Bank.

Alfred B. Dawson, son of Miles Dawson, actuary, committed suicide June 21 in New York. His advice and connivance, it was charged in the bill of complaint, is responsible for all acts of officers and directors of the National Benefit Life Insurance Co. over a period of years.

Reckless Investment Charged.

The partnership of Miles Dawson & Son was charged with actively aiding and abetting a syndicate, known as Rutherford, Smith & Rutherford, in illegal schemes, instead of preserving and protecting the interest of the company as actuaries. Former directors, it was alleged, had caused to be paid to this partnership more than $300,000 in three years.

The bill charges, among other things, that reckless and improper investment of funds of the insurance firm were made; that false statements were made to the superintendents of insurance of the District of Columbia and other States; that Rutherford, Smith & Rutherford swore the capital stock of the corporation had all been subscribed and paid for, when 8,631 shares had not been subscribed for in good faith and had not been paid for in whole or in part, and that knowing only 8,631 shares of capital stock existed, an agreement was made to purchase, or pretend to purchase, 9,000 shares from the company at $50 a share.

Attorneys for the company asked that defendants be enjoined and restrained from disposing of any stock or property in their possession, or any securities; that the purported sales of 9,000 shares be revoked, and that Rutherford, Smith & Rutherford be required to account to the insurance company for any and all money which has come into their hands since 1923.

an honorable discharge with a perfect record for two decades of service to his country.

During the more than twelve years which have elapsed since the armistice, Anderson suffered from migraine, chronic headaches. Some time ago he lost the use of his right arm. He became despondent.

Tuesday morning he left his home at 918 K street northeast, telling his family he was going to get a shave. When the hours wore on and he did not return they became alarmed and notified police.

Nothing more was seen of the 50-year-old veteran until his body was found last night by Talley, who lives on Riggs street near Fourteenth northwest. It was removed to the Morgue.

The widow, Mrs. Isabell Anderson, and a daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil A. Brewton, survive. They had not completed funeral arrangements last night, but said burial would be in Arlington National Cemetery.

INSTITUTE SPEAKERS URGE LEAGUE ENTRY

Editor and Pastor Say Time Is Ripe for America to Fight War.

University, Va., July 8 (A.P.).—Early entrance of the United States into the League of Nations was urged by an editor and a minister addressing the Institute of Public Affairs tonight.

Kirby Page, of New York, editor of the World Tomorrow, said "the international situation demands" our entrance into the league and a "complete break with the war system and utter reliance upon the peace system." He added that clinging to armaments is like remaining on sinking ships, and "we ought to repudiate and abandon the war system and be prepared to run risks inherent in sole reliance upon pacific means of settling international disputes."

The Rev. M. Ashby Jones, pastor of the Second Baptist Church, of St. Louis, Mo., said: "Let us grant, for the sake of argument, that we would risk our sovereignty, our wealth and the lives of our youth by entering the gates of the League of Nations. After all is said, here is the one and only permanent council table where the children of men can meet within an atmosphere of reason, submit their controversies and test their ideals and dreams for a world peace and good will. It is worth any risk to accept such a dare in such a matchless adventure."

He added, however, that the ten-year record of the league made it "seem absurd to suggest even that our Government would take any risk in signing its covenant."

Mr. Page also asserted that an adequate peace program "demands a department of peace in our Federal Government to coordinate with the War Department, Navy Department, Department of Justice and others. At the head of this department there should be a secretary of peace, a regular member of the Cabinet."

Stating that support of the Army and Navy costs the United States $700,000,000 annually, Mr. Page advocated a $100,000,000 annual appropriation for his proposed peace department and outlined a plan for expending this money in a dual program of supervising an extensive plan of peace education and cultivating friendly relations with the peoples of other nations.

GAS-HOLDER LABOR PROMISED LOCALLY

Baltimore Firm on $265,000 Job Will Spend Most of Wages Here.

Eighty per cent of the money paid out in wages on the $265,000 gas holder now under construction for the Washington Gas Light Co. will go to local labor, the Bartlett Hayward Co., which contracted for the work, announced yesterday.

This statement came in reply to queries by the gas company after organized labor in the District had voiced fears that with a Baltimore firm handling the job local men would not get employment on the project.

Frank A. Woodhead, vice president of the utilities concern, had notified the contractors that it is the desire of the gas company that "local labor be used on the holder in so far as possible."

John Mason, vice president of the Bartlet Hayward Co., replied not only that 80 per cent of the pay roll would go to Capital workers, but denied that wages would be cut to "panic levels," and declared that his firm would pay "the same wage it has always paid for the same work under similar conditions, even during boom periods when labor is scarce."

"We have given the contract to the Bartlett, Hayward Co., of Baltimore," said George A. G. Wood, president of the Washington Gas Light Co., "as there was no local firm qualified to handle the job. We have requested Bartlett Hayward Co. to give special consideration to local labor, and they have assured us that it is their intention to do so. Further than that we are not in a position to go.

"We have made our position and desires in the matter very clear. One of the reasons for building the holder at this time was to supply more work for Washington men."

has been retained by the Star to represent it against the threatened suits.

The battle against the utility companies, many of which are subsidiaries of Doherty's billion-dollar corporation, threatened to flare up in Oklahoma and possibly Missouri also. Gov. W. H. Murray, of Oklahoma, announced at Oklahoma City tonight that he would be willing to throw his influence behind a three-State compact to force lower gas rates. Oklahoma, Kansas and Missouri should unite in the fight, Gov. Murray said.

"In barring Cities Service stock from sale in the State, Kansas has struck a death blow at Doherty. I am glad to say the Oklahoma Legislature has passed a bill applying to these utility securities, which will become a law on July 10," Murray said.

The Star stood its ground, continuing its attack on Doherty and his Cities Service interests in its editorial columns.

"The main issue of the gas fights is, of course, reduction of gas rates to the consumer from their present war level," the Star said editorially. "But in the background is the arrogance of great corporate interests that hold themselves above government. Fundamentally, the question is whether control of a billion dollars puts a man above criticism, above Government regulation, above the state.

"In his attitude, 'the king can do no wrong,' Henry L. Doherty is living in a past age. He has still to discover that in this country the Government can enforce the just rights of the people—even against a billion dollars."

DEFECTS ARE FOUND IN 5 NEW CRUISERS

the assessment of costs will be a matter of Government bookkeeping.

All of the six cruisers with stern castings of the type found defective were launched within the past two years. They were constructed at the following yards: Northampton, Bethlehem Shipbuilding Corporation; Chester, American Brown Boveri Electric Corporation; Louisville, Puget Sound Navy Yard; Chicago, Mare Island Navy Yard; Houston (the only one which has developed no stern casting defects) and the Augusta, Newport News Shipbuilding & Dry Dock Corporation.

The cruisers were constructed under the 1927 authorization act, which placed a cost limit of $11,000,000 apiece on the hulls and machinery. Detailed figures as to total cost, including armament, were not available yesterday, but it was said at the Navy Department a fair estimate would be between $13,000,000 and $14,000,000 apiece.

Pending the outcome of the current investigation, it was said, consideration is being given to the possible use of a different design for the stern castings of the eight other 10,000-ton cruisers authorized, some of which are now under construction.

PARIS TOMB SPEECH DEFENDED BY MAYOR

Oregon Executive Holds Act Was Not in Violation of Custom.

New York, July 8 (A.P.).—Mayor George L. Baker, of Portland, Oreg., arriving today from a tour of Europe, stopped chuckling at some of his experiences long enough to denounce critics who said he was the only man who ever made a speech at the Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Paris.

"It's true I did make a brief speech," he said. "I referred to the heroic dead of France and the United States. Then I concluded with the Lord's Prayer. If it is against the rules to say the Lord's Prayer in a place like that, I have no apologies to make.

"As a matter of fact, I learned afterward that 30 or 40 speeches have been made there."

No one told Mayor Baker that it was not customary to make speeches at the tomb, said Henri Prince, New York hotel man, who also arrived on the liner Ile de France. Mr. Prince represented Mayor Walker in a group of American mayors who recently toured France as the guests of that nation.

Mr. Baker chuckled when a reporter told him a few of the other mayors, who returned to this country some time ago, complained because he made too many of the speeches.

"I'll tell you about that," he said, smiling broadly at the reporters. "If somebody scoops you, you get sore. It was just that way. Every time I'd make a speech I'd get in a lot about Portland the beautiful, Portland the city of roses. I was there representing Portland and I was going to see her get her deserts."

Asked about his attitude toward the wine problem while abroad, the mayor said he upheld the motto, "When in Rome do as the Romans do."

Both Mayor Baker and Mr. Prince, anxious to do something to show their appreciation for French hospitality, adopted two orphan boys while abroad. They intend to pay for their education in France until they are 16 and then bring them to the United States if they want to come.

BITUMINOUS HEADS TO CONFER ON ILLS

Meet Today at Suggestion of Hoover; Red Cross Refuses Relief.

(Associated Press.)

A discussion of far-reaching possibilities on the ills of the bituminous coal industry will begin here today under the sponsorship of the Government.

At the suggestion of President Hoover operators representing all the major fields will assemble to see if a common ground can be found for a later meeting of the operators, laborers and other interested elements.

An appeal for the extension of relief to children of strikers in western Pennsylvania was rejected yesterday by Chairman Payne, of the Red Cross, who said this lay outside the scope of his organization's activities.

Answering a letter from Gov. Pinchot of Pennsylvania, who made the request, Chairman Payne said the charter of the Red Cross limited its work to disasters "classed as acts of God." The relief in question, he said, should be extended by other agencies.

Today's conference grew indirectly from an appeal to President Hoover that a general meeting be called to discuss means of rehabilitating the bituminous coal industry, which has been badly hit by overproduction and labor troubles.

The appeal to the President came from John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers of America. President Hoover turned the proposal over to Secretaries Lamont and Doak. Lamont called the conference a few days ago. About a dozen operators accepted invitations.

Gov. Pinchot told Mr. Payne the children of the western Pennsylvania mining district were suffering from lack of food. The situation, he said, has developed into a general calamity requiring the assistance of the Red Cross.

Replying, Mr. Payne said that if the Red Cross were to attempt to care for every situation it "soon would find itself unable to do its real work."

"The Red Cross can not do everything," Mr. Payne added, telling the Pennsylvania Governor local and county agencies should take up the work.

Rotarians Told Of Car Title Law

Van Duzer Explains How New Regulation Will Affect District.

William A. Van Duzer, new director of public vehicles and traffic, was guest of honor yesterday at a meeting of the Washington Rotary Club at the Willard Hotel. S. Percy Thompson, president of the organization, presided.

Mr. Van Duzer said there are roughly 26 million automobiles in the United States, 18 million of which, in 24 States, are titled by law. This reduces automobile insurance 25 per cent, he said. A new District regulation, which goes into effect next year, will trace the identity of cars from the factory to user by engine and serial number. He urged citizens to promptly secure a bill of sale or title certificate for their automobiles.

The club's new executive officers were introduced. Election to the board of E. S. Goodloe to succeed John C. Letts, resigned, was announced.

POLITICAL HOLIDAY ENDS.

Senator Joseph T. Robinson wants the world to know that he is not one of the Democrats who indorsed President Hoover's holiday on war debts and reparations. The Arkansan brought such an avalanche of grief upon his head by promising last November to cooperate with the President on measures aimed at improving the economic situation that no one would expect to find him in the role of nonpartisan savior again. There is no indication that Senator Robinson will oppose the moratorium, but for reasons that politicians best understand he may be expected to remain aloof from anything that smacks of cooperation, and to manifest aggressive devotion to Democratic policies.

His denunciation of the Republican tariff policy marks the end of the moratorium on politics which has been in effect since President Hoover first announced his proposal. Mr. Robinson rushed in to be first to stir the placid waters. With a great splash he flung wild charges against the Smoot-Hawley act and directed subtle insinuations against the Farm Board. Apparently his purpose was merely to strike the first blow at the administration in the reopening of hostilities, regardless of where that blow might fall.

Under the circumstances reckless statements could be expected. It is Senator Robinson the emotional orator and banner waver who shouts that the tariff is not only largely responsible for the depression, but is the cause of a "slaughter" of foreign trade. Had he been more deliberate he would not have so completely exposed himself to counterattack. The senator must know (for the facts are available to any one who cares to look at them) that export trade has declined in almost exact ratio to domestic production; that in spite of the tariff American purchases from foreign countries are holding up a little better than is domestic business. But what are facts to a senator who has to overcome a reputation for cooperating with the opposing party?

Mr. Robinson was particularly vicious when he lashed out at the protective policy for agriculture. As a senator he is well aware of the fact that a large percentage of the higher duties in the Smoot-Hawley act are for the benefit of agriculture. The average increase allowed on farm products was about three times as large as that allowed to manufacturing industries. This is reflected in the results of the tariff act. Doesn't the senator know that agriculture has a favorable balance of trade for the first time in many years? The favorable balance of exports over imports to which industry is accustomed is gradually diminishing, while agriculture is steadily enlarging its ratio of exports to imports. Would the senator like to have the duties on farm products reduced so that the excessive crops from all the world could be dumped upon the American market while other nations maintained tariffs against American crops?

The public will probably discount the substance of Senator Robinson's declaration. It is well known that he was merely trying to dislodge any suspicion that he had again become tainted by cooperation. The absence of fact, logic or sound argument in his vituperation can be excused. Now that the senator has vindicated himself in the eyes of Democracy perhaps he will get down to brass tacks.

OLD GLORY ON THE SEA.

The Stars and Stripes have again taken a leading place on the high seas. The United States Shipping Board has issued information showing that American-flag ships sail regularly from 16 Atlantic ports, from 18 Gulf ports, and from 29 Pacific Coast ports, a growth since the World War that is amazing. This statement from the Shipping Board also informs the public that 40 foreign ports now have from 5 to 15 daily United States flag services, while only 11 such ports had regular service prior to the war. American ships sail into the ports of every civilized country of the globe. They bear American-made goods and products abroad and bring hither the merchandise from many lands to enrich American homes.

This growth of American shipping under the Stars and Stripes is having a beneficial effect on commerce and exchange of commodities over the established trade routes of the old continents. From Paris also comes the information that beginning next October passenger fares for first-class travel on the Atlantic will be reduced 25 per cent to meet the competition of American lines. Germany alone of the European maritime nations opposed this reduction, but seems compelled to yield.

American seamen and American prowess stamped their impress on remote sections of the globe more than a century ago. Articles of commerce produced by the genius of American citizens have found a market wherever man seeks to improve his conditions in life. It was the arrogance of competitive nations that interrupted the growth of our merchant marine and caused it to fall into decay. The World War demonstrated the needs of rebuilding it. Congress appropriated money to meet that emergency and an enterprising commercial spirit among the people has made the development of a new modern fleet possible.

This growth in the American merchant marine can but have a salutary effect on American prosperity and stimulate American business to a greater degree than it has hitherto known.

REBUILDING THE CAPITAL.

Washington's unrivaled building program, marking a second era in the development of the Capital, will, when completed, give to the world its most interesting example of man's accomplishment in city planning. Within 140 years from the laying of its foundation this seat of the Republic finds itself in the midst of a construction program the like of which no other nation's capital has ever witnessed. When, at the end of the next fifteen years, the $150,000,000 which Congress has already authorized has been put to use, Washington will have no rival for architectural grandeur. Its beauty will be enhanced also by the rebuilding of some of its parks, avenues and public gardens.

It required 66 years to construct the Capitol, and the Washington Monument was 40 years in building. But with modern methods and enlarged facilities, construction engineers plan to make Washington a model city within a quarter of a century. The Internal Revenue Building has been completed at a cost of some $6,000,000; the building for the Department of Commerce is now in its last stages of construction at a cost of $17,000,000; the Department of Agriculture Building is going up at a total cost of $14,000,000; the House Office Building annex, now under construction, will cost $10,000,000; the Senate Office Building is receiving its delayed courts and colonnades at a total cost of nearly $2,000,000. Other contracts are to be let. Besides this, there have been nearly 100 city blocks of property condemned and taken over by the Government at the cost of many millions of dollars.

The Government is not confining its construction work to Washington. Postoffice and customs buildings are now under construction in nearly every State and embassy buildings are being constructed in many foreign capitals.

This building period represents the growth of the Nation. Founders of the Government feared that money expended for only temporary buildings might be lost to an invader or an enemy at home. But as the Government has grown strong and great the construction of large establishments has become necessary to house it. Washington rejoices in taking a leading role among the world's capitals in keeping with the standing of the United States in the family of nations.

UNREST IN THE SOUTH.

In various spots Latin-American nerves are on edge again. The wave of revolutionary sentiment that swept around South America two summers ago is varied with a new threat of rupture between Bolivia and Paraguay over 100,000 square miles of border land in the Chaco claimed by both countries. The United States and various South American republics have been urging mediation, and Argentina has made a positive offer to act in this capacity. Recall of diplomatic representatives has not resulted in a military clash, and the pressure of neighboring states for settlement by arbitration may avert war.

The Cuban situation continues to cause increasing tension throughout the island. Additional precautionary measures taken in Havana indicate that the government is fully apprised of threatened outbreaks. Patrols have been doubled and trusted machine gun reserves posted in the capital. The recent departure from Cuba of the families of prominent leaders known to oppose the government has added to the belief that hostilities of some sort are contemplated. The greatest hope for peaceful settlement is that the Conservatives will attend sessions of the House of Representatives this week and complete a quorum, so that consideration of proposed constitutional reforms may go forward.

With revolt cropping out again in several districts in Peru, the Lima provisional government is energetically engaged in restoring order. It was in August a year ago that President Leguia was deposed. Since then five revolutionary, self-constituted presidents have occupied the palace and a state of almost constant disorder has prevailed. As a result demoralization of business and consequent economic and financial dislocation have left the country in a lamentable condition.

On the other side of the continent Argentina's situation apparently has improved. President Uriburu has met all charges on the foreign debt and his announcement of projected reforms that will be urged following the November elections has somewhat mollified political opposition. The proposals contemplate restrictions upon executive authority so as to prevent assumption of dictatorial powers. The momentary lull in South American belligerency may mean that the trouble spots are working out their difficulties peaceably. It is to be hoped it is not the traditional quietude before the tempest.

MOTION PICTURES IN CHINA.

The effect of motion pictures on American audiences, especially children, is much discussed in this country. Questions as to the suitability of films are regarded with equal concern abroad. Notably in the Orient moving pictures have become an important influence in the public estimate of the white races. Lord Irwin, former Viceroy of India, believes that motion pictures are one of the three main causes of the declining respect for the white man in the Orient.

Sections that have been inaccessible to most innovations of the machine age are gradually relinquishing their isolation and reports of new markets for films reach this country. The Department of State has received a communication from the American Consul in South China, describing the development of the industry in that section. It will be interesting to watch the effect of the cinematograph on these people who have heretofore been virtually unacquainted with it.

Inhabitants of isolated districts judge Occidentals by the dramatic persons and sensational situations they have seen in the movies. They are unaware that the uneventful everyday life of a normal American family does not provide thrilling entertainment and, therefore, is not the material sought by producers whose business it is to amuse.

As yet the 17,000,000 Chinese living in the district of Yunnanfu have been little influenced by American movies, for they have but one theater where motion pictures are shown. French pictures were displayed there as early as 1922, but in 1925, after two establishments burned, causing several deaths, the authorities of the town placed a ban on all films.

It was not until this year that the business was resumed. A new theater, constructed along modern lines, has been opened and in January the first American film was shown. It was of the early Charley Chaplin variety and was greeted with much interest. Since then the Kueng Bua Motion Picture Theater has been playing to capacity houses. Foreign residents in the town are watching with interest the psychological effects on the natives.

WASHINGTON VETERANS.

Twice great veterans' organizations that grew out of the World War have honored Washingtonians with highest national office. Several years ago the American Legion chose Gen. James A. Drain, a distinguished soldier, as its head, and now E. C. Babcock, who played a notable part in the history of the Rainbow Division, has been elected commander of the Disabled American Veterans.

As the only group of disabled of any war ever recognized by Congressional enactment, the D. A. V. occupies a unique position and exercises a good influence in the solution of problems incident to the treatment of those who bear the scars of wars, their dependents, widows and orphans. Commander Babcock's assurances to the veterans' administration that during the coming year a spirit of cooperation will dominate the relations of the disabled with the Government indicates that the D. A. V. will perform a public service by reconciling differences that may arise.

Washington is proud of the honor bestowed upon its citizens by the former service men.

Think what a fine time Post and Gatty will have telling what might have happened to them.

OLD LONDON BRIDGE

From the London Times.

One hundred years ago this journal wrote very heartlessly about old London Bridge. The new bridge, some 30 and odd yards westward of it, was all but finished; and as soon as it was opened the contractors would begin to pull the old bridge down, "and it is supposed that in less than twelve months not a vestige of it will be seen." And in rather more than twelve months not a vestige of it was seen. The whole thing, including the remains of Peter de Colechurch, its twelfth century founder, architect and master, was dissipated and destroyed, save for a fragment or two at the north end, which was covered up. Since the present century knocked those fragments to pieces as soon as they were by chance uncovered, it would be dangerous to make too much of the nineteenth century's callousness about so famous a piece of antiquity; and there is still less excuse when it is remembered that the bridge then tottering to decay had lost most of such features as might be venerable. Gone were all the houses. A fire in 1632 near the north end had left a gap which saved the remaining medieval buildings from the Great Fire; but in the next half century or so they were all rebuilt, and by 1762 they were all pulled down. Gone, centuries before, the chapel of St. Thomas a Becket; gone the "new" stone gate (new when the bridge was 200 years old), and the "great" stone gate, and the last of the heads of "traitors"—and of saints and heroes—which had topped them. Gone were Nonesuch House, and the Square, the watermills and the corn-mills, and even the dull George II. houses built by George Dance the elder.

What was left in 1831 was exactly what is left today—which is memories, records, legends, all the immaterial matter of romance—with the addition of two very material evils: the main highways of a great city, of which one was very steep and very narrow and the other was exceeding dangerous. A year or two earlier George Borrow had stood upon London Bridge. He had thought it "very wide" (its original 20 feet had by then been increased to 31), but all too narrow for the concourse upon it. He looked down upon whirlpools, tremendous gulfs, bellowing, foaming and frothing; he saw with horror a boat in the strangling vortex and marveled at its escape. If his account of it in "Lavengro" be suspected of exaggeration, let it be remembered that both Cardinal Wolsey and Samuel Johnson, neither of them a coward, avoided going under the bridge, and that disasters there were frequent. As time went on the "starlings," or outworks of piles protecting the piers, were enlarged until the channels between them became very narrow; and the fall of the water seems only to have been increased by the knocking down of piers in 1830, mentioned in our extract, and by the previous making of the "Great Arch" in the last years of King George II. For six centuries old London Bridge had always been breaking down, as if to justify the song which some believe to be even older than old London Bridge. It was time that it should be replaced by Rennie's work, which was not only "dictated by a very refined taste," but was also made nearly twice as wide as the old bridge and with five arches instead of twenty. London Bridge was broken down; yet we of today possess old London Bridge in a measure in which no age that saw it could ever possess it. We possess it all, in all its phases, with all its joys and sorrows and triumphs and horrors; and now it is secure against time and change, since it is turned into a memory and an idea.

THE CHOICE.

Last night I dreamed an angel came to me
And said: "A joy I've come to take away.
God thinks you richer than you ought to be,
But he has left to you the right to say
Which of your treasures you can easiest spare,
Your money, or your health, or loved ones fair?

"Think carefully before you speak the word.
Perhaps your eyesight you'd be glad to lose?
Those ears which catch the softly spoken word,
To give them up you possibly may choose?
If money means all happiness, no doubt
There's something else you'd rather do without."

The angel stood beside my bed and smiled.
"Think well," she said, "before the word you give.
Suppose I take your lovely wife or child
And leave you with your riches still to live?"
"No, No!" I cried. "Since it is mine to choose—Money's the cheapest joy I have to lose."

If You Dam a River in One Place, You Flood a Valley Somewhere Else.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

NATURE labors constantly to preserve her law of balance.

In China there are more people than the land can support. Any increase in the population means that more people must die of starvation. The Red Cross tried to relieve famine sufferers, but at last gave up hope because those who are saved by alien charity increase and multiply the number who must live on charity or famish.

Nature keeps the balance by eliminating those the land can't feed. Interfering with her plan serves only to make bad matters worse.

When the population in any land becomes too dense, the people covet more territory and quarrel with their neighbors. The result is war and a reduction of the population.

And when the population becomes too dense in any small area, the result is poverty and disease that eliminate the surplus.

The same law rules in fixing the price of commodities.

When grain is scarce, men bid against one another to obtain it and the poor suffer because the price is high. But the promise of a high price encourages farmers to plant more, and the result is a surplus the world can not consume and a consequent drop in price.

That is the law, and any violation of it is followed by punishment.

Governments have attempted to fix a high price for various commodities, but in every case the high price has encouraged greater production. And when producers found themselves burdened with stocks they could not sell, they forgot the "fixed price" and offered their wares at any price they could get.

The experiments served only to prove that nature is wiser and stronger than governments.

The law of balance is a natural law, and those who interfere with it invite a penalty.

Because the world is now in difficulty, statesmen are devising various artificial schemes to effect a "readjustment."

Their efforts will do more harm than good.

Every plan that interferes with the free exchange of goods or the law of supply and demand or free and fair competition and the survival of the fittest is an unlawful plan that causes somebody to suffer a penalty.

The easiest way to work out our salvation is to quit meddling with the law of nature.

Piling Up Taxes.

Detroit News.

Of late the truth appears to be finding acceptance that the Government of the United States costs money and that this cost is paid by the people of the United States. Time was when the support of the Government at Washington, paid by so-called "indirect" taxation, was regarded by Mr. Average Citizen as negligible.

Something of this ingrained notion came to have its influence upon the attitude of the taxpayers toward the State. Of course, everyone knew that there were State taxes, but they, too, did not bulk large among the listings of the tax bill.

And so came the practice of "shifting" tax burdens. Groups and organizations that had "programs," sought aid of the Federal Government to lighten the burdens of the States. Uncle Sam would give dollar for dollar for every sum appropriated by the States. It became a popular plan. Nothing could be better calculated to inspire the making of big appropriations, for "If we put up a million, the Government will give us a million, and thus we get two for one."

It worked so well that the counties began to try it. "If we put up a million, the State will give us a million." What a fine way to get "something for nothing." And the townships heard of it. And they began to put up money if the county would help them out, "dollar for dollar." The phrase begins to rhyme like a popular song.

And then, all of a sudden, the truth came home that those obligated to pay all those dollars, township, county, State and Federal, are we, the people of the United States, who farm this more perfect Union. Economic truths have a way of becoming unpleasant like that.

Suspicion Lurks.

Darton News.

Now that Raskob has come out in favor of the Hoover moratorium, the Anti-Saloon League is beginning to wonder what's wrong with it.

The President.

Indianapolis News.

In the light of the President's great achievement, certain people, some of them members of Mr. Hoover's party, will, we should think, feel obliged to revise their unfavorable and somewhat patronizing judgment of the chief magistrate of the Nation.

He has exhibited a fine style of statesmanship in the moratorium negotiations. "He knew the seasons when to take occasion by the hand," choosing his time well. Mr. Hoover's action was not impulsive, but based on facts as revealed by a thorough investigation, and by these facts, which could not be questioned, it was supported—they were all on his side. Thus the foundation was laid. And it has proved to be unshakable.

The cordiality and amazing promptness with which his plan was generally accepted are convincing proof that Mr. Hoover correctly interpreted the feeling of the various governments and peoples, the hesitation of France being quite exceptional.

Farm Board Here to Stay.

Topeka Capital.

Farmers and farm leaders may criticize the Farm Board, but farm leaders said to represent one-half the farm population of the United States at their meeting last week in Chicago adopted a resolution backing the farm marketing act and urging all farmers to rally to its support.

For a wholly experimental act of legislation the farm marketing act has done well, and promises to be as permanent and no less useful than the Interstate Commerce act. If mistakes have been made in its operation responsible farmers do not regard its mistakes as at all vital. Some farm leaders do not concede even that mistakes have been made. Criticism of the farm marketing act is almost wholly confined to the attempts at price stabilization of wheat. This is a small part of the functioning of the Farm Board.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Socialist Makes Bid for the Wet Vote, on Argument That Old Parties Will Not Solve Prohibition Issue.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: It is apparent that the "wets" can not win through the old, outworn political parties in this nation. Both are thoroughly dominated and controlled by the Antisaloon League, which is in turn backed by most of the wealthy class. Prohibition can only be abolished or modified through the instrumentality of some other party.

The quickest and most practicable method of securing results is for the "wets" to desert the old parties entirely and concentrate their voting strength in the Socialist party, which has never indorsed or recognized prohibition. In fact, the philosophy and principles of the Socialists naturally condemn and oppose prohibition, and under socialism liquor would be a government monopoly and a great source of revenue for the Socialist state.

Because of economic conditions the world over, the Socialist parties in various countries are coming to the forefront. This is inevitable and, indeed, desirable. The strongest political parties, numerically, in Germany, Austria, Denmark and England are Socialist parties, while in France, Spain and Belgium they rank a close second.

The "wet" organizations by backing the Socialists will not only have a friendly political power to start with, but they can win over the Antisaloon League parties without polling a majority of the total vote. American history shows that the Republican party has more than once carried a national election because of the existence of three strong political parties at the time. And so have the Democrats, for that matter.

As a former Republican, the writer feels that the national welfare demands immediate prohibition modification, and he knows better than to believe that it can be gotten through either the Republicans or Democrats. They are too seriously divided upon several issues to take chances with any of them. In fact, both have outlived their usefulness to the people.

S. R. RANDELL.

Meteorologist Goes a Step Further Than Weather Bureau in Explaining the Drought.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The editorial of June 29, "Causes of Drought," reads as though the United States Weather Bureau had gone into the business of writing editorials for the purpose of still further befogging its own obscurity. No effort has been indicated on the part of the Weather Bureau to explain why cold northerly air currents should have deserted the United States during the drought period of 1930 and centered their energies on western Europe with the resulting rains. One is forced to the conclusion that the experts of the Weather Bureau do not know why this happened, and therefore do not know why Europe was wet and the United States suffered from a drought.

Yet the reasons have been so definitely stated that the general public can know and understand. The vigorous North Atlantic circulation which brought some 800 icebergs on to the Grand Banks in 1930 found the airs rotating around the Azorean cold water area with the hands of a clock, spreading their influence well over the Eastern two-thirds of the United States with southerly winds and high barometrical pressures. This prevented the cold Arctic currents from descending into the country, and coupled with high solar radiation, caused the great drought. The axis of the Azorean cold water area had been steadily moving westward with the increasing northerly monthly declinations of the moon.

As has been pointed out, this combination of lunar and solar conditions recurs every fifty-six years. Similar great droughts centered around 1874, 1818 and 1762, periods separated by intervals of fifty-six years.

The winds on the northeastern quadrant of the Azorean cold water area joined with winds from the southeastern quadrant of the Icelandic warm water area to bring a constant sucession of humid air currents into Europe and gave the western section of that continent about the wettest year in the last 56. Should the records be examined, it will be disclosed that in close approximation the years which resulted in severe droughts of this order in the United States saw heavy rains in western Europe.

Housewife Thinks That Depression Could Be Mitigated by Sale of Food in Small Quantities.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Being a mere woman, and a housewife at that, I hesitate to suggest anything to help unemployment when so many are studying the problem. It does seem to me, however, that there should be substantial articles offered the public for 5 cents. Today we have ice cream, candies and soft drinks. Couldn't we have a 5-cent loaf of bread, a 5-cent piece of cheese, a piece of butter for that amount and a couple of eggs? Could the packers put up chipped beef or other articles in 5-cent packages?

The American people know very little about buying in small quantities. The French, who are experts in this art, are the prosperous people today. No one hesitates over there to buy a half a loaf of bread or a couple of tomatoes; in fact, the exact amount needed. Have you ever tried to buy one pound of sugar? The grocer invariably says we only carry it in two-pound cartons, so it is that or nothing.

The same thing applies to drugs. One has to pay for the tinsel that attracts, a beautiful bottle that is thrown away. Let the merchants have these, but it seems to me the person who simply wants to pay for the article and not the elaboration should be allowed to do so, or at least be reimbursed for the return of the container. Capital Fetes Arranged For British Group

27 Students Coming Here After Conference at Ann Arbor.

THRILLED with the prospect of a visit to Washington, the 27 British university students, who arrived in New York recently under the auspices of the Carnegie Endowment for International Peace, will take in the sights of the Capital and will be much feted during their sojourn here from July 20 to 24. They are in this country to attend the British and American students' conference on international affairs at Ann Arbor, Mich.

The visitors will see Washington under the guidance of Miss Amy Hemingway, of New York, who is in charge of the International Relations Clubs for the Carnegie Endowment. They have a strenuous itinerary to follow during their brief visit to Washington. On Wednesday afternoon, July 22, they will be received at the British Embassy, and although the ambassador, Sir Ronald Lindsay, will probably be on the high seas then, bound for England, and Lady Lindsay is already established at Bar Harbor, several members of the embassy staff will be on hand to greet their youthful countrymen.

On the invitation of Mrs. David L. Wing, dean of the Madeira School, the boys will journey to the site of Mrs. Wing's new school in the Virginia hills, near Fairfax, for a swim and an informal supper after their visit to the British Embassy. The following evening they will be feted at the dinner dance at the Congressional Country Club. Their Washington schedule also includes visits to Mount Vernon, Arlington, the public buildings and Annapolis.

In the absence of their father, Mr. George A. Finch, who is assistant secretary of the endowment, Miss Eleanor Finch and Miss Augusta Finch will act as hostesses to the visitors during their sojourn here. Mr. Finch and his wife will sail for Europe next Thursday to be absent from town for several weeks.

At the Ann Arbor conference 24 American students and four Canadian students will participate with the Britons. The purpose of the sessions, as outlined by the Carnegie endowment, is to bring together students from various parts of the British Empire and the United States for the discussion of problems of such vital international interest as those chosen for consideration in the three commissions upon which the program is based, which are: "What Follows the Pact of Paris?" "Limitation of Armaments," and "International Regional Organizations."

Secretary Mellon Goes to Riviera.

The Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Andrew W. Mellon, who has been in Paris for a short stay, has been joined by his son, Mr. Paul Mellon, from England, and together they have gone to the French Riviera to visit the former's daughter, Mrs. David L. E. Bruce, at her villa near Cannes.

Miss Harriet Winslow left yesterday for Canada to spend a part of the summer, and will sail later for Europe, returning to her Georgetown home in the early fall.

Former Representative Charles I. Stengle has purchased the home of Mrs. Virginia Hoover Poole, at 5119 Thirty-eighth street, and will move there shortly.

Their love for country life in the "home State" has led Senator and Mrs. James J. Davis to choose, after much searching, a charming farm at Eastown Township, Chester County, Pa., near Devon, in the heart of the community of house-loving people.

With their children, the Senator and Mrs. Davis will leave on Saturday for the country to spend the remainder of the summer in the farm house which was originally built in 1800, and which has been restored and enlarged since then.

Mr. and Mrs. Farnam Arrive From Europe.

Mrs. Suzanne Silvercruys Farnam, the sculptress, and wife of Mr. Henry W. Farnam, jr., of New Haven, arrived in New York yesterday from Europe on the Majestic.

Mrs. Farnam, who is the daughter of Baron Silvercruys, president of the Belgium supreme court, recently donated to the government of Belgium the new American Home for Belgian Orphans, near Ostend, Belgium. Crown Princess Astrid of Belgium received the gift in behalf of her country. The funds used to build the home were collected by Mrs. Farnam in America.

Mrs. Henry P. Fletcher, wife of the former Ambassador to Belgium and Italy, arrived Tuesday in Newport to lease a villa for the remainder of the season. Mr. and Mrs. Fletcher spent part of last summer at the Underwood cottage.

Lady Herbert, of England, will arrive this week for her annual visit in Newport, where she will spend a month with her sister, Mrs. T. Shaw Safe, at Ocean Lawn, her summer home.

Dr. and Mrs. C. Augustus Simpson and their children will leave next week for Jamestown, R. I., to spend the remainder of the summer.

CLUBWOMEN FIGHT NATION'S ISOLATION

Richmond Session Advocates World Court Activity; Takes War Stand.

Richmond, Va., July 8 (A.P.).—No one nation may longer live alone, Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, New York City, attorney and president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, told members of the national federation at their "international relations banquet" here tonight.

The banquet followed another day filled with business sessions and occupational conferences, participated in by the more than 2,000 women attending the six-day Old Dominion convention.

At one round table, devoted to international relations, this afternoon, recommendations presented by Miss Phillips were adopted, and will be offered to the general convention session tomorrow. They recommend that the National Federation secure 60,000 signatures to a petition for the immediate reduction of armaments, and present this at Geneva in 1932. Work of federations in fourteen foreign countries was outlined at this meeting by Miss Dorothy Heneker, of Montreal, Canada, secretary of the international organization.

Exchange of greetings between those attending the meeting here and outstanding women throughout the world was a feature of the banquet program tonight. Messages sent from the table by wire and cable were delivered and replies sent back and read out before the meeting adjourned.

Miss Phillips, in her address, said armaments may be increased, tariff walls raised and that we may quibble and hesitate about entering the World Court and look askance at the League of Nations, "but it will avail us nothing" if the rest of the world sinks into ruin because, "just as today, no man may live unto himself, so no nation can alone survive. A changing world demands changing standards, a changing viewpoint."

She said that two truths in our generation have lifted themselves from the darkness of the past. "One is that equality shall be for all people, men and women. Sister to this is the age-old truth that mankind is one."

Salvation Army Driver Given Recovery Chance

The Negro, Robert E. Turner, 33, First street northwest near B, was arrested by police at the First street address shortly after the shooting and is being held under a technical charge of investigation at the First Precinct.

A. A. A. Plans Fight On Federal Gas Tax

District Division of the American Automobile Association yesterday announced it is organizing opposition to the proposed Federal tax on gasoline. A tax of 1 cent a gallon on gasoline would mean a cost of $150,000,000 a year to car owners of the country, the division stated.

The statement declared that the motor vericle is today the most heavily taxed property in the country. A resolution adopted at the twenty-ninth annual convention of the American Automobile Association, expressing the organization as "unalterably opposed" to a Federal tax, was quoted in full.

COOL RIVER BREEZES FAN WOODLAND SITE

Hundreds of Capital Folk Find Summer Escape at Post Haven.

Have you spent a night at Woodland Beach, The Washington Post's summer home site on South River in Maryland? If not, you have missed the comfort afforded by cool breezes from the river and the wooded sections of the development.

Those who have spent the night in this garden spot are "sold" on the idea of Woodland Beach as the ideal place in which to spend the summer months.

Hundreds of Washingtonians have become lot owners at Woodland Beach, while scores of others are spending at least a portion of their time at the beach in summer cottages which they have erected on their property.

Days and Nights of Peace.

They are enjoying boating, bathing and fishing on the two coves of the South River on which the beach is situated. They are spending days and nights in peace out among the trees, far from the rumble and roar of the city's traffic. They are getting a complete rest from the worries and cares of everyday business life.

You, too, may enjoy these things without great expense and with very little difficulty. All that is necessary is to visit The Washington Post, look over the maps of the beach development and select a lot that looks good to you.

Then pay $9 in cash plus the price of a subscription to The Post. You are then enrolled on the list of lot owners. The remainder of the sale price for each lot—$93—may be paid in monthly installments of $3.50 until the entire amount has been cleared.

In Easy Driving Distance.

Remember that Woodland Beach is within easy driving distance of the Capital, only 32 miles away. It is reached over excellent roads via Defense highway toward Annapolis as far as Camp Parole, turning right there on Maryland State highway, No. 2, across South River and then left to Mayo road, which leads directly to the fine beach clubhouse.

You will find that many of your friends and neighbors are lot owners at Woodland Beach. Why not join them in forming a community of which you will be proud?

Enjoy the many advantages offered there and get relief from the steady grind of business during the summer months. There are some choice lots available, but they are being sold on the basis of "first come, first served" and if you get in now you may get the lot you really want. If you delay, some one else may get it.

Four Nationals' Stars Aid St. Gabriel's Fair

Joe Judge, who should need no introduction to Washingtonians, and three of his buddies on the Nationals, Sam West, Joe Cronin and Fred Marberry—last night assisted in "putting over" St. Gabriel's carnival at Grant Circle and Varnum street northwest.

The ball players circulated among the various booths and attractions at the fete, acting as "barkers" and ticket-takers, &c. They proved a magnetic attraction for the juvenile ball fans attending the affair, and also were gazed upon considerably by those of the fair sex, for whom Shortstop Cronin seemed to be a particular object of admiration.

Park Road Work Will Start Soon

Link With Maryland Slated to Be Begun Before End of Month.

Construction of the northern end of the Rock Creek Park road, so as to connect with the Maryland highways, is scheduled to start next month, the Office of Public Buildings and Public Parks announced yesterday. Money for this work was included in the 1932 District appropriations act.

The site of the roadway has already been cleared through the park, but many trees, ferns and wild flowers were saved.

The link of the Rock Creek and Potomac Parkway, between the Lincoln Memorial and K street, is nearing completion, it was said, and will soon be open for travel. Surfacing will be started shortly.

U. S. to Condemn Analostan Island

Government Starts Suit to Take Over Property for Park.

Analostan Island, situated in the Potomac River at Georgetown, will be taken over by the Government for park purposes, it was indicated yesterday when a condemnation suit was filed in the District Supreme Court. The Department of Justice filed the suit at the request of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The Washington Gas Light Co. is named as the owner of the island, which is included with other gas properties as the security for two bond issues, one for $5,200,000, and the other for $15,000,000. The American Security & Trust Co. is named as the trustee under the smaller issue, while the Riggs National Bank is named under the larger trust. Assistant Attorney General Henry H. Glassie and United States Attorney Leo A. Rover represented the Government.

No indication of what price the island will bring in the condemnation was given in the suit.

Richmond Session Advocates World Court Activity; Takes War Stand.

Richmond, Va., July 8 (A.P.).—No one nation may longer live alone, Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, New York City, attorney and president of the International Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, told members of the national federation at their "international relations banquet" here tonight.

The banquet followed another day filled with business sessions and occupational conferences, participated in by the more than 2,000 women attending the six-day Old Dominion convention.

At one round table, devoted to international relations, this afternoon, recommendations presented by Miss Phillips were adopted, and will be offered to the general convention session tomorrow. They recommend that the National Federation secure 60,000 signatures to a petition for the immediate reduction of armaments, and present this at Geneva in 1932. Work of federations in fourteen foreign countries was outlined at this meeting by Miss Dorothy Heneker, of Montreal, Canada, secretary of the international organization.

Exchange of greetings between those attending the meeting here and outstanding women throughout the world was a feature of the banquet program tonight. Messages sent from the table by wire and cable were delivered and replies sent back and read out before the meeting adjourned.

Miss Phillips, in her address, said armaments may be increased, tariff walls raised and that we may quibble and hesitate about entering the World Court and look askance at the League of Nations, "but it will avail us nothing" if the rest of the world sinks into ruin because, "just as today, no man may live unto himself, so no nation can alone survive. A changing world demands changing standards, a changing viewpoint."

She said that two truths in our generation have lifted themselves from the darkness of the past. "One is that equality shall be for all people, men and women. Sister to this is the age-old truth that mankind is one."

A. A. A. Plans Fight On Federal Gas Tax

District Division of the American Automobile Association yesterday announced it is organizing opposition to the proposed Federal tax on gasoline. A tax of 1 cent a gallon on gasoline would mean a cost of $150,000,000 a year to car owners of the country, the division stated.

The statement declared that the motor vericle is today the most heavily taxed property in the country. A resolution adopted at the twenty-ninth annual convention of the American Automobile Association, expressing the organization as "unalterably opposed" to a Federal tax, was quoted in full.

Four Nationals' Stars Aid St. Gabriel's Fair

Joe Judge, who should need no introduction to Washingtonians, and three of his buddies on the Nationals Sam West, Joe Cronin and Fred Marberry—last night assisted in "putting over" St. Gabriel's carnival at Grant Circle and Varnum street northwest.

The ball players circulated among the various booths and attractions at the fete, acting as "barkers" and ticket-takers, &c. They proved a magnetic attraction for the juvenile ball fans attending the affair, and also were gazed upon considerably by those of the fair sex, for whom Short-stop Cronin seemed to be a particular object of admiration.

U. S. to Condemn Analostan Island

Government Starts Suit to Take Over Property for Park.

Analostan Island, situated in the Potomac River at Georgetown, will be taken over by the Government for park purposes, it was indicated yesterday when a condemnation suit was filed in the District Supreme Court. The Department of Justice filed the suit at the request of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission.

The Washington Gas Light Co. is named as the owner of the island, which is included with other gas properties as the security for two bond issues, one for $5,200,000, and the other for $15,000,000. The American Security & Trust Co. is named as the trustee under the smaller issue, while the Riggs National Bank is named under the larger trust. Assistant Attorney General Henry H. Glassie and United States Attorney Leo A. Rover represented the Government.

No indication of what price the island will bring in the condemnation was given in the suit.

IT PAYS TO PRESERVE WITH refined cane sugar

Cane sugar insures ideal results in all kinds of canning

ALL over the country you will find housewives using refined cane sugar for making their jellies, jams, and preserves. It is an acknowledged standard.

If you take advantage of the low price of sugar, also the constantly appearing bargains in fresh fruit, you can put up preserves of all kinds for your winter meals, made just the way you like them.

Canned fruit and preserves—home-made or purchased—as well as sweet relishes belong in the diet. They make meals tasty, enjoyable and economical. Jellies are fine accompaniments for meats as well as a spread for bread, and canned fruits make delicious, wholesome desserts and salads.

RADIO listeners continue to wonder about the surf-like sound which is a part of nearly every transoceanic broadcast. There have been only one or two occasions when transatlantic broadcasts have been practically free of it. This strange effect, as a listener described it, sounds like "giant surf breaking on a rocky cliff."

The sounds are caused by the automatic volume control apparatus used at the American receiving stations. When the transoceanic signals fade the automatic volume control device makes the receiver more or less sensitive to meet the deficiencies of the radio energy. The rushing or surf sounds are waves of local noise amplified and made audible by the receiver.

The fading, in a fraction of a second's time, changes a speaker's voice from a high, distinct tenor to that of a rumbling bass. Music, deep and sonorous one minute, may be swiftly changed to tones which are high and shrill.

For a long time this peculiar fading of speech and music over long distances, had many radio engineers guessing. Experimental work has shown them, they say, that the earth's magnetic field, which causes the mariners' compass to assume a general north and south position, also may, at different times of the day, literally cause the speeding radio waves to turn somersaults.

The engineers have discovered facts which lead them to believe that only on rare occasions do any two tones of the human voice or a musical instrument, when transformed into radio energy, travel the same path in the ether between widely separated transmitting and receiving stations. If the high frequencies of the human voice travel the longest route, at the top of the "radio roof," they will naturally arrive at the receiver later than the low tones, traveling a shorter route, and distortion results. If the low tones are drowned out entirely the voice will be shrill. If the high tones are lost in the ionized surface above the earth, the voice will be drummy.

Engineers hope to find ways, some day, of overcoming all the peculiar effects inflicted by nature on radio telephony over long distances.

THREE worthwhile musical periods scheduled by the networks for broadcasting today are the Rochester Civic Orchestra (WMAL, 2:45 p. m.): Edwin Franko Goldman's Band (WRC, 8:30 p. m.), featuring Del Staigers, cornetist, and the New York Philharmonic Symphony Society, Willem van Hoogstraaten conducting, from Lewisohn Stadium (WMAL, 9 p. m.).

Semifinal and final matches in the national professional tennis tournament will be broadcast from Forest Hills, L. I., by Ted Husing tomorrow and Saturday.

An effort to place John McCormack under a one-year broadcasting contract is being made by Columbia. If the Irish tenor signs, he will do a minimum of 30 radio concerts next year.

Rudy Vallee is going to have a rival! Unless some unusual offer in the way of a picture contract is made Charles "Buddy" Rogers, it is expected he will lead a radio band over an NBC network, beginning about October 1.

BROADCASTERS who are called upon by the Federal Radio Commission to explain violation of broadcasting regulations had better have the right answers ready.

The commission has acquired a machine, developed by RCA Photophone, Inc., through which its field inspectors can make phonograph records of any questionable broadcasts. These records will be available for reproduction at hearings, doing away with any chance of denial of misconduct by the broadcaster.

A contract giving NBC exclusive broadcasting privileges on entertainment from the new Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, soon to be opened in New York City, was signed the other day.

The Radio Guild offering for tomorrow afternoon (WRC, 3:15 o'clock) is "The Queen's Husband," a three-act play.

Ann Leaf and Ben Alley will devote the last two weeks in July to a series of request broadcasts before leaving the air for their vacations.

THE CBS orchestra leader, Vincent Sorey, tells about the time an irate sponsor rushed up to him during a rehearsal and yelled, "You're playing too loud—too loud, I say."

"The score says forte," Sorey replied.

"Then for heaven's sake play thirty," was the sponsor's retort.

Jane Corbett INTERPRETS the MODE

A trim, tailored suit for summer travel, of dark green wool crepe, with novel incrustations. (A Dah-ray design.)

New York, July 8.

HARD times are good times for the little lady who feels towards materials as I do. You know how I feel about it—a piece of material to me is an investment, and it can be used and used again, and should be. I don't think of using a piece of material several times as "making over" a garment, and no chic Parisienne knows the meaning in any language of the words "make over." She says: "Oh, Yvette, I have just made ze loffliest evening dress from ze Poiret gown—you know, ze one I bought when Ninon was married five years ago?"

So-o-o-o, everyone of us has a trunk or two or three full of things that we are either tired of, or have gone out of style, and these so-called hard times should make us give this trunk more serious consideration than before. So let's spend this week-end rummaging around and salvaging or resuscitating our old favorites—and, I'll tell you what, La Chic Secretaire and I will do the same thing and make you a leaflet of clever make-overs very soon.

And what about the Patou dress, oh-h-h the gorlicious one, in black crepe marocain, that I have worn sh-h-h, for two years? Well, the sleeves were long and tight and the back incrustations tricky, and the sleeves pulled the seams in the back so that it was oh, "just a little shabby." And what could we do about it? Well, nothing less than cut off the sleeves to just above the into an almost cape-like effect made from the lower part of the sleeve that was cut off, and voila, a dress for summer, and one that didn't pull the back incrustations out because there was no pull at the elbows.

Sad experience taught me—and lots of my dear public, too—that you just can't go traveling in a suit that isn't tailored and smartly restrained! Gadgets just don't seem to go with traveling clothes—and you not only feel all wrong but look it if you attempt to be the least bit fussy! Yet, on the other hand, I just simply can't stand the square, mannish, unattractive suits that are shown as examples of "tailored wear." 'N' so, I designed a suit, for town wear and traveling, and it was good I have sketched it for you today. It's of dark green wool crepe, meticulously finished, and its odd incrustations make the coat ever so cleverly and subtly form-fitting. And the skirt is box-pleated all around for comfort and chic!

So—if you have the figure to stand attention, why not emphasize it by incrustations even on your more practical clothes?

And the very thicky little vestee-blouse that's worn with this suit, and also sketched for you today, is of white silk jacquard—which is silk with a very lustrous figure that shows up in such definite contrasts to the dull ground. 'N' this vestee is worn over a short sleeved georgette guimpe.

A fur scarf that's soft and fluffy and fragrant is always a thing of beauty! 'N' it will last and last—if you send your stamped, self-addressed envelope right away to the Dare Department of the Washington Post for the leaflet telling how to make the clever, protective bag for your fox, that hangs away in a closet 'n' is softly sacheted and utterly feminine in its unusual usefulness!

Do look for the weekly Dare fashion letter in the Sunday Washington Post.

Au Revoir!

What Today Means to You

"CANCER."

IF July 9th is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 11:10 a. m., from 2:05 p. m. to 3:40 p. m., and from 7 p. m. to 9:20 p. m. The danger hours are from 11:30 a. m. to 1:20 p. m. and from 5 p. m. to 6:50 p. m.

July 9th, from the astrological standpoint, is more propitious for men than women. The latter are liable to get entangled in unsatisfactory affairs of the heart and suffer through the jealousy of their own sex. Men's frame of mind will be forceful and enterprising.

Children born on this July 9th will be capable, dependable, rather imperious and sometimes headstrong. They will always show a decided preference for the society of the opposite sex, and will probably marry early in life. This, in their case, will ensure a happy home life.

Your horoscope, if you were born on July 9th, denotes a keen perception, an analytical mind, and a courageous heart. Many valuable opportunities will come your way, and none of them will be "passed up" by you. No hasty or impulsive decisions will be made, however, as you weigh very carefully all the "pros" and "cons" before acting. Fear of consequences, or possibility of failure will never hold you back, if, after consideration, you consider the game worth while, you are always ready to take a chance, and make the most of it.

You are very companionable, and shine in social circles. You are always willing, if necessary, to inconvenience yourself in order to help others to have a good time. You will, if circumstances permit, travel much, and your experiences will be eventful and interesting. You can rise superior to disagreeable surroundings, and only on very rare occasions has anything disturbed your equanimity or upset your geniality.

Your disposition is a happy, and not a jealous one. Envy never fills your soul, and though you quickly resent an insult, your nature is easy-going. Home life will mean a great deal to you, but will not absorb your interest to such an extent as to make you neglect outside interests.

Culbertson on Contract

THEY SHALL NOT PASS.

LIGHT but sound Opening bids of one of a suit are the backbone of the Approach Forcing System. Those who fail to employ them, when fully justified by values held, are playing losing Contract and are more difficult as partners than occasional overbidders.

More often than not, timid bidders are merely ignorant of card values and are unable to recognize the honor-trick power of the standard honor-trick table. Hands which justify Opening bids in the Approach Forcing System, frequently "look" weaker, although actually stronger, than the obsolete "two quick-tricks." To pass with hands, which, if properly bid, would make games or would impede opponents' progress toward game, is playing losing Contract.

The honor-trick table, which I am repeating in this article, discovers for the accurate bidder many new trick-taking values and biddable combinations which are entirely obscured from the vision of players who adhere to other requirements. The following deal from a team-of-four Duplicate match between the teams representing the Bethlehem and Allentown, Pa., Kiwanis Clubs, is an enlightening example of the possible value to a partnership of even the barest minimum Opening bid of one in a suit.

Contract Deal
North-South vulnerable
East-West not vulnerable
South—Dealer

At table No. 1 South passed, although the hand has well distributed strength with 2-½ honor-tricks in three suits—the Ace and Queen of Spades being 1-½, the guarded King of Hearts being ½ and the Queen Knave of Diamonds furnishing the necessary additional ½ trick required for an opening bid in the Approach Forcing System. At this table, following South's pass, West also passed and North, of course, has no bid. East, however, has 5 honor-tricks. This particular East bid two no-trump, all others passing.

He should have bid one club—a suit being far safer and more informative than the colorless no-trump. The difference in this case is obvious and from analysis of thousands of hands, I am fully convinced that to prefer a biddable suit, even a four-card minor, to a no-trump bid, is playing winning Contract. No one hand ever proves a theory, but the results of thousands should establish a principle. The Forcing-Approach System does not shun no-trump declarations, but bids them only after suit distribution is made known.

Against the two no-trump bid, South opened with the Queen of Diamonds and the Declarer took 9 tricks; 6 clubs, 2 diamonds and a heart, and conceded the remaining tricks to his opponents.

At the other table, however, the player holding the South cards bid in accordance with the Approach Forcing System. He bid one spade, West passed, and North, with ample playing tricks, including an honor-trick in spades, bid four spades. East doubled with great assurance.

At this point Old Man Distribution stalked upon the stage and with his powerful club void in the North hand proceeded to wreck the party for East. Distribution shriveled East's 5 quick-tricks to 3. Four-wheel brakes never slowed up a rapidly moving Rolls Royce any more effectively than distribution can slow up quick-tricks. Against the four spade declaration, East and West were defenseless. Any Opening gives Declarer his contract.

With this particular hand, South's fine perception of the trick-taking capacity of a well distributed 2½ honor tricks gave his team a vulnerable game with 500 points in Duplicate play, plus 240 points for 4 tricks in spades at their double value plus 100 points for making a doubled contract, a total of 840 points. The opposing team, with a passing South, permitted East and West to make a score of 105 for 3 tricks at notrump (game not being bid for). This gave the Approach Forcing pair of players, with their game in spades, a swing of 840 plus 105 and inasmuch as the match was won by 800 points, this proved to be the decisive deal of the match.

It might serve a useful purpose in throwing light upon the prevalent notrump complex to contemplate what would have happened at table No. 1, if East, Fourth Hand, had bid one club. South would probably have passed, but even if he had taken heart and bid a defensive one spade, West would certainly have bid four clubs and East would have bid for games in clubs and would have made it, losing only a spade and a heart.

Today's Pointer.

Weak players at Auction easily disguise their weaknesses, most of them even fooling themselves. This is impossible in Contract. The timid or uninformed bidder fails to arrive at the contract waranted by the trick-taking possibilities of the cards he holds; the poor player is unable to take the tricks he bid for. Contract is a searching beam of light, revealing all the dusty, moldy corners in one's game.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me the name of the green insects that have taken possession of my rosebush and a means of getting rid of them.

MRS. J. K.

Aphids. Better use arsenate of lead dust.

Arsenate of Lead Dust.

1 ounce of powdered lead arsenate.
4 ounces of air-slacked lime.
4 ounces of powdered sulphur.
½ ounce of 40 per cent liquid nicotine.

These ingredients must be thoroughly mixed and then sifted several times. To apply any dust, use a blower gun or place the material in a cheesecloth bag and shake the contents over the affected plants. As the above formula contains poisons, it must be kept out of the reach of children or other irresponsible persons.

When shall I prune my lilac bush?

NORA H.

As a rule, a lilac bush bearing only on the topmost branches rarely requires much pruning. What is to be cut away must not be removed until after the plant has finished flowering, at which time only the dead flowers should be removed. In early April or March, if the season is open, it is well to cut away all wood that has been winter-killed.

I was given a poinsettia, which rested, but is now in full leaf. What do you advise?

E. M. K.

Better in late August remove half of the stalks and give the plant some liquid manure. In the meantime keep the plant in the sun and do not overwater it. Water about three times each week is sufficient.

Please tell me the name of the inclosed lavender shrub; also the yellow one.

MRS. M. B. B.

Am so sorry, but the yellow one was beyond identification, merely dust when it reached me. The one with the lavender flower is heather.

Please tell me why my ferns never thrive.

MRS. F. H.

I am sorry, but with no description of the variety of fern you have or the place in which you keep it I can not answer your question. If you care to write again, inclosing a self-addressed, stamped envelope, I shall be glad to send you a circular on the care of ferns which we have prepared for readers of this column. As a rule, ferns should be kept moist. With the exception of the polypodium, they are not sun-loving plants. In the house they demand light but little real sun.

YOUR NAME WHAT DOES IT MEAN?

By HARRY A. DEFARRARI, Ph. D.

THE family name "Hastings" has come down to us from two slightly different English sources. In a great many cases it indicates an original place of residence in Hastings, County Sussex. This place-name means "the domain of the Haest family." Its Anglo-Saxon form was "Haestingas." It has been found that in a few cases "Hastings" means "the son of Hasting." The family name "Hasting" means "the son of Haest." The personal name "Haest" is derived ultimately from the Old Norse "hastr," which means "violent" and "severe." From what precedes it is evident that the family name "Hastings" must sometimes be translated by the long expression "the son of the son of the violent man." A few early instances of the name as seen in the Hundred Rolls (1273) are William Hastings, Henry de Hasting and Richard Hastings.

The family name "Stroud" (also spelled "Strode") is of English origin. It means "the brushwood" and "the thicket," and points to an original place of residence near such places. The family name has frequently been given because of a former residence in one of the several English towns and villages named "Stroud," "Strude" and "Strood." Forms of this family name in early English records are "Strode" (1273), "Stroude" and "Strode" (1327), and "Strowde" (1571).

The family name "Perley" (also spelled "Parley") is derived from the Old English "pere-leah." It means "the pear-tree meadow," and points to an original place of residence.

VACCINATION

IN 1796 EDWARD JENNER PROVED THAT A PERSON WITH COW-POX WAS PROTECTED AGAINST SMALL-POX, BY INOCULATING A BOY WITH BLOOD SUB-STANCES FROM A DAIRY MAID INFECTED WITH COW-POX. THE BOY WAS EX-POSED TO SMALLPOX BUT DID NOT CONTRACT IT. THE WORD "VACCINATION" COMES FROM THE LATIN "VACCA", OR COW, WHOSE BLOOD IS USED TO MAKE VACCINE.

ANOTHER WORM MEDICINE.

CASTING about for a safe and effective worm medicine, Caldwell and a group of associates at the Vanderbilt University hit upon hexylresorcinol. This medicine, under various names, has been in use for a good many years as an antiseptic for the urinary tract. When given by mouth it is absorbed into the blood and excreted by the kidneys, being changed by this organ into a powerful antiseptic. If the chemical conditions are right, we have thus an antiseptic applied from the inside and in an excellent position to do good service. In twenty years of its use many thousands of people have taken it pretty indiscriminately and it has proved to be safe. This was one reason Caldwell and his associates decided to try it as a worm medicine.

So far it has been used only as a remedy for the ordinary round worm. A plentiful supply of round worms are obtainable in any hog pen. They experimented first with worms in test tubes. Having proved the ability of the drug to kill the worm they finally tried it on human beings. The conclusion they have arrived at is that it is both safe and efficient. It produces no symptoms in the man or child who has taken it. Given properly, one round will kill 95 to 100 per cent of all the worms in the digestive tract. Given in half doses, it kills 75 per cent of the offenders.

The dose for an adult is 15 grains of the medicine in crystal form, put up in a hard capsule. It is to be taken on an empty stomach, without alcohol or oil, and the dose is followed three or four hours later by salts. The dose for a child is one-half that for an adult. Oils, glycerin, alcohol, or food in the stomach while the medicine is there greatly decrease it efficiency.

Worms do not try to escape from this medicine as they do from carbon tetrachloride. They seem to be content to remain quiet and absorb it. Eggs probably escape. At any rate, it is advisable to follow, say three weeks later, with a second dose in order to kill the worms that have hatched and matured meanwhile, or that escape the first dose.

The remedy has not been tried against thread worms, trichina, hookworm, or tapeworm. Nor have hog breeders used it with hogs, so far as we know.

TRENCH MOUTH CAN BE CURED.

S. F. writes: What is the cause and the result of trench mouth?

REPLY.

Trench mouth is caused by infection of some part of the mouth by two microbes acting in conjunction. It can be cured, leaving no after effects, although it may have caused some destruction of tissue. Keeping the mouth very clean is a preventive. Mouth washes are excellent for that purpose. Soap is an almost perfect preventive.

RIDDING CLOTHES OF LICE.

P. M. A. writes: I have discovered lice in my suit of clothes, which is practically new. I can not afford to throw the suit away or burn it up. However, I will do so, if you say it should be done. Is it possible for me to get the lice and eggs out of the suit if there are any left in it? There are no vermin on my body.

REPLY.

The usual method is to iron the clothing, especially the seams. The iron should be almost hot enough to scorch.

Steaming them long and well is even better. A well equipped cleaner should be able to solve your problem. Lice in clothing go on the body to feed. If your insects do not, then they belong to some other insect tribe.

MAY RETAIN EXTRA POUNDS.

Miss L. writes: Since undergoing a major operation about six months ago I have gained 10 pounds. What is the cause of this? Will it be possible to keep it? How soon will it disappear?

REPLY.

My guess is that the operation was an ovariotomy. It may have been removal of the thyroid. If either guess is right the increase in weight was to have been expected. Another guess is that your excess weight will be a permanent quality. About the only way out is the celestial route.

BANKERS TO STUDY NEW POWER FORM

Copies of Counsel's Opinion Will Be Received Soon for Examination.

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Officials of member banks of the District of Columbia Bankers Association will soon receive for study copies of an opinion from the office of the association's general counsel regarding the New York Stock Exchange stock power form, use of which in transactions instead of the form of the association and local stock exchange has been a question before the association since December.

The question, referred to the association's standardized forms committee, arose over the form adopted some years ago by the local exchange and now used by most member banks. It was later learned that stock sold and delivered accompanied by this form does not constitute good delivery on the New York Stock Exchange.

While the forms committee has reported that local banks might safely adopt the New York form and at the same time have all the protection the form now in use affords, no recommendation as to preference has yet been made by the association, and it is now believed that ultimately member banks will determine individually which form they will use.

List of Committees.

Selection of all standing committees of the association for the new administrative year has been completed by its president, Edward J. McQuade, president Liberty National Bank. They are the following:

Audit—Cashier J. Frank White, National Bank of Washington, chairman; Auditor J. Dan Faber, American Security & Trust Co.; President John D. Howard, Seventh Street Savings Bank; Vice President and Treasurer John D. Leonard, Washington Savings Bank; Vice President and Treasurer Edson B. Olds, Union Trust Co.; President Maurice Otterback, Anacostia Bank; President John C. Walker, Chevy Chase Savings Bank.

Credit Bureau—Vice President Charles H. Doing, Washington Loan & Trust Co., chairman; President Francis O. Addison, jr., Security Savings & Commercial Bank; Assistant Cashier Hulbert T. Bissell, Riggs National Bank; Vice President C. F. Burton, Washington Mechanics Savings Bank; Vice President Hilleary G. Hoskinson, Riggs National Bank; Cashier C. F. Jacobsen, National Metropolitan Bank; Secretary Frederick P. H. Siddons, American Security & Trust Co.; Assistant Vice President John R. McMullan, Riggs National Bank; Vice President Laurence A. Slaughter, Commercial National Bank; President Frank J. Stryker, Columbia National Bank; Cashier Samuel M. Thrift, Franklin National Bank; Vice President Wilmer J. Waller, Federal-American National Bank & Trust Co.; J. Frank White.

Standard Banking Forms.

With NELSON B. BELL

THE amusing circumstances surrounding the strangest plagiarism suit in American theatrical history are recalled by the announcement that Paramount is soon to release "The Secret Call," a talking picture, adapted from the stage play of "The Woman."

Suit was filed against the late David Belasco, the producer, and William C. De Mille, the author, by a New York barber, who asserted that his play, "Tainted Philosophy," had been stolen by the two.

Stuart Walker, director of "The Secret Call," was Belasco's general stage manager at the time and, in discussing the suit, recently related again the clever manner in which the master producer won it.

When the case was called for trial, Belasco offered to stage both plays and let the jury reach its own decision. With Mary Nash, Milton Sills and Joseph Kilgour in the cast, Belasco produced "Tainted Philosophy" for the court and a theater full of invited guests.

This preposterous performance followed every stage direction of the barber and was given without the change of a single word of dialogue. The audience was in convulsions from beginning to end. According to Walker, it was the most ridiculous show ever staged. Belasco costumed the cast and put on the play as if it were one of his pets.

When the jury witnessed "The Woman," they immediately returned a verdict of not guilty.

The tonsorial artist failed even to give the Messrs. Belasco and De Mille a close shave!

Speaking of old timers—and that is what it amounted to—C. Aubrey Smith, who has been around for a long time now, is prominently cast in support of William Haines in "Just a Gigolo," coming to the Palace screen Saturday.

This talented Englishman has twice won international fame—first as a cricket champion in his native country; later as a stage and screen star.

One of my earliest recollections of C. Aubrey Smith goes 'way back yonder to the time when he was appearing under the Frohman aegis in support of Marie Doro in the stage version of William J. Locke's, "The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne." During the Washington engagement, the company put on a special invitational matinee performance of a play that had just been written by Mrs. Gustave Frohman, wife of the least known, publicly, of the three brothers, of whom the other two were the late Charles Frohman and Daniel Frohman, present head of the Actors' Fund of America.

And what, by the way, has ever become of Marie Doro, the one-time wife, if I remember correctly, of Elliott Dexter? And what, by the way, has become of Elliott Dexter?

The three Moore brothers—as long as we are dabbling in such things—in eclipse for quite a time, are gradually going about it to increase their visibility. Tom hasn't been out in front so much lately, but Matt had a meaty part in the recent screen version of "The Front Page" and now Owen, perhaps the most facile comedian of the lot, is to be seen in support of Joan, the youngest of the Bennetts, in "Hush Money," at the Fox, come tomorrow.

And another reappearance after a long absence, or have you gone out in the other room and turned on the wireless? will be celebrated at RKO-Keith's, also beginning tomorrow, when Betty Bronson will parade the screen in an important part in "Lover Come Back," in which the other principals are Jack Mulhall and Constance Cummings. Miss Bronson's role in this subject is said to be about as far removed from "Peter Pan" as one might find it possible to conveniently get—or are you finicky about having your infinitives all in one piece?

A solicitous and a helpful management has just placed in my possession a panoramic view of the Crystal Pool and its spacious "beach" of glistening sand, that would drive you out to Glen Echo Park in a hurry this weather if you had not already formed the habit of going there for a dip on your own.

In heralding this as one of the most perfectly equipped and appointed open-air natatoria—try that over on your roller-coaster, Mr. Schloss, with love and kisses—in the country, its sponsors have not at all overstated the case. The minute you clap your eye on this plant you want it for your bathroom!

Incidentally, special pennants have been ordered and are on their way to be flown from all the flagpoles around the pavilion and grounds of the Crystal Pool. These will represent all of the schools and colleges in and around Washington and will be unfurled to the breezes of the high Potomac in compliment to the faculties and enrollments of the local and nearby institutions of learning.

The public, I should say, ought to be appreciative of this for divers reasons!

In the temples of the celluloid charades, next week's entries and post positions will be about as follows: Earle, Leslie Howard and Conchita Montenegro, in "Never the Twain Shall Meet;" and Gallo and Tisen headlining the vaudeville bill; Palace, William Haines in "Just a Gigolo," and Bert Frohman, in the "Exit Smiling" revue; Fox, Joan Bennett, in "Hush Money," and Ed and Morton Beek in Fanchon & Marco's "Africa" Idea; RKO-Keith's, Betty Bronson and Jack Mulhall in "Lover Come Back;" Metropolitan, Margaret Schilling and Paul Gregory in "Children of Dreams;" Columbia, Norma Shearer in "A Free Soul," second week.

What! No rasslin' tonight? Well, would any one care to join me in a couple of fast chukkers of parchesi, then, just to whip up the blood a bit?

GEORGETOWN PLANS EXPANSION PROGRAM

School of Foreign Service to Have New Quarters at University.

Reorganization plans affecting at least one department of Georgetown University in anticipation of a new program of expansion at the Hilltop were announced yesterday.

The School of Foreign Service, located since its founding in 1919 at Sixth and B streets, is to be moved to the university campus in Georgetown, where new and separate quarters will be provided in an appropriate building to form another unit of the new quadrangle now being developed. It was expected that removal of the school from its downtown site would be completed by October, 1932, President W. Coleman Nevils announced.

First step in these plans will be taken when the graduate department of the school will be transferred to the Healy Building, largest class hall at the Hilltop. The change will become effective in October, when the new academic term opens at the school. For the present undergraduates will remain in the downtown building.

These plans, Dr. Nevils said, are in furtherance of the policy of centering all activities of the university on the Hilltop campus. It was inaugurated two years ago by removal of medical and dental departments to Reservoir road, after having occupied a downtown location for half a century. With final transfer of the Foreign Service School, only the law department will remain downtown.

The Healy Building has been designated as center of all graduate work for the university, Dr. Nevils explained. This was made possible through erection of Copley Hall, new dormitory forming the first unit of the proposed quadrangle.

Concentration of all graduate work at the college is being pressed at this time, it was said, as Georgetown's contribution to preparations for the Washington Bicentennial. It will make easily accessible to graduate students the wealth of historical documents, early American and colonial papers preserved in the university archives, libraries and museums. These are now being sorted out with special reference to a rare collection of Washington documents and signatures, in preparation for the bicentennial.

Transfer of the school also will permit development of its late afternoon and evening courses for employed students, President Nevils explained. "The presence in Washington of a large group of well-qualified and serious-minded students of a more advanced age who can not devote their full time to academic work has always merited the special consideration of the authorities of Georgetown University," he said.

'New Party' Breaks With Labor Group

Mosley Leads Band of Four Across Floor of House Amid Jeers.

London, July 8 (A.P.).—Sir Oswald Mosley, aggressive young Socialist founder of the new party, completed his break with the Labor Government by leading his flock of four across the floor of the House of Commons today to seats in the opposition.

Labor members jeered and shouted "home again," as Sir Oswald took his seat on the extreme left of the Conservatives. By his side sat Dr. R. Forgan, who has been appointed whip of the Mosleyites, or new party.

They were joined by Sir Oswald's wife, Lady Cynthia Mosley, and other members of his little band. Although only five strong in the House of Commons, it now definitely ranks as an opposition party. By relinquishing his seat on the Labor side, Sir Oswald, originally elected as a Conservative member of Parliament, was not exactly back home. For he did not rejoin the Conservative party.

Capital Traction Bus Driver Acquitted of Drunk Charge

Bringing a complete bus load of witnesses and lawyers to Hyattsville to testify for him in police court there, F. G. Reading, a bus driver for the Capitol Traction Co., yesterday was acquitted on charges of driving while drunk and reckless driving.

Among witnesses who said that Reading showed no signs of having been drunk several hours after the accident was the accused man's brother, Miller K. Reading, a detective attached to the Fourteenth Precinct. Reading, who lives at 610 Irving street northwest, was arrested on July 4 while driving a load of colored people into Washington. These colored people formed the bulk of the witnesses brought out in the bus.

Policeman Arthur Brown, who arrested Reading, said he drove up beside the bus three times and waved him to the side of the road, in a chase that lasted several miles on the Baltimore boulevard. The policeman also said that when the bus finally stopped, Reading drove it into his car and then drove off. When Reading was again stopped by another policeman in Berwyn, he was allowed to drive the bus to the police station in Hyattsville, as Brown said he did not notice any signs of drunkenness.

Judge J. Chew Sheriff, who dismissed two of the three charges, fined Reading $25 on the speeding count. The driver was represented by H. Winship Wheatley, with Charles C. Collins, attorney for the American Automobile Association, as consultant. Clarence Murch, one of the witnesses who testified that Reading showed no signs of being drunk, convulsed the courtroom when he said that he was so close to Reading that he "could have kissed him." He also said, "I was as close to him as I would be to a girl friend."

Italo-Vatican Split Admittedly Serious

Mussolini to Give His Decision on Crisis to Cabinet Today.

Rome, July 8 (A.P.).—Premier Mussolini's decision on what is to be done in the Vatican controversy is expected to be presented at the cabinet meeting tomorrow.

It was definitely stated in government circles tonight that the situation was quite serious with little chance of settlement at present. The Pope's encyclical "concering Catholic Action" was blamed by the government for upsetting definite hopes.

Regardless of maneuvers on both sides it was believed in well-informed circles that neither the Pope nor Mussolini had receded.

2,000 Rail Men Dropped.

Bucharest, Roumania, July 8 (A.P.). Two thousand railway employes were dismissed today "in the interest of economy." The dismissed employes declared that they would sue the government for breach of contract.

Rockefeller Family At Birthday Dinner

Philanthropist, at 92, Celebrates With Only His Descendants.

New York, July 8 (A.P.).—The distribution of dimes and nickels by John D. Rockefeller was unusually widespread and gleeful today. It was his ninety-second birthday and the head of the house of Rockefeller celebrated it quietly at his 8,000-acre estate near Sleepy Hollow, N. Y.

At the 6 o'clock dinner, which he ate with almost his entire family gathered around one big table, a frosted birthday cake was cut. Mr. Rockefeller ate his share and pronounced it excellent.

Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller, jr., their daughter, Abby, and her husband, David M. Milton, dined at Pocantico Hills, the Rockefeller family seat. The youngest member of the party was 3-year-old Abby Milton, great-grandchild of John D. Rockefeller, sr.

France Officially Sanctions Nudist Colony in Mid-Seine

Paris, July 8 (U.P.).—The best-known "nudist" colony of France, a group of 2,500 frolicking half-clad enthusiasts who live on an island in the Seine, was visited by curious crowds today under complete sanction of the government.

The colony, in which inhabitants leave their clothes on a hickory limb at the entrance, will henceforth be known as Physiopolis. The blessing of the ministry of public health will keep the island safe for democracy.

Physiopolis has been in existence for more than a year, but the ceremonies by the ministry of public health were delayed until its success seemed assured. Feret de Longbois, secretary to Minister Camille Blaisot, officiated when the minister was unavoidably detained.

The inaugural procession was a weird contrast to the natural informality of the colony of simplicity. M. de Longbois wore black, was accompanied by one of the undersecretaries for fine arts, also formally clad, and by many newspaper photographers whose costumes were complete if not formal.

In contrast, members of the colony disported in various stages of undress, frolicking about the island or basking in the bullrushes.

The Island of Naturites is only a short distance from the town of Villenes. It may be reached by train, taxi and boat or the visitor may walk from Villeness across a couple of miles of countryside, along which there are many cafes at which one may rest or refresh himself with drink.

When the correspondent arrived for the inauguration the river bank was crowded. It was said that it usually is crowded with tourists and curious visitors, but the little boat that is used as a ferry will carry only 12 persons and others must wait their turns.

The representative of the Ministry of Public Health wished the inhabitants well after the ceremonies were ended.

Ship Line Heads Confer in Secret

Officials Refuse to Discuss Transatlantic Fare-Cut Rumors.

Paris, July 8 (A.P.).—Heads of the principal transatlantic steamship lines met today and, following their usual custom, bound all participants to secrecy regarding the deliberations until the meeting is ready to issue an official statement.

None of those who attended would discuss persistent reports that a reduction in transatlantic passenger fares is imminent on all the lines represented.

Edgar Molitor represents the United States Lines. Other parties to the meeting are the Cunard, White Star, Hamburg-American, North German Lloyd and French Lines.

FRIGIDAIRE—GUARANTEED FOR THREE YEARS

STOCK SALES REACT WITH SLIGHT LOSSES

Opening Is Heavy, Resulting in Fractional Drops at Close; Steels Slump Again.

New York, July 8 (A.P.).—Financial markets were reactionary today. Fully aware that the benefits of the moratorium will probably materialize slowly, and that Germany's financial situation is still in a rather delicate balance, speculative quarters also gave consideration to the summer dullness in domestic trade and to declines in commodity prices.

Stocks, after a heavy opening, rallied under the guidance of the railroad issues during the morning, but sold off sharply in the afternoon. Late covering brought the list up from the lows, reducing the average decline to a point. Coppers were the weakest group, influenced by the reappearance of 8-cent metal. Steels were sold on the argument that even if July sees the bottom the current basis of operations is unprofitable and is likely to remain so for some time. Oils had to contend with further price cutting in east Texas, but were affected only mildly.

Activity in stock trading tapered off and the turnover of 2,400,000 shares was 600,000 less than yesterday's. U. S. Steel flopped to 94⅞ before the decline was checked, closing at 96⅛, off 2¾. American Telephone reduced a 3-point loss to ⅜.

Radios Are Heavy.

Radio was heavy, down 2 points net, while Allied Chemical lost 3. Net recessions in Westinghouse, General Electric, Woolworth, American Can, Consolidated Gas, North American, International Telephone, Texas Corporation and Bethlehem Steel ran from a fraction to about a point.

General Motors was firm in sympathy with the June sales figures, which were better than had been indicated from earlier estimates. National Biscuit recovered from its recent weakness and joined several of the investment rails in gains of a point. Metal issues were down 1 to 2.

July and September wheat broke to new lows for the season, which also meant the lowest prices since 1896. The stock market was a factor, but Chicago traders were also influenced by a favorable weekly weather report and a small export demand. Net declines ranged from ⅛ to a full cent. Cotton broke about $2.50 a bale, although its net decline was smoothed out moderately, final quotations being $1.85 to $2.20 a bale lower. The acreage reduction was smaller than had been expected. Corn was off fractionally.

German Financial Situation.

Although reports from Germany said the guarantee for a $125,000,000 long-term foreign loan, made by a thousand of the Reich's leading corporations, had been favorably received, the demand for foreign currency was substantial, but the Reichsbank was said to have lost only $6,000,000 in gold marks. Local bankers revealed that the $50,000,000 gold credit to the Discount Bank, a Reichsbank subsidiary, had been drawn on only moderately. The mark here was steady, but strength of Dutch and Swiss exchanges indicated that Germany's neighbors were still taking out funds.

Iron Age estimated current steel production at 33 per cent, off 2 per cent in a week, adding: "The belief is gaining ground that July will represent the minimum of demands and that August will bring at least a slight upward turn." Building construction seems to be expanding and a large number of projects are pending, which will help the steel industry offset the low summer output of the automobile plants.

Electric power production last week was under the output for the previous period because of the holiday, but the percentage of decline from 1930 was smaller—the smallest, in fact, since early April.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, July 8 (A.P.).—Cotton prices experienced a sharp downward movement today under heavy liquidation and Wall street and Southern selling.

The October position sold down 53 points, to 9.60, closing at 9.72, a net loss of 41 points. The general market closed steady at 37 to 44 points net lower.

The opening was steady, 12 to 14 points lower in response to lower Liverpool cables than had been expected and owing to a generally favorable impression of the weather and crop news. There was a partial recovery prior to the time when trading was suspended for the publication of the Government acreage report on cotton-ing and reviving up for over the report.

The crop-reporting board made the acreage in cultivation on July 1 this year 41,490,000, which compared with 46,078,000 a year ago, representing a reduction of 10 per cent. The figures were only slightly above those indicated by the private estimates, but were evidently larger than the trade in general had anticipated and were given a bearish interpretation, as it was argued that under favorable weather conditions it would be possible to produce a crop in excess of present indicated requirements. Selling orders increased immediately after trading was resumed following the announcement of the acreage figures and the market declined rapidly.

Wall street houses were conspicuous on the selling side and it was evident that the weakness in the stock market had undermined confidence in prevailing price levels. At the decline values represented losses of approximately one-half of the gains experienced during the June rise and some market students expressed the belief that buyers had become over enthusiastic on the first announcement of the Hoover debt plan and that the market was feeling the effects of overextended buying at that time. The weekly weather and crop bulletin was perhaps not quite as favorable as some traders had anticipated, but failed to have more than a momentary influence on values.

Liverpool cabled that the market there had been influenced by general selling and that Manchester was unsettled, the cotton decline restricting business. Exports today, 4,609, making 6,701,763 so far this season. Port receipts, 1,689. U. S. port stocks, 2,968,616.

BOND PRICES LOWER AS MARKET RECEDES

Decline Heaviest in Rails; Sales for Day Decrease to $8,274,000.

New York, July 8 (A.P.).—The bond market receded irregularly today. Activity declined also. Sales totaled $8,274,000 at par values, compared with $11,344,000 on Tuesday. The former is the smallest total for a full session since June 8, when sales aggregated $8,206,000.

Lower prices were distributed over the list, but the decline was more marked among the rails than elsewhere, probably because they were one of the most active groups. Rail issues closing with net loss of 1 point or more after steady selling included: Canadian Pacific debenture 4s, St. Paul 5s of 1975, Erie refunding and improvement 5s of 1975. Southern Pacific 4½s of 1968 and Southern consolidated 5s. A large number of rail issues also lost fractions. However, high grade rail issues resisted the downward trend satisfactorily. Union Pacific first 4s and 4s of 1968 Reading series A 4½s and Atchison general 4s closed firm on higher.

Foreign obligations received further attention but the fluctuations of German obligations reflected less apprehension. German 5½s of 1965 and Deutsche Bank 6s were two of the most active issues of the whole list and closed with fractional gains. Berlin's City Electric 6½s of 1951 and of 1959 were higher for the day on the final sale also. Some German issues receded of course but at no time did they appear to be under severe selling pressure. The new Taimon Electric Power 5½s were unusually active and closed at 95, a new 1931 peak. Trading in most other foreign obligations was generally quiet with the net changes mixed.

Loans of the United States Government were dull throughout the day, but they closed irregularly higher.

Wheat Pools Facing Difficulties in Canada

Winnipeg, Man., July 8 (A.P.).—The wheat pools of western Canada, marketing agency for 147,000 farmer members, must find aid or see the death of the cooperative system, according to representations made to federal and provincial governments by pool executives. The pools are faced with heavy liabilities to the governments and banks, which total $25,000,000, and with the prospect of a light crop.

A possible solution is seen by the executives in the reorganization of the Manitoba pool. A change in contract permits members to sell grain through voluntary pooling or on the open market, a drastic change in policy. It is believed that the same system will be put into effect by Saskatchewan and Alberta.

United Fruit Earns $6,700,000 Profits

New York, July 8 (A.P.).—United Fruit Co. for the six months ended June 30, had profit of approximately $6,700,000 before Federal taxes, compared with $10,100,000 in the first half of 1930. Profit for the June quarter was around $3,613,000 before Federal taxes, against $6,300,000 in the like quarter last year.

The company had a June 30 cash balance of $25,000,000, compared with $23,000,000 on the same date in 1930. The company has a sugar inventory of $4,000,000 and Cuban government bonds amounting to $1,292,000 received for sugar allocated under the Chadbourne plan.

GROVE TIGHTENS IN PINCHES, TURNS BACK NATS, 6-3

Mackmen Pound Brown For Four Runs at Start; Lead Now Is 6 1-2 Games

Nats Twice Fill Bases But Fail to Solve Star Southpaw.

By FRANK H. YOUNG.

THAT there is a big difference in hits was brought home to about 12,000 fans at Griffith Stadium yesterday in the final of the Philadelphia-Washington series, when the Athletics overpowered the Nationals to win, 6 to 3, and to extend their league lead to 6½ games, the largest it has been this season. The box score shows that the Nats obtained as many safe blows as did the visitors, but what a difference there was in the class of safeties credited to the world's champs.

Of the Macks' assortment, all but two were honest-to-goodness clouts, which included Jimmy Foxx's sixteenth home run of the season, a double and a triple by Al Simmons, a three-bagger by Mule Haas, and doubles by Bing Miller and Joe Boley. Matched against this collection the Nats can point only to a double by Ossie Bluege and few other real drives.

Brown Is Solved Early.

Lloyd Brown and Robert Moses (Lefty) Grove started on the hill for their respective teams, but the first-named had nothing with which to fool the alien pill pounders. Hardly had he warmed up when Bishop singled, Haas' intended suicide resulted in a safety, and then came a triple by Simmons and a homer by Foxx, netting four runs. And every one knows that a four-run lead is plenty large enough for Grove to work behind.

The Mackmen did not stop here, though; for, after two were out, Bishop's single and Haas' triple gave the Macks another run in the second. Brown went out to make way for a pinch hitter in the lower half of this round, and the Nats received some real pitching thereafter—but this help came too late.

Bob Burke toiled for four frames and, thanks to a snappy double play by his mates, escaped punishment in the third. His offerings were knicked for the only other alien run of the game in the sixth. This was molded from Miller's opening two-base swat, Dykes' sacrifice and Boley's one-shot. Carl Fischer pitched two hitless frames and Irving Hadley held the Elephants in check in the ninth.

Grove Weakens In Sixth.

Meanwhile, Grove, who turned in his seventeenth victory of the season and his eighth in a row, was having troubles but managed to pull out of every hole but one, in the sixth, when the Nats scored their trio of runs and threatened to break his good record of having finished every game he has started this year. Connie Mack had George (Rube) Walberg ready here and was close to making a change when Lefty suddenly tightened up and stopped the rampage.

Grove has two systems of pitching. He either bears down from start to finish or loafs along until the going gets rough before letting out at full speed. It was the latter system he employed yesterday after his mates gave him a big early lead.

Time after time, he would bang the cupboard door in the Nats' faces just as they were about to reach for a slice of cake. They had men left on the bases in every round, a dozen all told, and twice the third out was turned in with the aisles packed.

Myer Fails in Pinch.

Washington's first chance came in the second. West opened by coaxing a pass. After he was forced by Kuhel, the Nats filled the bases with two down on scratch singles by Spencer and Pinch Hitter Sam Rice. This put it up to Myer and his best was a tap to Grove.

Again in the fourth, it looked as though the Nats might break through Grove's defense but again he foiled them. This time he ended the round by fanning Manush after three hits, two scratchy, by Kuhel, Burke and Myer had fully peopled the bases.

It was not until the sixth that the Johnsons finally broke the ice and Grove's wildness helped almost as much as did the Nats' bats in bringing home this trio of runs. Kuhel and Spencer, first two up, were passed and Jack Hayes, hitting for Burke, singled the first baseman home and sent the catcher to third. He carried on to second when Haas failed to handle the drive cleanly. It was here that the lanky alien left-hander was near being yanked and it was here that he started bearing down. He fanned Myer and held Manush to a looper to left, but could not dispose of Cronin so easily, the shortstop coming through with his 100th hit of the year which drove both runners home. Then he fanned Harris.

Nats Make Last Stand.

This proved to be the Nats' last chance. Bluege doubled with one dead in the next session, but died on second. It was three up and three down for the home gang in the eighth, while Cronin's opening single in the ninth netted nothing. He was later forced by West and the latter was still perched on first when the game ended.

Cronin, who has been in a slump for a long while, showed signs of coming out of it by leading the Washington attack with two bingles, one of which scored two runs. Dave Harris also was credited with two, but neither of these was used, while Dave fanned on two other occasions when hits would have meant runs.

BOSTON HERE FOR 3-GAME SERIES

Marberry Is to Face Red Sox; Jordan Sent to Newark.

MANAGER JOHN (SHANO) COLLINS and his Red Sox will be in our midst this afternoon in the opener of a three-game series which carries through Saturday. On dope, the Beaneaters should prove to be much easier pickings than the Mackmen, who have just left, but the fact remains that Collins' band is playing good ball and should prove to be anything but a set-up for the Nationals. In series play to date, the Nats have a 7-to-4 edge.

Fred Marberry will do the Washington flinging, with Collins' selection a matter of guess work due to the fact that two postponements in New York give him several available moundmen.

Infielder Baxter Jordan has been sent on 24-hour option to Newark, as was predicted, the deal being completed yesterday morning. The player received permission from the Bears to visit his home at Salisbury, N. C., for a few days and left last night. He will report to the Newark Club at Rochester on July 11.

Walter Masters, Nat pitcher signed after his graduation from the University of Pennsylvania, will be honored when the Nats go to Philadelphia for their double-header Monday. Masters played amateur ball at Narberth, not far from the Quaker City, and a delegation of fans from there plans to turn out on his account and to give him a present of some kind.

Bishop opened the game with a single to center off Brown's first offering.

Fans were given a laugh when Harris was at the bat in the first. Umpire Dineen stepped back on a foul, but his spikes hung and while he was off balance, Catcher Cochrane stepped back against him and both went down in a heap.

After West opened the second with a walk, fans had visions of him scoring on Bluege's drive between Simmons and Haas, but the latter cut over fast and snared the ball just as it appeared to be passing him.

Sam Rice pinch-hit for Brown with two on and two dead in the second and filled the bases by scratching a topped one down third-base way.

When Burke appeared upon the scene starting the third, Simmons smacked his offering to left-center for a double. A warm welcome!

Bluege, Myer and Kuhel turned in a neat double-play to prevent an alien run in the third. The third-sacker made a nice stop of Dykes' bounder to start it and the first-sacker had to reach a mile with his gloved hand to complete it.

Outfielder Jim Moore, of the Mackmen, left yesterday for Newark, where he has been sent on option. With Jordan going from the Nats and Bill Werber already having been sent the Bears by the Yankees, it looks like the big boys are trying to help Newark win the international flag.

Harris' single with two dead in the third was the first clean one combed from Grove's offerings.

Of the Mackmen's first seven hits, Foxx hit a homer, Simmons a double and triple, and Haas a triple. It's power-hitting like this that put them where they are in the race and that likely will keep them there.

Miller, who carelessly muffed Manush's fly for a two-base error in the first, raced over almost to the wall in short right to make a fine catch at Manush's expense opening round 3.

With the bases loaded and two dead in the fourth, a foul third strike off Manush's bat bounded out of Coch-

Markey Beats Mitchell in Tourney

No. 1 Man in District Title Net Play Bows, 6-4, 5-7, 6-3.

Moorhead Eliminates Charest After Record 18-16 Set.

HIS side mud-caked from a Buster Keaton sprawl, the rest of him ringing wet from the exertion of an hour and three quarters of continuous running, Dooly Mitchell, seeded No. 1, already champion of Washington, yesterday was eliminated for the forty-fourth District of Columbia championship at Columbia Country Club, by Bud Markey, seeded No. 6, in a totally unlooked-for upset, 6—4, 5—7, 6—3.

It was the climax of a day of spectacular tennis, which saw as its net result three youths and a veteran enter the semifinals in singles and two teams enter the corresponding round in doubles.

One of the bitterest matches ever enacted in the District bloomed in the struggle between Clarence Charest, 48-year-old one-armed veteran, four times winner of the championship, and 19-year-young J. L. Moorhead, of Yale and Washington. The decision went to Moorhead in a memorable match, 16—18, 6—4, 6—2.

Shore-Latona Bow To Markey-Yeomans.

For two hours and a half the two netmen, one old enough to be the father of the other, battled for the right to be a semifinalist. Charest, master of every trick of the game, brought out all of them to stem the tide of Moorhead's mechanical driving, and appeared to have the match, when after 34 games he won the first set and sailed to 2—1 in the second.

But it had taken all of the vet's reserve. The shots which would have won for him the second set and the match failed to come off. Moorhead grew stronger and stronger and Charest, once he had failed to gather that second set into the bag, found no legs to carry him on in the third.

It was a brilliant, well-played, well thought-out match. The hundred-odd fans who witnessed it probably will never forget it.

The two remaining quarter final singles matches stood out in sharp contrast to the Moorehead-Charest, Markey-Mitchell matches. In the first of the other two events, Eddie Yeomans, now a strong favorite to win the tournament, bumped off Bob Elliott in straight sets 6—4, 6—3 and Tom Mangan, who too has his supporters now that Mitchell is out of the way, lambasted an erratic Frank Shore off the courts at 6—1, 6—2. Both matches were listless in the extreme, when offered against the scintillating play of the more titan struggles.

Charest Spends Reserve.

In the doubles yesterday, Markey and Yeomans won the final set from Shore and Latona, 6—3. It was a continuation of Tuesday's third round match in which each team had won a 6—4 set and stood 5—5 in the last. Shore continued his erratic play throughout the doubles.

Mangan and Considine, the unorthodox team which has held the championship for the last two years, advanced easily over what was thought to be a tough assignment in Alan Staubley and Frederico Sendel, 6—4, 6—2.

This afternoon at Columbia Markey meets Yeomans at 3 o'clock and Moorhead tackles Mangan at 4:30 o'clock, in two matches which promise much in the way of good tennis. Several doubles tilts are also on the program.

Ruth Hits 21st Homer in Opener; Scores Are 13-9 and 9-4.

NEW YORK, July 8 (A.P.).—With Big Jim Weaver making his first start of the year and Herb Pennock pitching his third complete game, the New York Yankees defeated the Boston Red Sox, 13 to 3 and 9 to 4, in today's double bill.

Weaver held the Sox to nine hits in the opener, as Ruth, Combs and Sewell led the Yankee attack with home runs. The circuit blow was Ruth's twenty-first of the season. In the nightcap Chapman stole home for his thirty-first stolen base of the year.

Refusal of Commission To Recognize Schmeling Is Greatly Unimportant

By WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Special to The Washington Post.

NEW YORK, July 8.—There has not been a successful heavyweight championship prize fight in the State of New York since Jack Dempsey knocked out Luis Angel Firpo at the Polo Grounds eight years ago. Therefore, the unwillingness of the New York prize fight commission to recognize Max Schmeling as champion should be a matter of terrific unimportance to Schmeling. He will be recognized everywhere else and even by the customers in New York, so the worst the New York commission can do to him is to refuse to permit his name to be chiseled on the shaft of the Tunney-Muldoon tombstone which stands in the lobby of Madison Square Garden.

There are worse fates than that and, moreover, now that he is a champion himself, Schmeling, if he really must have his name on a tombstone, has a full right to purchase one of his own to be called the Schmeling-Clinnin tombstone, for example, and engrave it with any names he happens to prefer.

Tunney established his monument as a delicate tribute to old Mr. Muldoon, of New York prize fight commission. As I recall it, Mr. Muldoon was a member of the New York commission which refused to let Tunney fight Dempsey for the championship in New York and otherwise hindered the young man in the pursuit of his ambition. But after Tunney had succeeded in spite of the commission, it developed that Mr. Muldoon had always known he had it in him, and they became fast friends.

Schmeling might wish to pay a similar complaint to General John V. Clinnin, of the Illinois commission, who was one of the first persons in the ring at Cleveland after Max had stopped Willie Stribling. General Clinnin presented him with a belt on the spot.

In establishing a monument, however, Schmeling might have some trouble finding a suitable lobby in which to erect it. Naturally it could not be received into the lobby of the Madison Square Garden of New York, because he is not the champion here, and it would be impossible to set up a monument to rival Mr. Muldoon's monument in Mr. Muldoon's own territory. But neither could it be placed in the lobby of the Madison Square Garden of Ohio, Illinois, New Jersey, Pennsylvania or Florida, as these are all insubstantial or hypothetical edifices with imaginary lobbies. On the whole, if Max must have his name on a tombstone, perhaps it would be best to make it a hypothetical affair because then the boys could not defile it by writing rude and disparaging remarks as they have done on the present one.

It is doubtful that Schmeling will fight again before next summer, for it has been accepted as a fact since 1910 that heavyweight champions are delicate artists who can not stand the strain of fighting more than once a year. The customers are pretty rugged, but even so, they can not

ON THE SIDELINES by BRIAN BELL

SLIP MADIGAN, football coach at St. Mary's College, thinks freshmen football competition is on its way out on the Pacific Coast.

"There is no point in freshmen teams playing other universities," said the former star guard of Notre Dame. "They have already found that out in the Middle West. Notre Dame and others have done away with freshmen competition. The Pacific Coast is bound to follow. Freshmen competition defeats its own purpose.

"A freshmen coach strives to find his strongest line-up as soon as possible. He builds up for successive games, endeavoring to win as many as possible. He thinks he is successful if he wins the championship, but he has not done the job for which he was intended. The freshmen coach should bear in mind that his principal duty is to instill fundamentals in the minds of future varsity players.

"When a boy comes up from high school, he is not prepared to play college football. There is too big a gap between the games. He must learn his fundamentals as a freshman.

FROSH AND FUNDAMENTALS.

"Much of Rockne's success belonged to his insistence that the freshmen play no intercollegiate games. He wanted his freshmen coaches to teach his men to make every movement count. They had to pass a ball a certain way every time until it became routine. And they became immediate varsity prospects because during their freshmen days they learned these valuable lessons instead of worrying about winning games.

"Certainly I have no kick coming on freshmen football because we can't win freshman games. We have had two marvelous frosh teams in the last two years, beating everybody. I simply believe it would be a great thing if all coast colleges simultaneously ducked this competition. Furthermore, freshmen games do not pay for themselves.

OLD-TIME baseball managers who fined players not checking into their hotels in the early evening have had to readjust their schedules with the coming of night baseball to the Minor Leagues.

Spencer Abbott, Manager of the Portland Club of the Pacific Coast League, who has managed baseball teams all over the United States, insists that his men be in the hotel rooms two hours after the game. He refuses to remain up longer.

Abbott insists, too, that his players fight for every point.

HATES "CHEERFUL LOSER."

"Of course," he said, "in a schedule of 200 games some games must be lost, but I want my team to be a tough loser. I hate a cheerful loser. No one has started to sing 'The Old Oaken Bucket' in the clubhouse after losing a hard game and I hope no one does. If somebody does, it will be just too bad."

At home the Portland manager relieves his failing pitchers with joyous abandon, sending in one after the other, as long as there is a chance to win. On the road he gives the pitchers a longer chance to get out of the hole.

He thinks the home town fans are entitled to see a parade of pitchers when the occasion justifies it and the playing talent is available.

The outspoken Spencer formerly managed in the International League and his apparent lack of respect for a high official of the Government caused him to become very unpopular for a time in a Canadian city.

The score was tied and Abbott's team had the bases filled when the dignitary decided to leave. Play was stopped and in came a coach with four horses, plumes on their heads. A carpet was placed from the stands to the coach and the official left.

When the official had departed, Abbott's batter hit a home run.

"There goes your leftenant and his plumed horses," yelled Spencer as he waved the runners around the bases.

PANS PLAYERS PUBLICLY.

He has his own ideas of bestowing praise and criticism on his players. He does not believe the clubhouse privacy is the best place for either.

"When a player makes a good play, pat him on the back right in front of the crowd," he suggests. "And if he pulls a boner bawl him out, in front of the fans. He will remember it more than if you wait until you get him in the clubhouse."

The veteran manager believes players gain their baseball knowledge by experience. Few players are ever seen reading a rule book. And Manager Abbott might add if he wished to cover the situation throughly many professional players, in the majors and minors, do not know the rules of the game that gives them a chance to become famous and wealthy.

No matter where his Ducks finish in the far West, he will have the satisfaction of knowing that they led the league for a time anyway. He managed to get out in the first division and finally took first place.

WATT BEATS GIANTS FOR PHILLIES

Terry's Wild Throw in 9th on Bunt Decides Game, 5-4.

PHILADELPHIA, July 8 (A.P.).—The New York Giants lost the opening game of the series with the Phillies 5 to 4 today when Bill Terry's wild throw to third base in the ninth broke up a hurling duel between Frank Watt and Fred Fitzsimmons.

The Giants took a four-run lead off Frank Watt in the third on hits by Hunnefield, Leach, Terry and Ott's home run but the Phillies tied the score by counting twice in the third and twice again in the fourth. Friberg doubled to start the final half of the ninth. Watt bunted down the first base line and Terry attempted to catch Friberg at third but threw wild, allowing the Phillies second baseman to score with the winning run.

Tilden Shows Brilliance in Triumph

'Big Bill,' Other Seeded Netmen Advance in Pro Tourney.

Burke, Frenchman, in Form; Kinsey Wins in Three Sets.

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., July 8 (A.P.).—No breaks occurred in the seeded group as the lawn tennis professionals made their belated start in the fifth annual tournament for the championship of the United States on the turf of the West Side Tennis Club here today. Vincent Richards, the defending title holder, cut loose his fastest volleys to overwhelm Allen Behr, New York, 6—1, 6—0, 6—0.

Big Bill Tilden, making his first appearance in a professional tournament; Francis T. Hunter and Howard O. Kinsey, former Davis Cup stars, and the others of the selective list all came through with comparative ease. Albert Burke, of France, revealed the fluency of stroke which has made him a model on the European courts.

Tilden's match provided a brief flash of brilliance. In his happiest Mood, Big Bill essayed all manner of fancy strokes against the veteran, James Burns. Outclassed as was the latter, he caught his famous opponent out of position at times. Breezy and free of stroke, however, Tilden shot beautiful backhanders into the corners, or sent his parallel line drives skirting the court borders. During the lively encounter, Big Bill accounted for a total of 19 placements; 20 outs, and 19 nets. Tilden is to meet James J. Mitchell, of Richmond, Va., for the place in the quarter-final tomorrow.

Burke Shows Fine Form.

It might properly be said that three nations, France, Ireland and Russia, figured in the session between Albert Burke, of France, transplanted from Ireland, and Capt. Valerian Yavorsky, formerly of the Russian imperial army. The faultless stroking of Burke held him safely in the lead all the way to the final score, 6—1, 6—0, 6—0. Grace stood forth as the keynote of the Frenchman's game. Favoring taking the ball on the falling bound, low off the ground, his speed and control were always remarkable.

As a chop-stroke artist, Howard O. Kinsey proved that the baffling bound is still effective against those not versed in its mysteries. The former Davis Cup player had little difficulty in mastering Robert K. Murray, Forest Hills, 6—1, 6—3, 6—4. When

Cubs Blanked by Meine of Pirates, Until Ninth

Pittsburgh, July 8 (A.P.).—Chicago could do nothing with Heinie Meine until two were out in the ninth inning today, and Pittsburgh defeated the Cubs 5 to 2. Meine held the visitors to six hits and had his second successive shut-out in sight when Hemsley's triple scored Stephenson and the Cub catcher tallied as Grimm singled. All the locals' runs were scored off Warneke and May in the first two innings.

SITE OF SCHMELING-CARNERA BOUT IN FALL UNCERTAIN

Title Defense Is Agreed On By Jacobs

Chicago, Jersey or Philadelphia May Get Match.

Sept. 17 to Be Date; Cleveland Still a Possibility.

By EDWARD J. NEIL.

NEW YORK, July 8 (A.P.).—Max Schmeling, king of the heavyweights, will be back in the ring September 17, risking his championship and swapping punches with another challenger, this time Primo Carnera, the man mountain from Italy.

Less than a week after he blasted young Bill Stribling in the Cleveland Municipal Stadium ring, the dogged German agreed today through his manager, Joe Jacobs, to his second championship defense of the summer season. Schmeling is enroute to Germany for a brief vacation but he will return in August to resume training.

The distance will be fifteen rounds but the site for the match must remain a guessing puzzle for several weeks at least. Unless Schmeling is reinstated in New York, a remote possibility, since he so far has refused to meet Jack Sharkey in a return engagement, the bout will be taken by the Madison Square Garden Corporation of Illinois either to Chicago, Jersey City, or Philadelphia.

Cleveland May Get Another Chance.

Cleveland might be given another chance to produce a gate greater than the $30,000 output for the Schmeling-Stribling duel that cost the Ohio Garden a loss of about $50,000.

Jacobs conferred with Leon See, manager of Carners, and William V. Saxe, president of the Ohio Garden Corporation, for an hour today, smoothing away some of the difficulties that arose through the Italian's attempt to break a contract for the match signed last January. At the close of the discussions, Saxe issued the following statement:

"In accordance with the agreements made last January, a bout for the heavyweight championship of the world has been arranged between Max Schmeling, now heavyweight champion, and Primo Carnera, challenger. This bout is scheduled to occur some time in the early fall."

Declares Carnera Broke Contract.

Although Leon See said the match would take place September 17, Jacobs has insisted up to today that Carnera had broken the agreement of January, when Stribling, Schmeling and Carnera entered into a three-cornered pact, by failure to post a forfeit of $25,000 to bind his share of the bargain. The Italian giant also went to court a few weeks ago in an attempt to break the contract with the Garden and clear the way for a match with Jack Sharkey for a rival promoter at Ebbets Field. Final decision in the court action has not been made, but because of Carnera's apparent change of allegiance the matter probably will be dropped.

Today Saxe said the forfeit clause in the January agreement had been waived "by mutual consent."

STRANGE AS IT SEEMS —By John Hix

ANY chemical element or compound occurring naturally as a product of inorganic processes is a mineral. Although minerals are usually solids, water (as well as mercury) at ordinary temperature is classified as a mineral. When water is solidified into ice it is just as much a mineral as diamond or quartz.

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office)

—Arlington Park Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

ARLINGTON PARK, Chicago, July 8.—The North Dakota Purse, an allowance affair which carries a $2,000 purse, has attracted nine milers to face the barrier in the feature event at Arlington Park tomorrow. The supporting feature, another mile gallop for 3-year-olds, received a list of seven contestants.

Of those named to start in the main attraction, the W. E. Caskey entry of WILLIAM T. and MYNHEER holds a slight edge over their seven rivals. The former raced ROCKET GLARE to a length last start, after being practically left at the post. With an energetic ride, the Caskey colors should be carried to victory. ROCKET GLARE, from the S. W. Labrot stable, turned in a brilliant victory in her previous effort over WILLIAM T., but under the conditions, the latter should reverse the tables. SATIN SPAR has several sparkling races to his credit and may gain the show.

Mrs. J. D. Hertz's consistent gelding, HIS LAST, a double winner at this track, figures best of the seven named to contest the mile of the Arizona Purse, fourth event on the card. The son of Luke McLuke stepped this distance in 1:37 1-5 in his last winning effort and that repeated here should hold the opposition safe. TRED AVON has shown steady improvement in recent races and will be the one to fear. TRY IT has not raced to his best form of late, but is favored for the minor award.

FIRST RACE—NIGHT VINTAGE raced forwardly in his last start to finish second to Unencumbered. The Mrs. Jackson youngster should improve enough to annex the purse. PIROGUE appears to be the contender. In his last effort, he came from far back to finish a fast closing third, behind some capable juveniles. BLACK JEWEL forced the pace last start, but weakened. Off that effort he is favored for the show.

SECOND RACE—BUGS LEARY has only to race back to his splendid third to Procession and Eighty Twenty to gain the honors. THUNWIN followed the top one home in that meeting and should go as well here. BASCILLA holds the edge over the others for third money.

THIRD RACE—PORTDEN, fast-stepping juvenile from the J. F. Schorr string, following his clever victory last start, should duplicate that effort in the 5½ furlongs of the third. OSCILLATION raced far below her best form in her Chicago debut. On her New York efforts, the Longridge filly should finish in the runner-up position. MEXICO was withdrawn yesterday to start here and may prove dangerous.

SIXTH RACE—O. L. Foster's steady plater, ROLLING SEA, should hold her opposition safe in the mile of the sixth, which is fashioned for 3-year-olds and upward mares and fillies. This consistent racer took down several purses at Washington Park, and has been training briskly for her initial performance at this track. TRAUMEL, the much-improved 3-year-old in the H. T. Archibald Stable, rates the place call, with ENGLEWOOD as the show possibility.

SEVENTH RACE — Another limit field will face the barrier in the final event, which brings together 20 3-year-olds and upward to contest the purse over the mile and eighth route. On recent form SEARINGTON, from the J. Coffey Barn, appears best of this band of platers and should score. WORKLESS has turned in some fair efforts and may finish second. SHOWDOWN has only HARPOON to defeat for the minor award.

HUDLIN STAR AS INDIANS WIN IN 11th

Stops White Sox and Starts Rally in 10-6 Victory.

CHICAGO, Ill., July 8 (A.P.).—Willis Hudlin personally won an extra-inning victory for himself this afternoon when he singled in the eleventh inning to drive home the first run of a wild scoring splurge that enabled the Cleveland Indians to beat the White Sox 10-6.

Hudlin replaced Brown in the seventh and held the Sox scoreless until the last of the eleventh when, with a five-run lead, he eased up and the hose scored one. Joe Vosmik, hitting a home run in the first inning with two men on base, gave the Indians a big lead, but Chicago tied the score in the second. Caraway was hit for single runs in the third and fourth but the Sox again deadlocked it in the seventh aided by Luke Sewell's error.

SIX WASHINGTON GOLFERS SEEK TO ENTER U. S. AMATEUR

U.S.G.A. May Not Accept Shorey

May Not Be Eligible as a Member of Kenwood Club.

Qualifying July 28 at Richmond; Others May Enter.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

ALTHOUGH the entries for the qualification round for eligibility to play in the national amateur championship closed in New York last Tuesday no word has been received in Washington concerning the players who will represent this section. It is known, however, that M. B. Stevinson, Columbia; Walter R. McCallum, Washington; M. Parker Nolan, Congressional; J. William Harvey, jr., Indian Spring; Harry G. Pitt, Manor, and John C. Shorey, Kenwood, have sent in their applications. It is possible that there are others, including Dr. L. S. O'Tell, Indian Spring.

The situation involving Shorey led yesterday to a continual exchange of telegrams and long distance telephone calls between New York and Washington. Shorey is still a member of the Bannockburn Club but this club has resigned from the United States Golf Association. He has applied for membership in the Manor Club which is affiliated with the national body, but he has not yet been elected nor has he received definite assurance that his application will be favorably acted upon.

Denies Affiliation Of Kenwood Club.

Shorey is a member of the Kenwood Club and C. P. Grady, superintendent of the club, assured him that the Kenwood Club had been a member of the United States Golf Association since 1927. However, every list of member clubs published in the official year-book of the U. S. G. A. since that date, and including the latest volume under date of 1931, does not mention the Kenwood Club.

Nothwithstanding this situation, Shorey last Monday mailed his application to the United States Golf Association as a member of the Kenwood Club and yesterday morning a telegram was received stating that his application could not be accepted for the reason that the Kenwood Club was not affiliated with the association. This statement was denied by Grady over the long-distance telephone and last night, when questioned as to the final outcome, he stated that he had received a wire accepting Shorey's application.

Assurance Made By Telephone.

Grady added that he could not give the complete text of the telegram, as it had been read to him over the telephone, but that it positively assured acceptance. The telegram was not signed, according to Grady, by any official but simply "United States Golf Association." Last night, therefore, Shorey was confident and with apparent reason, that he would be allowed to compete in the qualification round, which will be played on July 28 on the course of the Hermitage Club at Richmand, Va.

rane's glove but he grabbed it before it hit the ground, much to the consternation of the fans.

Cronin, who threw out Miller after a fine stop in the first, gave an encore at Foxx's expense ending the fifth, taking the hot grasser in deep short and following through with a rifle peg.

Dykes, Mackian third-sacker, did not have a chance afield until the fifth when he tossed out Bluege.

When Hayes, up for Burke in the sixth, singled, it gave the Nat pinch-hitters a 100 per cent average at that stage of the game. The blow scored Kuhel and sent Spencer to third, this pair having coaxed successive passes.

A leaping one-hand grab by Bishop robbed West of a hit opening the native seventh.

Bluege was credited with the Nats' only extra-base blow. He doubled down the third-base line with one dead in the seventh.

Dave Harris, playing back against the fence, came in fast to make a fine running catch of Foxx's looper opening round eight. It was his only chance of the game.

REST IS PLAN FOR COCHET, HE SAYS

French Davis Cup Ace Awaits Improvement in His Shoulder.

PARIS, July 8 (A.P.).—Henri Cochet, nursing an attack of synovitis, left today for Montrevard to rest his ailing shoulder in preparation for the coming Davis Cup challenge round.

If the shoulder improves as he expects, he will return next week to start serious training for the expected meeting with the United States. Synovitis is an inflammation of the membrane of the joint.

Cochet told Samuel Hardy, captain of the American Davis Cup squad, his shoulder wasn't "extremely bad," but that he wanted to make sure he was in condition to play.

American Team Due In Paris Today.

The American team, at Le Touquet recuperating from the hard battles at Wimbledon, is due in Paris tomorrow to start work for the interzone finals July 17, 18 and 19, with either England or Czechoslovakia. Players of these two nations meet at Prague tomorrow, Friday and Saturday for the right to play America.

Hardy was none too optimistic tonight over the chances of the United States in the interzone.

His four youngsters—Frank Shields, Sidney Wood, John Van Ryn and George Lott—are in for a hard struggle, Hardy said, if England wins, as is expected, as the English have an excellent team.

High Point Franchise Transfer Is Delayed

Special to The Washington Post.

Danville, Va., July 8.—Award to Danville of the High Point, N. C., franchise in the Piedmont, Class "B" League by Mrs. E. E. Sensenbach remains uncertain and she will not determine the fate of the club until a week from today. According to the franchise owner the club is breaking even. What she resents, she says, is criticism of the team and its management. Several North Carolina towns are seeking the franchise, she stated, but she felt obligated not to divulge their names. In the meantime the School Board has facilitated the bringing of organized baseball here by setting a rental for the grounds at $5 per game and retention of all the concessions. This will provide about the sum necessary to maintain the grounds.

Girl and Father Sue Wolgast for $50,000

Philadelphia, July 8 (A.P.).—Midget Wolgast, who Friday night defends his flyweight boxing title in New York against Ruby Bradley, Holyoke, Mass., Negro, today was sued for $50,000 damages by Carmen Manara, of Atlantic City, and his daughter, Rose, 19.

The suit alleged Wolgast and two companions lured the girl to their apartment and subjected her to brutal treatment.

Wolgast was released yesterday under $5,000 bail after his arrest Saturday on Miss Manara's charge that he took her to the apartment, attacked her and held her prisoner for two weeks. James Farina, 25, and Louis Pirolli, 23, were arrested with Wolgast and were named codefendants in the damage suit filed today.

Hunk Anderson Under Knife for Appendicitis

Rochester, Minn., July 8 (A.P.).—Heartly "Hunk" Anderson, senior football coach at Notre Dame, who had been recovering at a Rochester hospital from an attack of meningitis, was operated on late today following an attac kof acute appendicitis.

Several hours after the operation Anderson's condition was reported as "fairly good," although Dr. Waltman Walters, who removed the appendix, said it was too early to determine if any complications might develop.

Anderson came to Rochester more than a week ago for examination to determine the cause of severe headaches, from which he had been suffering since last May. Physicians diagnosed his ailment as meningitis. He had been receiving treatment the past week, and the headaches had nearly disappeared.

Navy Second Class Nine Bows to Dairymen, 8-3

Annapolis, Md., July 8.—The brand of pitching exhibited by the Cloverland Farms Dairy baseball team of Baltimore was a little too much for the Navy second class this afternoon. They were held to five hits and three runs, while the visitors scored eight times off thirteen hits.

The second classmen were held to two singles until the last inning. In their final appearance singles by Masterton, Ward and Smith combined with a pass to give them their lone scores of the game. Previous to that Johnson held them to one bingle in five innings and Wood granted them one more in the two stanzas in which he toiled. Reitz pitched the last two innings for Cloverland. Neither Davenport nor Campbell were puzzling to the Baltimoreans, they hitting timely and frequently. Reitz, versatile player in both the outfield and on the mound, secured four bingles in five times at bat to start all but one of the rallies in innings in which his team scored.

BELLE HAVEN FACES GOLF MATCH

Special to The Washington Post.

ALEXANDRIA, Va., July 8.—The twelve-man team of the Belle Haven Golf and Country Club will trek to Winchester on Saturday for the final match of the Tristate Association tournament.

Records disclose the Belle Haveners are occupying third place, only a few points out of the top position. The Belle Haven Club will probably meet Purcelleville in the tournament. A decisive victory over the latter team would assure the Alexandrians the championship. Martinsburg is leading the loop, with Winchester second.

Charlie Rollins is captain of the Belle Haven team. Tom Ryan, professional at the club, announced today the Alexandria twelve for the match would be selected within the next two days.

An intensive drive to raise $500 for the American Legions Juniors' baseball game will begin in Alexandria this week, it was announced by Sidney Weil, commander of the American Legion.

Weil says he will call a meeting of the committee and draft plans for the drive. The Legion Juniors will represent Alexandria in the State championship junior baseball series at Danville.

Yarter's home run in the thirteenth inning gave the Legion Juniors a 5-to-4 victory over the Virginia Juniors in a game here today. The contest was played on Haydon's Field.

K. Lewis and Helfin hurled for the winners, while Nugent teed the slab for the losers. The latter made three hits. A large crowd saw the game.

NEWTON WELCOMES B. Y. P. U. TO CAPITAL AS SESSIONS OPEN

4,000 Attend Convention; Investigations Will Be Featured.

DELEGATES TO MEET PRESIDENT AT NOON

Everett Calls on Youths to Assume Work Dropped by Seniors.

Gathered here from every part of the United States, more than 4,000 members of the Baptist Young People's Union of America opened their fortieth annual convention last night with a session at the Washington auditorium at which addresses were made by Walter H. Newton, secretary of President Hoover; W. W. Everett, chairman of the executive committee of the Columbia Association of Baptist Churches, and Mrs. J. M. Dawson, of Waco, Tex.

A feature of the convention will be introduced today when investigation sessions on various topics, ranging from the home to prohibition, will be held. The object of these sessions is to go to the heart of the various subjects with the view to advancing remedies to existing problems.

The delegates will be greeted by President Hoover at noon today and will pose with him on the White House lawn for a picture.

Everett Lauds Hoover.

Mr. Newton told the young Baptists that in Washington they should receive the necessary inspiration to go back home and carry on the work that awaits them for the betterment of the world. He expressed the hope that in the Capital the organization will enjoy its "most enthusiastic and inspiring convention."

Mr. Everett evoked extended applause when he declared that in President Hoover the country has a President who is carrying on work on which the principles of the Nation were founded, a President, he added, that "we can all stand behind." Mr. Everett said that the preservation of Christian ideals is a task awaiting organizations like the B. Y. P. U., adding that there was rarely a greater need for such a work.

"It is the hope of the Nation," he said, "that you young people take up the work that some of us old ones have laid down."

Urges Adherence to Ideals.

Mrs. Dawson, in a 40-minute address that was presented in a dramatic, evangelistic vein, appealed to the young Baptists to adhere to the ideals of sacrifice and unselfishness of Jesus Christ and to grasp the problems in the world today and seek to solve them. She pointed to conditions in Russia as illustrative of the type of problem she had in mind.

William H. Rhoades conducted a devotional on approaching God in worship, interspersed with hymn singing and colored lantern slide illustrations. Special singing was given by a chorus composed of 300 voices under the direction of George F. Kortzenborn. Response to the addresses of welcome was made by J. Milton Johnson, president of the B. Y. P. U.

The theme of the convention is the magnetic Christ, inspired by the words of Jesus, "And I, if I be lifted up from earth, will draw all men unto me."

WOMAN AND 3 PETS ARE KILLED BY GAS

Note Left by Mrs. Gedeon Says "Bill, You Are to Blame."

Mrs. Jennie Gedeon, 32, was found dying in the gas-filled kitchenette of her small apartment on Eleventh street, near L northwest, yesterday by members of the fire rescue squad, who worked over her for more than an hour before she was pronounced dead by an Emergency Hospital physician. Two cats and a Boston bulldog, her companions in life, lay dead beside her on the floor of the room.

Marital troubles were believed by police to have motivated Mrs. Gedeon's act. A note which said in part, "Bill, you are to blame," was found in the room. Other papers in the room indicated that her husband is William Gedeon, who is believed to be working at his trade as a printer in Cleveland, Ohio.

A request that her body be cremated and the expenses of such disposal defrayed from $11 she said was in her purse was also contained in the parting missive of Mrs. Gedeon.

The rescue squad members were forced to break the door of the apartment, which was locked, to gain entrance. Four jets were open on the gas stove in the kitchen, they said.

Officials at the apartment house said the woman rented the apartment from them June 12, explaining that her husband was in Cleveland. Little else was known about her, they said.

The body was removed to the District Morgue and Coroner J. Ramsay Nevitt notified.

Lone Policeman Hauls 32 Speeders Into Court

Thirty-two speeders were arraigned in Police Court yesterday with a single policeman, R. V. Sinclair, as the complaining officer.

The policeman testified some of his victims were going in the neighborhood of 50 miles an hour, while others were merely traveling a few miles an hour above the legal limit.

Steam Shovel Takes Fire.

Several pieces of fire apparatus were called out late last night to extinguish a fire which broke out in a steam shovel being used for excavation work in the extension of the Botanic Gardens. The machine was at rest in the excavation, near Peace Monument. Damage was estimated at $50. The origin of the blaze was not determined.

CROWD WITNESSES REVIVAL OF GAMING RAIDING DOWNTOWN

Two Members of "Four Horsemen" and Special Squad Make Arrests.

GUSTAVE RHINEHARDT SEIZED AS OPERATOR

11 Alleged Patrons Taken in Heavily Guarded H Street Place.

Lashing out again at downtown gambling activities, two of the "four horsemen" and members of the special squad at headquarters yesterday afternoon descended on an establishment in H street near Twelfth street northwest, arresting the alleged operator, Gustave Rhinehardt. Eleven purported patrons, also arrested, were later released to appear in Police Court this morning.

The raid was begun by Detective Sergt. Arthur Fihelly and Howard Ogle, of "four horsemen" fame, who summoned the special squad members. This contingent was composed of Sergts. G. M. Little and N. O. Holmes, and Privates T. M. McVeary, F. O. Brass and J. K. Baker.

Are Allowed to Enter.

The raiders at first started to make their entrance through the barred windows of the place, but after parleying with the occupants they were allowed to pass through a system of heavy doors. A buzzer system to warn of approaching customers or of the "law" was discovered by the policemen, they said.

A quantity of forms, several telephones, a loud speaker and other paraphernalia were wrecked by the raiders. The heavy doors and other protection equipment were also dismantled.

A large crowd watched the operations of the detectives and special squad members and disappeared only after two patrol wagons had carted off the men arrested and part of the paraphernalia which the police desired for evidence.

Seek Couple of Fellows.

Rhinehardt said he was 37 years old, and gave an address on Twelfth street, near H northwest. He was charged with permitting gaming and released on $500 bond for his appearance this morning in Police Court.

The two members of the "horsemen" quartet said that in entering the alleged gaming house they were still looking for a couple of fellows in connection with the Salvation Legation liquor attack.

BabyDrinks Turpentine; His Condition Is Serious

While playing on the porch of his home at 1342 E street northeast yesterday, 19-month-old Edward Taylor, jr., reached a bottle of turpentine being used by painters working on the house and drank a quantity of the liquid.

Mrs. Helen Taylor, mother of the child, rushed him to Casualty Hospital, where, after treatment, his condition was pronounced serious.

Druggist Reports Theft of Goods.

Franklin P. Weller reported to police that while he was filling a prescription in his drug store at 755 Eighth street southeast last night a man entered, snatched up five boxes of razor blades, three boxes of candy and three bottles of perfume and escaped in a taxicab. The merchandise was valued at $10.

Robin Reared by Cat Will Fly Away Today

Timmie, a cat, is shown with the young robin which it assumed the responsibility of rearing a few weeks ago and to which it will say goodby today, as the robin is due for a life of freedom.

Timmie, Famous Feline, to Lose Bird Friend of Several Weeks.

Timmie, one of Washington's best known cats, likes nothing better than a daily automobile ride. But of late Timmie has been quite content to remain at home, for upon him devolved the job of helping rear a young robin. He assumed the responsibility cheerfully.

The robin, apparently lost and much the worse from wear, was found a few weeks ago and taken to Timmie's home. They immediately became fast friends. But the perfect friendship will end soon. The robin, as robins do, has grown and is due to take off from Lincoln Memorial grounds today for a life of freedom.

However, Timmie still has a bird friend in "Caruso," a former White House canary, who has been his playmate for three years, albeit Caruso has been somewhat neglected during the robin's stay. Caruso is camerashy and has never posed for a picture.

Timmie spent the first year of his life in the office of the Cleveland News Bureau on the twelfth floor of the National Press Building and thus made friends with distinguished men from all over the Nation. For the last three years he has lived in a tenth story apartment.

While automobiling is his principal hobby, Timmie is also fond of boating and frequently goes on a train trip. He has been trained to box, but has never developed much punch. He likes certain types of radio programs, principally musical, but is very discriminating. Timmie weighs 17 pounds. The robin perched on his head tips the beam at 2½ ounces.

Timmie belongs to Mr. and Mrs. B. N. Timmons. The robin beginning today will belong to the great out-of-doors.

BRYANT GIRL TO LIE NEAR OTHER VICTIMS

Grave Will Be in Virginia County Where Two Who Were Slain Rest.

The third girl victim of gunshot wounds in Washington is to be buried in the same Virginia county with the previous two.

Elsie Bryant, 14 years old, who died at Emergency Hospital yesterday from bullet wounds inflicted by a jealous suitor, will occupy a grave in Westmoreland County, Va. Buried not far away are Mary Baker and Beulah Limerick, both of whom were shot to death, but by parties unknown.

The Bryant girl will be interred at the Providence Baptist Church Cemetery tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock. A coroner's inquest will be held at 11 o'clock this morning at the District Morgue into the death of the girl at the hands of William Owens, 70 years old, a dredge captain, of Capitol Heights, Md. The shooting took place at 456 M street southwest, the home of Mrs. Gertrude Campbell, sister of Elsie, who also was shot and wounded by Owens.

Owens, who is said to have fired at the Bryant girl because of jealousy over the attentic of a younger rival for her affections, is being held in the District Jail. No charges will be placed against him pending the decision of the coroner's jury.

Mrs. William Owens, wife of the elderly dredge captain, has announced her intention of "sticking by" her husband. She was in another room at the M street house when the shooting took place.

The Bryant girl, to whom Owens had been deeply attached for some time, is said to have spurned a $10,000 offer by him to renounce her younger suitor. Four bullets were fired into her body by Owens. At Emergency Hospital physicians said that had she lived she would have been hopelessly paralyzed.

COURT ORDER AIDS RHEEM CREDITORS

Note Holders Get One Year to Amend Claim Proofs in Bankruptcy.

Although he expressed serious concern over the court's jurisdiction, Justice Peyton Gordon yesterday signed an order that will permit unpaid holders of notes of the Swartzell, Rheem & Hensey Co. to amend within one year from July 26 "any and all proofs of claims" against the company.

This action relieves the note holders of the penalty that would follow their election of the incorrect course, for the last day for filing claims will be July 26. No claims can be accepted after that date because of the statute of limitations.

As the matter now stands, note holders may institute proceedings along one line and then switch to another. Thus, their election will not be final with the filing of their first claims. Without the order of Justice Gordon, claimants would be barred from recourse if they had originally chosen the wrong party to sue, because the law holds that once they have taken a course they must follow that course.

Justice Gordon questioned attorneys about their conception of the court's jurisdiction. He then said: "Well, I have made mistakes before, so I shall sign this order. Much harm might be done if I don't sign it, for I possibly have jurisdiction."

Henry P. Blair, for the bankrupt company's receivers, and George E. Sullivan, for note holders, pressed for the signing of the paper, though Mr. Blair said he doubted the court's jurisdiction, and he further said the order would seriously delay the administration of the bankruptcy estate.

THE ONCE OVER

CAST:

Ted Gimmel, a broadcaster.

Ray Schmoose, another broadcaster.

Floyd Malarkye, ditto.

Eddie Dooks, ditto.

Wimple, a twice-around-the world upside-down flyer.

Wirps, his navigator.

Wimple and Wirps, after flying twice around the world upside down, have just landed and have been swallowed up by the crowd. The four announcers stationed at various points are obviously pretty much in the dark regarding what is happening.

GIMMEL—They've just come down, folks. . . . What a scene! The crowd has gone mad out here . . . I'll have to switch you to Ray Schmoose, who is nearer than I am. . . . Are you there, Ray?

Schmoose—Yes, Teddie. . . . This is Ray Schmoose talking, folks, and in just a jiffy we'll let you hear from these two intrepid birdmen who have just flown twice around the world in 11 days. . . . They're coming here to hangar 12 now . . . No, they're going to hangar 15 . . . I'll give you Floyd Malarkey, who will tell you what is going on there. . . . Hello, Floyd!

Malarkey—Oh, boy, what a scene! . . . I wish you could see it. . . . These two boys, Wimple and Wirps, who have flown twice around the world backward, have landed and they were coming this way, but I have lost them in the crowd now. . . . Boy, this is exciting! Eddie . . . Oh, Eddie Dooks?

Dooks—Yes, Floyd.

• • • •

DOOKS—This is Eddie Dooks, Folks. . . . What a scene this is. . . . Oh, what a scene! . . . Wimple and Wirps, home from the most stirring flight in history, have just landed here and you will hear the tale from their own lips in just a few moments. . . . They are fighting their way to this hangar and . . . Wait! . . . the police escort has turned! . . . Evidently the boys are going to the Public Relations Hangar . . . Oh, Ted! . . . Ted!

Gimmel—Yes, Eddie.

Dooks—I guess you can see more of this than I can, Teddy. . . . Will you cut in at this point?

Gimmel—Okay, Ted. . . . Ted Gimmel talking, folks. . . . What a scene! . . . What a sight! . . . These boys, Wimple and Wirp, have just landed after a flight twice around the world upside down. . . . The crowd is wild. . . . The boys are down there somewhere, swallowed up in it. . . . There must be 50,000 people here. . . . Oh, Floyd! Oh, Floyd Malarkey!

Malarky—Yes, Teddy.

Gimmel—How many people would you say are here, Floyd?

Malarkey—About 50,000 people, folks. . . . What a scene!

Gimmel—Fifty thousand people! Thanks, Floyd.

Malarkey—Not at all, Ted.

(This sort of thing goes on for about an hour and a quarter. Ultimately the two fliers reach a microphone in a hangar in which the announcer is a Mr. Blitz.)

• • • •

BLITZ—Here they are, folks. . . . Stand by and hear the story of this epochal trip from the lips of these two splendid heroes. . . . They are back after flying twice around the world upside down and backwards. . . . Right this way, Mr. Wimple. . . . This way, Mr. Wirps. . . . Now, folks, you will hear the story from the boys themselves.

Wimple—Hello . . . I'm glad to be back.

Chorus of Radio Announcers—Oh, Ted! . . . Oh, Ray! . . . Oh, Eddie! . . . Oh, Floyd!

HAPPY DAYS ARE HERE AGAIN.

Count that day strange
Whose low descending sun
Sees not another trans-

BILLY BURKE, the new golf champion, defeated George Von Elm on the second play-off after a total battle of 144 holes. If it had lasted any longer both boys would have begun hitch-hiking.

It's a fine thing the Burke-Von Elm match ended on the second play-off. The Travelers Aid Society was all ready to step in and take a hand.

City and Park Police Applications Called

Application for positions on the Washington police force and the park police staff will be received at the offices of the United States Civil Service Commission until August 3, the commission announced yesterday.

Applicants must be residents of the District and remain residents here during the period of their employment, it was stated. They must have reached their twenty-second, but not their thirty-second birthday. The entrance salary is $1,900.

Hospital Test Ordered For Fire-Alarm Adict

Psychiatrists at Gallinger Hospital will examine William David Webb, 23-year-old victim of a peachant for turning in false fire alarms. Judge Ralph Given in Police Court yesterday, ordered the boy sent to Gallinger for a ten-day period of observation.

Police testified that Webb told them he turned in the ten alarms early Tuesday morning because he was lonely. He was seen to pull the box at Ninth and D streets northwest, and Sergt. W. H. Thomas, riding by on a street car, alighted and arrested him after a short chase. Only one charge was presented in court against Webb.

Police to Get Light Shirts For Hot Weather Wear

Provision for a lightweight blue shirt to be worn in lieu of the heavy uniform blouse by members of the Metropolitan Police, during hot weather, is expected to be made shortly. A conference was held yesterday between Inspector William S. Shelby, executive officer of the department, and other police officials at which the matter was discussed.

A special order last summer permitted the policemen to doff their uniform blouses, but it was found that the prescribed white shirt easily soiled and thus helped to give the men an unpresentable appearance. The blue shirt, to be made of chambray, will solve this difficulty, it is believed.

Traffic Bureau policemen were given permission late in the spring to don gray blouses in place of the uniform blouses and white shirts and this move has proved to be successful in all ways, officials say.

FEDERAL WORKERS HIT PLAN FOR LONG DAYS, SHORT WEEK

Opposition to Bloom's Idea in Bicentennial Office to Be Strenuous.

SUSPICION OF EMPLOYES EXPRESSED BY LEADER

National Session Delegates Discuss Five-Day Work Plan at Meeting.

Establishment of a five-day work week for Government employes, the extra holiday to be made up by working extra hours on other days, will be strenuously opposed by the organized employes.

Inauguration of a five-day work week for employes of the United States George Washington Bicentennial Commission, beginning this week, was announced yesterday by Representative Sol Bloom (Democrat), of New York, associate director of the commission.

The four-hour Saturday work day, under Representative Bloom's plan, will be made up by extra hours of work from Monday to Friday inclusive.

Opposition Made Clear.

Opposition of the Govrenment employes to such a program was made clear in the course of an impromptu discussion which followed a meeting held last night in the Labor Building of the delegates who will represent organized Government workers at the national convention of the National Federation of Federal Employes in Seattle in September.

"We view with suspision any move to lengthen the hours of work a day," Miss Gertrude McNally, secretary-treasurer of the Federation, said. "We have had experience with this sort of thing in the past and we have found that it works out to the detriment of the employes.

Authority Is Questioned.

"Newspaper accounts of the so-called five-day work week for the bicentennial employes carried the statement that if the experiment works out well, it will be extended to other Government agencies. I do not know the authority for that statement, but any effort to lengthen the work day of Government employes will be met with the most strenuous opposition of which we are capable.

"Everybody would like to have to work only five days a week. We would like that, too, but we prefer to go along as we are to any such program as has been announced by the Bicentennial Commission."

Announcing his five-day work week program, Representative Bloom said he had planned a system under which employes will work from 9 o'clock in the morning to 5 o'clock in the afternoon, with a half-hour for lunch. On three days a week, however, they will report at 8:30 o'clock in the morning. Thus, he said, a total number of working hours usual to Government work will be done.

Washington Youth Drowned Canoeing

Clifton Macifie Meets His Death When Craft Turns Over.

Clifton Macifie, 20-year-old Washington boy, was drowned yesterday when a canoe overturned in the Delaware River at Philadelphia, according to word received here last night.

Macifie, who was employed on a dredge working opposite the Pleasant Hill Bathing Beach, had been invited to "go for a ride to cool off" in the canoe of Joseph Goldey, 27, of Paulsboro, N. J.

A few yards away from the dredge the canoe was accidentally upset, and Macifie attempted to swim to safety. He is believed to have suffered a heart attack midway, and sank before aid could reach him. Goldey managed to reach the overturned craft, and held on until rescued by the crew of a police boat.

Airplane Crashes Into White House

But It's Only Model Craft Exhibited to Hoover by Detroit Boy.

An airship plowed it way through the air and crashed against a window of the White House yesterday, but no damage was done—with the exception of a bent propeller.

The "airship" was a tiny plane powered by a spring, which belonged to Emanuel Feinberg, of Detroit, Mich. He was demonstrating it at the White House after the President had posed with the group of winners of the Airplane Model League of America.

Others photographed at the White House with the Chief Executive were Joseph Ehrhardt, of St. Louis, Mo.; Merrill Hamburg and Steve Klazura, of Chicago, Ill.

Woman Is Overcome While Preparing Lunch

Johanna McCracken, 46, was overcome by gas escaping from a defective jet while preparing lunch in the kitchen of her home at 4225 Third street northwest, shortly after noon yesterday. A member of her family detected the fumes and discovered the woman lying on the floor. Fire Rescue Squad, No. 2, responded to an emergency call and revived the woman, who refused hospital treatment.

Driver and Companion Hurt in Truck Crash

A colored truck driver and his companion were injured yesterday when their truck was in head-on collision with another truck on South Capitol street. Frank Green, the driver, of 1005 New Jersey avenue southeast, was removed to Providence Hospital, suffering from head cuts and internal injuries. Thomas L. West, colored, who was riding with him, received minor injuries.

According to police, the other truck was operated by Andrew Wander, of 485 Pennsylvania avenue northwest. He was not hurt. West lives at 1219 I street southeast.

Searchers Fail to Find Body of Drowned Youth

CORNELIUS W. RIDLEY.

FIREMAN IN FAINT AS CHIEF IS BURIED

Ridley Returns to Hospital After Swooning Twice Following Rites.

After being subjected to two fainting attacks yesterday afternoon, Cornelius W. Ridley, of No. 25 Engine Co., who was injured in the Campbell A. M. E. Church fire Sunday, was removed to Emergency Hospital by the fire rescue squad for further examination and treatment.

Ridley was taking a bath at his room, 327 East Capitol street, when he first fainted. His roommate, Paul J. Bennett, revived him and was attempting to get him to bed when the second fainting attack occurred. Bennett called the rescue squad.

Ridley was treated at Casualty Hospital for injuries to his back following the fire in which Battalion Chief John H. Virnstein lost his life. He was thought to be improving until the relapse yesterday.

Feared Further Injuries.

He is being treated at Emergency by Dr. Daniel J. Borden, fire and police doctor. It was feared last night that the further illness yesterday may have been caused by internal injuries which were not discovered at the time he was given first aid at Casualty Hospital.

Ridley attended the funeral of Battalion Chief Virnstein at the Sacred Heart Church yesterday morning and also the interment at Cedar Hill Cemetery. He had not been confined to his bed since his release from Casualty.

Chief Virnstein was buried with all the honors and respect due a soldier who dies in line of duty.

Company Is Guard of Honor.

The entire personnel of No. 8 Engine Company acted as guard of honor. The cortege, which was headed by Chief Engineer George S. Watson and Chief E. Howard, began at the fireman's home at 3600 New Hampshire avenue northwest, and a drum corps escorted the body to the cemetery, where taps were sounded.

The pallbearers included Chief Howard, Chief L. L. Woolard, Capt. H. A. Chapman and Privates W. H. Boswell, R. V. Brownell, and Wilson Oliver. Honorary pallbearers were Chiefs Charles E. Strom, Edward O'Connor, T. B. Stanton and A. S. Haight.

Woman Accused Of Harming Store

Shopkeeper Charges That Neighbor Harasses Her; Injunction Asked.

A suit for an injunction to stop her next door neighbor, Mrs. Sophia Fenton, from continuing to harass her and to restrain further Mrs. Fenton from injuring her business as a storekeeper was instituted in the District Supreme Court yesterday by Mrs. Mary J. Harris, of Adams street near North Capitol street.

The injunction request alleges that Mrs. Fenton has harassed Mrs. Harris for four years; that she beats on the division wall that separates their properties with a large stick and that she hails prospective customers of Mrs. Harris and charges the storekeeper with being a bootlegger.

Because of these allegations, Mrs. Harris says, the police have on several occasions visited her place, but they have never found any liquor. The complaint further alleges that when Mrs. Harris appears in her yards she is met with vile epithets, which can be heard at a great distance. The suit was filed through Attorney William A. Gallagher.

12,000 ARE DRAWN TO FIRST SUMMER FESTIVAL CONCERT

Crowd Overflows Sylvan Theater to Hear U. S. Army Band.

LISA GARDINER DANCERS TAKE PART IN PROGRAM

Outdoor Fetes to Be Given Weekly in Months of July and August.

More than 12,000 persons attended the first of a series of eight summer festival programs at the Sylvan Theater in the Monument Grounds last night under auspices of the National Capital civic fund committee, the office of public buildings and public parks and the Community Center department.

The program was presented by the United States Army Band, William J. Stannard conducting, and the Lisa Gardiner Dancers.

Several of the numbers played by the band were requests which had been received before performance.

Entire Hillside Packed.

The number of persons who heard the program must have surprised those in charge, for the entire hillside from the theater stage to the Monument far in the background was packed, and 400 chairs which had been placed near the stage to rent for a small fee were filled before the concert started.

United States Park Police, in charge of the crowd, said that no disorder of any kind arose during the concert, which is almost a record.

Gardiner dancers taking part in the program were Eda Vomachka, Christine Stewart, Betty Yoder, Alice Louise Hunter, Kathryn Mullowny, Beatrice Mullen, Frances Rands, Faye Rogers, Lora Wills, Alice Cantor, Phyllis Speich and Kathleen Piazza.

Eight Programs Planned.

The program included, for the opening number, "On the Mall," a march by Goldman; "Festival," an overture by Leutner; "Jota Aragonesa," Tavan; "County Derry," an Irish folk song by Percy Grainger; "Mazurka," Chopin; "Chimes of Normandy," Planquette; "Spring Song," Strauss; "Moments Musicale," Schubert; "Finlandia," Sibellius; "Blue Danube," Strauss; "Cinderalla's Bridal Procession," Dicker, and a ballet from "Prince Igor," by Borodin. The program concluded with "The Star Spangled Banner."

These festival programs have been planned to afford outdoor amusement to Washingtonians and visitors to the National Capital, as well as to provide recreational activities for the groups participating.

Many interesting programs have been planned for this month and August.

Dismissal Favored For 2 Policemen

Trial Board Cites Bailey and Banning; Brown Is Reprimanded.

Privates W. H. Banning and C. A. Bailey, of the Third and Seventh Police precincts, respectively, were recommended for dismissal by the Police Trial Board, sitting at headquarters yesterday.

Charges of being under the influence of liquor while on duty on June 25 had been placed against Banning, who had been under suspension since then. Bailey, cited for being absent without leave and making a false statement to his superior officer, did not appear for trial.

Private C. D. Cunningham, of the Traffic Bureau, was found guilty of smoking in the department garage and fined $5. A reprimand was issued to Private G. T. Brown, of the Fourth Precinct, after hearing evidence on charges against him of failing to communicate with his station and failing to report off duty. He was warned against future infractions.

3 Held After "Shooting" Forfeit Their Collateral

Arthur L. Smith, Robert W. Throckmorton and Clara Moore each forfeited $5 collateral in Police Court yesterday on charges of disorderly conduct.

They were arrested in an apartment house in K street near Ninth street northwest after someone had phoned police that there had been a shooting there. Police were unable to verify the shooting report, but they arrested the trio on disorderly charges.
